Way Cleared For Ordering 4,200 U. S. Warplanes

Senate Votes Pay Increase Amendment To Draft Bill

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The log-jam delaying orders for more than 4,200 warplanes for the Army and Navy was reported broken yesterday while the Senate voted pay increases for lower ranking soldiers—a step urged by conscription opponents to swell voluntary enlistments.

The pay proposal, written into the Burke-Wadsworth draft bill at the conclusion of another day of spirited debate, was supported by Administration forces in an effort to weaken opposition to the measure. It would give Army and Marine Corps privates, corporals and sergeants raises of from $6 to $12 a month.

Late yesterday North American Aviation, Inc., Englewood, Calif., signed a $11,335,631 contract with the War Department for approximately 700 training planes and spare parts, and some 13 other manufacturers were reported authoritatively to have virtually agreed to go ahead with construction of large plane orders without waiting for Congress to clear amortization and the profit tax barriers.

Provisional orders for more than 4,200 Army and Navy planes of all types are understood to be prepared and will be signed within the next week. They contain escape clauses to protect the manufacturers in case Congress fails to act or greatly changes a pending Administration tax bill which would clear up uncertainties over financing aircraft plant expansions necessary for the huge new program.

Navy to [illegible]uible Pilot Output At Anacostia

Immediate expansion of the naval reserve aviation base at Anacostia and the leasing of the Hybla Valley Airport in nearby Virginia was announced yesterday as a part of the naval pilot training program.

Facilities at Anacostia will be enlarged to permit elimination flight training of a maximum of 1,200 fledgling pilots a year, the Navy said.

Present output of the local base is from 10 to 15 men a month, officials said, in disclosing projects for construction of ramps, aprons, temporary barracks and other facilities to cost $50,000. The number of students at the field will be doubled in the near future, with further expansion ordered as the Navy's new advanced training bases in the South go into service.

Do Voters Want Guard Bill?

The Senate passed the bill authorizing the President to call the National Guard for a year's training. What is the public's reaction to this bill? Gallup Poll interviewers questioned American voters on the subject. Their opinions appear in Friday's Gallup Poll—exclusively in The Post in Washington.

Edward Noble, Organizer Of CAA, Quits

Undersecretary of Commerce Edward J. Noble, a Republican, candy manufacturer who organized the Civil Aeronautics Authority, resigned yesterday, reportedly to seek the Republican senatorial nomination in Connecticut.

Though the multimillionaire industrialist and amateur pilot told

President Roosevelt he felt he had completed the work assigned to him, some mystery surrounded the circumstances of his resignation.

In an exchange of letters with the President, Noble said he wished it understood that "political partisanship" had no part in his decision to leave the Government service.

Model Divorces Comdr. Linke

Mrs. Vivian G. Linke, glamorous brown-haired Washington social registerite, and photographer's model, was divorced yesterday in Reno, Nev., from Lieut. Comdr. Gerald D. Linke, United States Navy.

Known to the cameras as "Carol Carter," she obtained her first modeling opportunity two years ago by posing for a detective story magazine as the outraged wife surprising her husband.

Since then she has smiled from numerous magazine covers, fashion ads and billboards.

The Associated Press reported that the court retained jurisdiction over her 12-year-old son, Gordon. The couple were married here in 1922, two years after Linke was graduated from the Naval Academy. They made their home here at 2115 Bancroft place northwest.

U. S. Buys Last 2 Madison Pl. Sites

Reaching further into the Capital's business section, the Federal Government yesterday acquired title to all property on Madison place from Pennsylvania avenue to H street, including the historic Cosmos Club and the Belasco Theater.

The Cosmos Club site, famous organization of Washington's scientists and intellectuals, was officially transferred to the Government upon receipt of a check for $1,000,000.

Another check for $400,000 shifted to the United States the title to the theater, previously owned by two daughters and two grandsons of James G. Blaine, former Secretary of State, member of Congress, and candidate for President. The property was under a 99-year lease to the Belasco Theater Corporation.

Meanwhile, speculation was rife as to the future home of the Cosmos Club.

John E. Graf, acting secretary of the club, said a committee, which has been studying the problem since shortly after members agreed

U. S. Election Board Asked By Willkie

To Avoid Temptation

By the Associated Press

Colorado Springs, Aug. 14.—Wendell L. Willkie suggested today the creation of an impartial board to enforce Federal election laws.

He told a press conference he was waiting with interest to ascertain whether the Democratic National Committee would comply with his suggestion that about $640,000 collected in the sale of campaign book advertising be returned.

He added he would "keep after" the matter until some action was taken. Expressing confidence that Attorney General Jackson was "an able lawyer," Willkie added he believed Jackson would "give an opinion and give a right one."

Should Be Impartial

Discussing the creation of a board to see that election laws were enforced, Willkie said that when an administration came to power it often was tempted to prosecute misdeeds of its opponents and ignore those of its supporters.

Members of an election board, he added, should have long-term appointments and should be "strictly impartial." He asserted members of both major parties and other interests should be represented.

"You would have a much better chance of enforcing the election laws with such a board than with officials who are interested in the outcome of an election. 'Where a man's treasure is, there is his heart also.'"

Will Rest After Address

Willkie, who will leave by plane tomorrow for his Saturday acceptance address in Elwood, Ind., said in response to questions that his "particular advisers" on the speech had included the following:

Gen. Hugh Johnson, the columnist; Anne O'Hare McCormick, of the New York Times, and William

16 Die, Hundreds Flee Homes in Dixie Floods

Rampaging Streams Isolate Many Towns; Huge Property Loss

By the Associated Press

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 14.—Rampaging rivers wrought death and destruction today in four Southern States.

Abnormally heavy rainfall in the wake of a hurricane that battered the South Carolina-Georgia coast Sunday sent the swift streams swirling out of their banks, washing out highways and bridges, destroying lowland crops, causing millions of dollars damage to industrial plants along their banks, and driving hundreds from their homes.

At least 16 deaths were attributed to the floods.

North Carolina counted two drownings and four deaths in landslides. Three drownings were reported near Galax, Va.; three near Elizabethton, Tenn., and three near Augusta, Ga.

A 100-foot washout of Asheville's principal water main forced this tourists' mecca of 51,000 to use sparingly water from a single reservoir.

Wilkesboro Hard Hit

North Wilkesboro, industrial mountain town of 4,000 about 125 miles northeast, apparently was the hardest hit.

The flooded Yadkin River, which rose to record heights, swept over streets and damaged 14 industrial plants. Two burned as the water rose about them. The town, isolated, was without water, light or telephone facilities.

Property damage there was estimated at $2,000,000, and Mayor R. P. McNeill said for Wilkes County as a whole it probably would reach $10,000,000.

Police Chief John Walker expressed fear many had drowned before they could be warned of the rapidly rising waters. The city called on the Red Cross meanwhile giving food and shelter to the needy. The water was fast receding tonight.

Galax, Va., Isolated

Landslides blocked highways all through the mountain area. Two persons were crushed to death in two slides near Boone.

Witnesses said the raging torrents in some places picked up buildings and tossed them about like matchboxes. Hundreds of bridges were swept away.

Galax, in the southwest corner of Virginia, was isolated last night, and about 700 were reported to have fled their homes. Water rose to the second story of many houses.

Radford, Va., on the now turbulent New River, faced the worst flood conditions in its history.

The War Today

BRITAIN TAKES THE OFFENSIVE: As War Secretary Eden talks of carrying the war to Germany, British bombers refute Nazi claims of Channel air control by pounding blitzkrieg bases on French coast; night before, R. A. F. fliers bombed Nazi air fields and German and Italian plane factories.

22 for 5, Nazis Claim

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 14.—Germany's mighty air force carried a tempest of fire and metal across the Channel into England's southern flank for the fourth successive day of big aerial assault today and returning bombers described masses of floating wreckage of planes and balloons shot down off Dover—a possible sign of conditions ripe for invasion.

Biggest battles of the day were reported off this southeastern "hot corner" nearest the continent, where Germans said British fighters persisted in making futile attempts to stop the torrents of German bombers, dive bombers and battle planes and lost 22 of their Hurricanes and Spitfires to the Germans five.

This brought Britain's total of destroyed planes, according to German bookkeeping, to 385 for the five big days beginning last Thursday. This was at a cost of 88 German planes, the Germans reckoned.

As if these body blows were a prelude to a land and sea invasion, the government today ordered a ban on public dancing, as it did during London (Thursday), Aug. 15. New flights of German warplanes were heard over northern England and Scotland today while in the south the British air force launched its own pre-dawn blows at 100 miles of the German-held coast of France.

The British bombed blitzkrieg bases between Calais and Le Havre for at least an hour without letup, starting great fires that could be seen across the English Channel. The distant shriek of air raid sirens and the muffled thud of bombs told of the force of the attack.

There were no reports of bombings immediately in northwestern England and north and South Scotland where German planes were heard overhead. British said the intensity of the Nazi night attacks apparently had fallen off.

The swift new German raids were characteristic of the feeler flights through the darkness that have preluded the mighty air assaults each of the last four days.

Yesterday's big blows were aimed at the vital south coast cities—Southampton, Dove and Hastings—while German vessels moved stealthily about the English Channel in what might be preparations for an attempt to ferry an invading [illegible] to British shores.

Italy Stirred By British Raid on Cities

Rome, Aug. 14.—British bombers flew over northern Italy this morning in the largest enemy air raid on Italian soil since the beginning of the war and dropped more than 50 explosive and incendiary bombs as well as thousands of anti-Fascist leaflets over Milan, Turin, Allessandria, and Tortona.

Twenty-two civilians were killed and 32 wounded, according to today's communique, which states that no military or industrial objectives were hit. It is believed, however, that the number of casualties is still higher. Extensive damage, however, was done to private buildings, and in commenting on the raid this afternoon's newspapers vie with each other in heaping abuse on the British air force for what they term its "cowardice."

The planes, it is claimed, came from over Switzerland. The bulletin makes no mention of whether any of them were shot down. Milan and Turin, which are Italy's largest industrial towns, bore the brunt of the raid.

Parashooters Hunt 'Parachutists'

London (Thursday), Aug. 15.—Troops, police and Home Guards were still searching areas in the Midlands, Northeast England and Southwest Scotland early today for possible Nazi troops, after more than 50 German parachutes had been found at daybreak yesterday.

Not a single German had been found by midnight, but the hunt continued. One theory was that the parachutes had been dropped Tuesday night as an "invasion hoax," calculated to cause panic.

March, Cagney Among 17 Called Communists; FBI Man Says U. S. Schools Sap Patriotism

The teaching of "doctrines wholly un-American" in the Nation's schools and colleges is one of the greatest problems facing the FBI in its national defense work, Lee R. Pennington, administrative assistant to J. Edgar Hoover, said yesterday.

American youth, he told members of the Washington Rotary Club at a luncheon meeting in the Willard Hotel, are falling prey to "preachers of ideologies foreign to our way of thinking."

"Doctrines wholly un-American have gotten into our educational institutions," he continued, "and students are listening to influences which are trying to make us a Nation divided against itself."

He said the FBI is doing all within its power to uncover instances of classroom discussion of un-American topics, but that "help of all law-abiding citizens is needed to carry on our fight."

"We know there are instructors in schools throughout the country teaching subversive subjects, but it is a mystery to the FBI why such practices are permitted to exist when they could be stopped easily before they get a foothold," Pennington declared.

He suggested that parents talk to their children, learn what is going on in their community schools, and report any cases of subversive activities direct-

Los Angeles, Aug. 14 (AP).—More than a dozen prominent Hollywood actors, actresses and film writers were named in grand jury testimony, made public tonight, as members of the Communist Party and heavy contributors to its support.

The district attorney's office made public a transcript of testimony given last week by John L. Leech, a former Los Angeles County Communist Party organizer, before a county grand jury investigating Communist activities. His testimony identified these as members of the party:

Lionel Stander, actor; Jean Muir, actress; Frank Tuttle, film technician; Tania Tuttle, his wife; Frank Davis, producer; Clifford Odets, writer and scenarist; Sam Ornitz, writer; Franchot Tone, actor; Frederic March, actor; Gregory La Cava, director; Lester Cole, scenarist; James Cagney, actor; Humphrey Bogart, actor; Frank Scully, writer; Francis Lederer, actor; Herbert Biberman, director, and Buddy Schulberg, son of B. Leech was the principal witness before the grand jury. It indicted five men on charges of murder in connection with a water front slaying five years ago which he attributed to differences over Communistic in-

38-Hour Man Hunt Ends

Parolee Confessed Shooting Of Sergt. Baker, Police Report

Surrounded by five policemen as he sat on a bench behind Armstrong High School, near Third and O streets northwest, Wilton Peyton Thompson, 21-year-old colored man wanted in the shooting of Detective Sergt. Earl Baker, was arrested shortly before 8 p. m. yesterday.

Questioned at police headquarters, Thompson signed a three-page confession of the shooting, according to Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives.

He was held on an open charge pending the outcome of Sergt. Baker's injury. Wounded in the shoulder, the officer remained in serious condition in Emergency Hospital.

A 38-hour search for the fugitive, here and throughout the South, ended when Policeman Benjamin F. Howze, of the Second Precinct, notified headquarters he had located Thompson.

Howze, hiding in the living room of Thompson's home at 430 O street northwest, pounced upon a young colored man who entered the house and obtained from him the information that Thompson had rent him for clothes. The man told Howze of the [illegible]tive's whereabouts, aid was

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

(A silver tongued hill-billy educated at Harvard, Oxford and Heidelberg, Congressman Short has a sense of humor which survives erudition; and he survives as Missouri's only GOP member in Congress out of 13, and shines as today's guest columnist.—Harlan Miller.)

That brilliant wit, Congressman Eaton, serving his eighth term from New Jersey, discussing the New Deal on the floor of the House, recently said: "It is not Democratic. It is not Republican. It is an irrational concatenation of economic and political cacophonies."

And listen to Hon. Stephen Bolles of the First District of Wisconsin speak of our President: "We cannot all be carried away by the soporific sophistications of the man at the other end of the Avenue or the tintinnabulations of easy-flowing sonorous sentences."

Not bad for a first-termer; but young Congressman Bolles is an old newspaperman.

"—no time for meditation"

A Congressman's education, however, is acquired not from the bad speeches of his colleagues, but from his voluminous and varied correspondence with the world. The average member of Congress today must answer more communications in a week than had to be answered during a whole session in the days of Webster, Clay and Calhoun.

* * * *

Perhaps this is the reason we have so few Websters, Clays and Calhouns today. Those men had time to read, study, reflect and think; government then was relatively simple. Today members of Congress become errand boys running frantically from one complex agency or department to another, finding little time for meditation or research.

An anonymous correspondent this morning advises me: "I believe in the Holy Scripture, Almighty God and a greater posterity; I do not believe in present-day birth control." He adds: "I smoke regular and drink some, and occasionally get drunk, and I don't care who knows it."

An 11-year-old girl instructs me to send her a Mickey Mouse watch; she is a Republican and her seatmate is a Democrat, who is writing to the President for a simialr watch; they are running a race to see who gets the watch first.

Funds to Enforce Hatch Act Asked

President Seeks $500,000 for Civil Service Bureau

By the Associated Press

President Roosevelt yesterday asked Congress to appropriate $500,000 for use of the Civil Service Commission in enforcing the Hatch Act.

The Budget Bureau said the sum was needed in carrying out the act's ban on political activity by State and local employes paid in whole or in part with Federal funds.

The money will be used for clerical and other services.

Justice Department officials indicated in guarded private comment that there was little likelihood of prosecution for purchasers of the Democratic 1940 campaign book in the event that the Democratic National Committee decides to sell the volume, despite the Hatch Act.

One official said that prosecution under a law which could impose a maximum of $5,000 fine or five years in prison on a person who merely bought a 25-cent campaign book was "an impossible situation."

Another, asked what might be done if 100,000 persons bought the books, recalled the observation of an English lawyer years ago that "you can't jail a whole people."

Republicans assailed the publication as a violation of the Hatch law. Senator Hatch (Democrat), the law's author, said the book would constitute an "evasion" of the law.

Meanwhile, charging that registration rolls had been "padded" in Jersey City, political bailiwick of Mayor Frank Hague, Joseph A. Tumulty, jr., Independent candidate for the United States Senate in New Jersey, requested an investigation by the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee.

Chairman Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, said the committee had taken Tumulty's charges under advisement.

Appearing before Gillette and Senator Reed (Republican), of Kansas, Tumulty charged that there was an "unreasonable ratio" of increase in vote registrations for the primary last May 21 over the 1936 registration figure. He said 163,300 persons were registered in the city last May, compared with 148,786 in the 1936 Presidential election.

The increase came, he said, despite a Jersey City population decline from 316,715 to 301,012, between 1930 and 1940.

Tumulty is opposing Senator Barbour (Republican), of New Jersey, the Republican nominee, and James H. R. Cromwell, former Minister to Canada, the Democratic nominee.

Allen White on foreign affairs; L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, and Earl Smith, of the American Farm Bureau, on farm problems, and Claude Baker, president of the International Typographical Union, on labor problems.

On the speech as a whole, Willkie said his chief advisers had included Senator McNary, his running mate; Chairman Joe Martin, of the Republican National Committee; Gov. Harold E. Stassen, of Minnesota; John Cowles and Gardner Cowles, jr., Midwest publishers; Russell Davenport and Raymond Leslie Buell, former Fortune Magazine editors.

Willkie said he intended to rest in Mrs. Willkie's home town of Rushville, Ind., for at least two days after his acceptance address. Plans thenceforth are indefinite.

In his discussion of political practices, the nominee said that efforts to clean up elections had "been one of the great reform movements" led by such men as the late Senator Robert La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, Woodrow Wilson, Theodore Roosevelt and Senator Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana.

"To prevent corporate contributions to political parties was one of the great reform liberal movements of this country. To take such contributions under the guise of advertising is even more sinister than direct contributions."

One reporter asked about contributions to the Republican Party, and added he understood payment by the Pew family in Philadelphia had been "substantial."

Wants Free Political Parties

Willkie replied that long before he was nominated he urged that political contributions be limited to $5,000—a limitation now provided by the Hatch law.

"I want to keep our political life free from any control," he continued, "either by corporations or individuals through the use of money.

"I don't care whether the party is Democratic, Republican or Socialist."

Willkie said he once had considered indorsing a proposal that the Government finance all political campaigns, but had decided that it would be virtually impossible to find a practical method of distributing campaign funds among majority and minority parties.

While the whole question of "machine government" is a major campaign issue, Willkie said, "probably the most important questions of the campaign are foreign policy and national defense."

Flynn Hangs 'Machine' Tag On Willkie

Asks if Nominee Will Demand G.O.P. Repay Book Revenue

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 14.—Edward J. Flynn, often called "Boss Flynn" by Wendell L. Willkie in the Republican Presidential nominee's attacks on Democratic machines, asserted today that "straw boss" Willkie "has been a machine politician all his adult life."

In a formal statement, Flynn, chairman-elect of the Democratic National Committee, asked if Willkie would denounce Republican Party bosses as he had Democratic and if, in view of his comments on the Democratic campaign book, he would suggest paying back "the modest $150,000 that the Republican campaign book of 1936 received for advertising."

Flynn will touch off the national radio campaign on Monday with an "address to Democratic workers" over a C. B. S. network from 7 to 7:15 p. m. (E. S. T.)

Recites Willkie's Record

After recalling that Willkie "is now sending District Attorney Tom Dewey out to point to the iniquities" of Democratic Party machines, Flynn said in his statement:

"It is interesting to note that Mr. Willkie is pretty much of a machine politician himself, having been picked as the candidate of the Public Utility Party. He was a Tammany county committeeman in New York, he was associated with the State central committee in Ohio, he was affiliated with the Summit County organization in that same State. He was a spellbinder for the organization in Elwood and he was a lobbyist in Washington, as well as in various States in which he lived.

"I wonder if he would include in his denunciation the Republican bosses in Pennsylvania, Grundy and Pew? . . . What does he think of such Republican bosses as Bill Irwin, of Ohio, or Boss Homer Capehart, the music-box magnate, of Idinia, or to get closer to home, will he inveigh against Boss Marvin, of Syracuse; Boss Sprague, of Nassau County, or Boss Jaeckle, of Erie County, in this State?

What About G. O. P. Ads?

"What about Boss (Nocky) Johnson, of Atlantic City, N. J.? or Boss Frank McKay, in Michigan?

"These are all machine politicians. Mr. Willkie has been a machine politician all hs adult life, even though he did not attain to high leadership at any stage of his career before he was nominated and assumed the straw-boss-ship of the party with which he is now affiliated.

"I note also that in his spasm of virtue he thinks that the Democrats should refund to the advertisers in the 1936 Democratic convention souvenir book what they paid for their advertisements, on the theory that the Hatch Act, or recent enactment, forbids those things.

"Would he also include in the money that should be paid back the modest $150,000 that the Republican campagin book of 1936 received for advertising?"

[The Hatch Act barring the purchase of advertising in the books or of the books themselves was not in effect in 1936. However, the Corrupt Practices Act, the "spirit" of which is claimed to be violated by issuance of the books, was a law.—Editor's note.]

Harry F. Guggenheim Named Chairman Of New Republican Aviation Division

Harry F. Guggenheim, former Ambassdor to Cuba, yesterday was chosen by Republican National Chairman Martin to be chairman of a new aviation division of the committee, to be known as "Wings for Willkie."

Guggenheim

Its objective, the committee said, will be "the election of Wendell Willkie in the interest of sound aviation development.

Guggenheim said in a statement that "aviation in the United States, commercial and military, has been hampered by the Roosevelt administration." He said that in his first term Mr. Roosevelt used the airmail as a political football" and the result "was a hinrance to development." He cited also a later cancellation of the air mail contracts and the attempts to deliver mail with Army planes and pilots.

"The Civil Aeronautics Authority, set up to promote aviation progress and fathered by Senator Pat McCarrn, Nevada Democrat," he continued, "was put back into politics in the Department of Commerce by Presidential decree, where it can be hamstrung for political purposes. At the same time the Air Safety Board, under which the airlines had operted for over 14 months without a fatality, was abolished as an independent body also by Presidential decree."

Personnel of the notification committee to notify Wendell L. Willkie of his nomination for the Presidency on Saturday was announced yesterday by the Republican National Committee. It includes one member from each State, territory and possession.

For the District of Columbia, Robert V. Fleming was selected, while the Maryland and Virginia members, respectively, are J. Cookman Boyd and Joseph E. Proffitt.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 14 (INS). The Democratic Party has ceased to exist, having been supplanted at its Chicago convention by the party of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut, declared today.

In an address keynoting the West Virginia State Republican convention, the Republican Governor of the Nutmeg State urged a united party and predicted the election of Wendell L. Willkie, G. O. P. nominee, to the White House this fall.

"There is no room in this country for any one-man party," he said. "There is no room in this country for the domination of any party by one man.

"We are going to beat this Roosevelt party in November on the third-term issue, alone. I do not mean that is, or is going to be, the only issue, but I do say that this one issue is enough to arouse the militant opposition of every American who believes in his country's traditions."

John Cudahy, Ambassador to Belgium, paid off a bet yesterday when he went to the White House to explain his recent remarks concerning conditions in Belgium.

Some time ago Cudahy bet Brig. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, military aide to the President, $300 to $200 that Mr. Roosevelt would not be a candidate for a third term.

Displaying his winnings today, Watson said, with a broad smile: "Now I'd like to find some one to bet the $300 even money that the President will be reelected."

Linn A. E. Gale, News Service Head And War Foe, Dies

Linn A. E. Gale, 48-year-old Washington newspaper correspondent whose opposition to America's entry in the World War cost him three years in Fort Leavenworth Military Prison died yesterday at the Greenhill Institute. He was director of Gale News Service.

Mr. Gale had been engaged in newspaper work here since 1924, when he was released from Leavenworth after serving three years of a seven-year sentence for publishing in Gale's International Monthly articles and poems opposing the war and for violating the draft law.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Magdalena Hass Gale, with whom he lived at 809 Thirteenth street northwest, and his father, Clarence O. Gale, of Endicott, N. Y. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Chambers Funeral Home, 1400 Chapin street northwest.

Adkins Polls 30,000 More Than Bailey

Winner of Governor's Race Long Powerful In Arkansas Politics

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 14 (AP).—Long a potent behind-the-scenes figure in Arkansas politics, Homer M. Adkins, 49, stepped into the limelight today as the Democratic nominee for Governor by a more than 30,000 vote margin over three opponents, including Gov. Carl E. Bailey.

With little more than 100 scattered precincts unreported from Tuesday's preferential primary, Adkins had 136,731 votes, Bailey 106,571, Frank Witte, of Magnolia, 907, and J. Rosser Venable, of Little Rock, 594.

Bailey conceded defeat in his bid for a third term and announced he would retire to private law practice in January.

Adkins resigned his job as internal revenue collector for Arkansas last May to make the Governor's race.

Representative Wade Hampton Kitchens, of Magnolia, trailed Prosecuting Attorney Oren Harris, of El Dorado, by an unofficial count of 18,089 to 18,853 in the Seventh Congressional District. In Washington, Kitchens announced he would ask an investigation of the voting on grounds the absentee ballot law had been violated.

Representative D. Terry, of the Fifth District, won renomination by a smashing majority over two opponents.

A runoff August 27 will be necessary in the Lieutenant Governor race. Lieut. Gov. Bob Bailey will be opposed by Speaker of the House John M. Bransford.

Taylor Leads in Idaho

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 14 (AP).—A ballad-singing radio entertainer stole the show from veteran politicians in Idaho's primary election.

Glen Taylor, of Pocatello, who campaigned in a sound truck with his wife and young son for the Democratic nomination for Senator, led a tight three-man race. With 449 of the State's 792 precincts tabulated he had 11,197 against 9,445 for George Donart, of Weiser, attorney and veteran political leader, and 10,665 for former District Judge James R. Bothwell, of Twin Falls.

Senator John Thomas quickly outdistanced six other bidders for the Republican nomination to serve the remaining two years of the late William E. Borah's term. Thomas is serving by appointment.

In the Democratic gubernatorial contest, Mayor Chase A. Clark, of Idaho Falls, pulled steadily away from his two opponents, Attorney General J. W. Taylor and James L. Barnes, Hansen farmer.

Gov. C. A. Bottolfsen, Republican, easily won renomination from Thomas McDougall, Boise attorney who campaigned on a proposal to legalize gambling and retail liquor sales.

Neither Representative Henry Dworshak, Republican, nor Representative Compton I. White, Democrat was opposed for renomination.

Last Rites Set Tomorrow For H. W. Klotz

Funeral rites for Harry W. Klotz, 57, senior assistant postmaster for the District, who died Tuesday, will be at 12:30 p. m. tomorrow at S. H. Hines Funeral Home, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

A native of Washington, he attended local schools and joined the local postoffice in 1905.

He was made assistant superintendent of the mails in 1937, and was promoted to the position he held at the time of his death the same year.

A member of the District National Guard, Mr. Klotz served as captain of artillery in France during the World War. He held a captain's commission in the Reserve Corps at the time of his death.

Mr. Klotz was president of the Postoffice Supervisors' Association. He was a Mason, a Shriner, Knight Templar and member of the American Legion. He lived at 1615 Upshur street northwest.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Virginia Skippton Klotz; two daughters, Barbara and Betty; a sister, Mrs. Bedford Robertson; two brothers, Arthur E. Klotz and Walter R. Klotz, and his stepmother, Mrs. Elsie Klotz, all of Washington.

Committee Backs Export-Import Bill

Asks Capital Boost To Provide Loans To Latin America

By the Associated Press

The House Banking Committee approved legislation yesterday increasing the Export-Import Bank's lending authority by $500,000,000 after Representative Wolcott (Republican), of Michigan, had assailed the measure as a "round-about method of assisting the British blockade of Germany."

The Administration had asked that the money be made available to assist Latin American nations in meeting their trade problems.

Wolcott, ranking minority member of the committee, proposed the hearings be continued to get testimony from State Department officials as to what "diplomatic repercussions might be expected" if the measure became law. He was voted down, 14 to 8, after Jesse Jones, Federal Loan administrator, told the committee he was authorized to speak for Secretary Hull concerning the State Department's views.

Pledges Finish Fight

Wolcott said he would "fight to the last gun the provisions which authorize the Export-Import Bank to buy, store, or finance surplus commodities of South America."

Saying the plan was designed to "initiate a cartel system," Wolcott added:

"This is a dangerous program. South America has not asked us for loans. This will endanger our relations with South American nations. It will be interpreted as an unfriendly act. It is part and parcel of the British blockade against Germany. If we want to go that far, of course it is a step short of war, and Germany will have a right to interpret this as an unneutral act."

Jones, on the other hand, said he and the State Department were in agreement that the measure would "promote good will and assist trade."

House May Get Bill Friday

The bill would place a $1,500,000,000 limit on the obligations which could be incurred by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, through which the Export-Import Bank funds flow. Of this amount the RFC could use $1,000,000,000 for national defense financing, while the balance would go to the bank. Representative Steagall (Democrat), of Alabama, chairman of the banking committee, expressed hope that the House would take up the measure Friday.

Similar legislation approved by the Senate Banking Committee provided a $500,000,000 lending increase for the bank, but made no provision for national defense loans.

Wolcott said he had no objection to the natinoal defense angles of the House legislation.

Baby Helaine Loses Fight Against Glioma

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 14.—Baby Helaine Colan, tiny central figure in a life-or-death drama that attracted Nation-wide attention two years ago, died today.

Her death, at the age of 2 years and 4 months, was attributed to glioma.

In the spring of 1938, it was ascertained that glioma, a cancerous malady, had blinded the infant's left eye and had impaired the vision of the right.

For four days her parents, Dr. Herman Colan, a dentist, and his wife sought to decide whether they would chance death within several months from the growth creeping toward Helaine's brain or whether they should permit surgeons to give her a lease on a life of partial or complete blindness.

The case was placed in the hands of a "jury" of ten X-ray and brain specialists, the father, two rabbis and the maternal grandfather, a physician. Their verdict was "operate."

Helaine's left eye and part of the optic nerve were removed. X-ray treatments were employed on her right eye later. Until late last year, she seemed bright and active. Four months ago she lost her sight.

Last Rites Today For H. F. Mandler, D. C. Realty Man

Funeral services will be held today for Herman F. Mandler, veteran Washington realty man, who died in Garfield Hospital Tuesday after a three-month illness.

Mr. Mandler was born in Lafayette, Ind., September 1, 1874, and had been in business here more than 30 years. He first worked for the McLachlen Banking Corporation, later organizing the Mandler-Terry Co. He took part in the development of West Chevy Chase.

Mr. Mandler is survived by a son, Edward Mandler; a daughter, Mrs. Alice M. Baker, both of 632 Randolph street northwest, Washington, and three sisters in Indiana.

Funeral services will be in the Hysong funeral home chapel, 1300 M street northwest, with private burial in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Flying Coed Will Compete For Scholarship

BARBARA JANE ERICKSON VIES FOR AERO-HONORS

7 Young Fliers, One a Girl, Vie for Scholarships Today

Seven of the Nation's outstanding young pilots, one of them a 20-year-old Seattle, Wash., girl, tested their wings yesterday in preparation for a $2,250 contest today.

The seven were selected after elimination contests among students trained at more than 450 colleges and schools in the country under the Civil Aeronautics Board's pilot-training program.

The girl is Barbara Jane Erickson, a junior at the University of Washington. Trained in a seaplane, she took her regional tests in a land plane and won over scores of competitors, most of them young men. An honor-roll student, she plans to become a flight instructor.

Scholarships of $1,000, $750 and $500 will be awarded to three of the seven after contest flights today. The cream of the 10,000 pilots trained by the CAB, they will take off, climb, turn, spin, stall, dive and land against a white marker before a committee of judges.

The scholarships, offered by the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences, were made possible by a Shell Oil Co. grant of $15,000.

Yesterday, after arriving in Washington by plane from their homes all over the country, the seven took practice flights at College Park Airport.

The awards will be made at a luncheon at the Mayflower tomorrow. Speakers will include Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Corps; Admiral John H. Towers, chief of he Navy Bureau of Aeronautics; Robert H. Hinckley, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, and Dr. George W. Lewis.

One of the contestants is John Lincoln Lambert, 20, of Baltimore, a student at the University of Maryland, who was trained by George W. Brinckerhof, of College Park.

The others are Jefferson Davis Lewis, of Tallahassee, Fla.; Edward Francis Scanlon, of Steubenville, Ohio; James Grant White, of Brownwood, Tex.; Arden Ellwood Hixson, of Wichita, Kans., and Waldo Elmer Schroeder, of Reedley, Calif.

F. J. Wildman, U. S.-Spanish War Veteran, Dies at 76

Funeral services for Frederick James Wildman, 74, who died yesterday at his home, 1329 Fairmont street northwest, will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest.

Wildman, a Spanish-American War veteran, will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery. He was a retired employe of the Census Bureau, having served 40 years in the Government service.

During the Spanish-American War, Wildman served with the Connecticut Volunteers. He came here from Guilford, Conn. In 1900 he went to work at the Census Bureau and retired in 1935.

Wildman was a member of St. Alban's Lodge, No. 38, A. F. and A. M.; Guilford and Brightwood Commandery, No. 6, Knights Templar and Camp Fuller, U. S. W. V.

He leaves his wife, Bertha Aprill Wildman and four children, Mrs. Elsie W. Kissling, Rose K., Herbert T. and Robert A. Wildman.

Dr. W. E. Ford, Jr., Dies at 59 After A Long Illness

Dr. William E. Ford, jr., 59, of Arlington, who had a long record as a Government and private physician, died Tuesday at Mount Alto Hospital after a long illness.

He came to Washington in 1931 and for a time had been connected with Walter Reed Hospital. He had made his home since then in Arlington.

He had been medical examiner for the Western Maryland Railroad at Cumberland, Md., from 1925 to 1931. In 1924, Dr. Ford was stationed at Baltimore while connected with the Public Health Service.

Dr. Ford also had been connected with the Coast Guard, served two years overseas in the World War, was a ship's surgeon for the Holland-American Line and had been medical examiner for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mrs. Anna T. Ford; a sister, Miss Antonia Ford and a brother, C. H. Ford, all of Agton.

Funeral services will be held at Fort Myer Chapel Friday morning, burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Brother, Sister Ask to Mind Baby, but Police Get the Job

THELMA WARGO
She Was Happier Home

"Where's the baby, George?"

"Why, Emma, I thought you had her."

"No, I thought you did."

Such was the frightened conversation of Emm and George Wargo, 11 and 9, respectively, yesterday, over the whereabouts of their 15-month-old sister, Thelma. But Thelma was in good hands—the police.

George and Emma, who live at 651 Maryland avenue northeast, asked their mother, Mrs. George Wargo for permission to take Thelma with them to play in Stanton Park near the Wargo home.

In Thelma's stroller, brother and sister pushed her to the square about 10:30 a. m. George started playing with some boy friends, Emma with girl friends. Each believed the other was watching Thelma.

Finally, Mrs. Wargo went to the park after the children. They were not there, but she was not upset, thinking they might have gone to a friend's home nearby.

First, Emma returned home. She did not have the baby and said George had her.

Then George appeared, also sans baby.

Mrs. Wargo ran to the park. A caretaker said a woman had taken the child to the Ninth Precinct.

At 2 p. m., Mrs. Wargo and her baby met again, at the Receiving Home for Children, where Thelma had been taken by police. Thelma was none the worse for her experience.

Sympathizers Drive D.C. Man In Splint 'Nuts'

Injured Plumber In New-Type Brace Begs for Obscurity

Claimant for the title of most harried man in the Capital is Claude M. Moss, 26-year-old plumber and steamfitter, who yesterday told The Post that every fifth person he meets on District streets asks him questions.

Four weeks ago, while working on an FHA project at Eighteenth and H streets northeast, he slipped and fell while carrying a large pipe, and suffered a split collarbone. A doctor at Casualty Hospital where he was treated, ordered a new type splint applied to the injury and since that time Moss' highest desire is obscurity.

The splint is a highly complicated affair made of metal. A large steel bar and plate lie across his chest, and because of the nature of the device Moss must wear his shirt open in front.

"Everyone wants to know what it is," said Moss. "They ask me if I think I'm super-man; they ask me how I was hurt. I can't even go into a restaurant or ride a street car.

"They're driving me nuts."

The 6-foot, 2-inch Virginian, who lives at 1116 D street northeast, said he must wear the hated mechanism about two weeks more. Yesterday, in desperation, he applied to The Post for succor.

"Maybe if you tell them what it is they'll leave me alone," he said.

Frank T. Cain, 54, Rites Today

The funeral of Frank T. Cain, 54, United States park policeman, who died suddenly on Tuesday afternoon, will be held today at 11 a. m. from his residence, 113 Stewart avenue, Alexandria. Services will be conducted by the Rev. Leonard J. Koster, pastor of St. Rita's Church.

Mr. Cain, who served with the United States Coast Artillery before joining the park police force in 1914, will be buried with military honors in Arlington Cemetery. Fellow officers of the park police will serve as active and honorary pallbearers.

Senators Told Of Attempt To Frame RCA

Accountant Tells I.C.C. of Plot Against Radio Combine

J. Austin Smith, New York accountant, told the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee yesterday that he had been employed in 1938 to write a report critical of the Rdio Corporation of America so that his employer might make a connection with the company.

He was hired, he said, by Patrick Powers, Westport, Conn., retired motion picture executive, who wanted him "to make a report which would embarrass RCA." The report, which he said was prepared from data furnished by Powers, criticized RCA's administrative and financial structure.

After the report was drafted, Smith said that Powers obtained employment for him from R. C. A. which paid him $20,000 to $25,000 in the next four years. Smith said that he then learned that the report "was not based on sufficient investigation." He did not say whether Powers made a "connection."

Senator Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, interrupted Smith to say:

"By your own admission you were employed to write an adverse, hostile and critical report and draw every conclusion you could that would be injurious to the corporation.

"I say the fellow responsible should be put where he can't make such reports," the Senator declared. "This is a damnable situation, based on partial evidence—a frame-up, you can call it."

The committee hearing, called originally to consider the renomination of Thad H. Brown to the Federal Communications Commission, became sidetracked some days ago when committee members started an inquiry into R. C. A. affairs.

Another witness, Rodmond Mahaffy, nephew of Henry C. Mahaffy, clerk of the United States District Court at Wilmington, Del., was asked by Tobey today if he had ever "attempted to obtain employment from lawyers or parties with cases pending before the court."

Mahaffy said he had not and swore that he had "no recollection" of having "approached" two New York attorneys with cases before Judge John P. Neilds, of the Federal Court at Wilmington. The Government brought suit against R. C. A. in this court in 1932.

58th Maryland Brigade Routed By Virginians in Surprise Attack

President Expected To View Tactics On Saturday

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Correspondent.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Army commanders today whipped plans into shape for the review of 91,000 Regular and National Guard troops by their commander in chief, President Roosevelt.

Still lacking official notification of the Chief Executive's arrival, but convinced that he would appear for the climax of the Army maneuvers under Gen. Hugh Drum, they made preparations for an inspection tour of all division camps in the area.

It was understood that the President would leave Washington early some time tomorrow and was expected to be on hand Saturday for the review.

Meanwhile, at nearby Rensselaer Falls, relentless aggressiveness and the storybook exploit of three Virginia officers today turned a scheduled orderly retreat of the Fifty-eighth Maryland Brigade into a rout in the battle which ended two days of exercises by the Twenty-ninth Division.

The prepared scenario for the fight called for hypothetical reinforcements to the Virginia brigade which would have brought it into such overwhelming strength the opposing Maryland brigade would have been forced to make an orderly retreat to its camps. Except for the retreat, the plan went completely awry and, before the battle, the Virginians were claiming complete annihilation of the Maryland brigade.

Moving shortly after midnight from field bivouacs, the Ninety-first Virginia Brigade, under Col. John F. Bright, Mayor of Richmond, took up positions facing the battle front of the Fifty-eighth. Promptly at 4:30 a. m. it struck like a tropical hurricane all along its front.

In the kitchens of the First Maryland Infantry, sleepy troops were lined up for breakfast, mess gear in hand, when advance battalions of the first Virginia tore at them from the deep hedges, Garand rifles blazing. The kitchens were overrun while the Marylanders scurried for their rifles, formed hasty lines and backed out.

116th Va. Pushes Ahead

On the right of the line, the 116th Virginia pushed ahead against an enemy kept awake throughout the night by an insistent little patrol, from Company K, Charlottesville, which nipped at the Fifth Maryland like a terrier worrying a great bull.

But the exploit which made the concerted attack in exactly the right places possible was the work of three officers of the First Virginia, who have been cited to the division by Col. Bright. They are Lieut. George A. Bridgers, of Company K, Norfolk; Lieut. John S. Arnold, of Company I, Alexandria, and Lieut. Mark C. Bane, of Richmond, a Reserve officer, attached to Company I for training.

Shortly before midnight, the three carried out a raid into the lines of the First Maryland, which produced results far beyond any reasonable expectation. Creeping across the No Man's Land between the lines, Bridgers and Arnold clambered through a wire fence back of the First Maryland's regimental headquarters, while Bane stood watch at the fence.

On the tailgate of a truck parked near regimental headquarters, Arnold and Bridgers found two situation maps, giving the location of each unit of the First Maryland at the close of yesterday's battle. Unchallenged, they crept back to their own lines with the maps which were the basis for this morning's lightning attack by the left of the Ninety-first.

At the edge of their camp, the Marylanders rallied, hauled into position as much artillery as they could lay hands on and made a stubborn, forlorn stand, an hour earlier than they should have reached that line according to the program.

Here it was, on this last defensive line that Battery E, 110th Field Artillery, from Pikesville, Md., annihilated a tank column that wasn't in the war. It was a matter of desperate defense, of blasting at anything that moved; the sort of spirit that turns defeat into victory.

Less than a quarter mile away, at point-blank range, appeared the Twenty-ninth Tank Company, of Norfolk, not in the battle and employed on a problem of their own.

The four guns of Battery E whirled that way, dropped a couple of ranging shots, then poured down a long rafale of fire that should not have left one tank crawling across the earth. But being the sort of war it was, the tanks and their decrepit train moved about their own business, serenely undisturbed.

Gen. Reckord Criticizes

This afternoon Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding the division, called its 900 officers to his headquarters for a critique of the two-day battle. He and his aides criticized especially crowding of trucks on the roads, exposed field kitchens and congregations of umpires t convenient road intersections.

Tomorrow at 11 a. m., the Twenty-ninth Division, commanded by Gen. Reckord, will take the field for two days and a night of battle against the Twenty-eighth (Pennsylvania), under Maj. Gen. Edward Martin. The division maneuvers, originally scheduled for tomorrow Friday and part of Saturday, was curtailed for the expected visit Saturday of President Roosevelt.

The battle plan assumes that the Twenty-ninth represents a Blue army which has advanced from the south and established itself in the country of the Black Twenty-eighth on a line from Heuvelton to Woodbridge Corners. It is attempting to advance northward and seize the crossings of the St. Lawrence River.

The two armies are expected to clash on vital high ground in the vicinity of Flackville. There they will jockey for position and attempt to maneuver each other into some fatal disadvantage. Planes of the 104th Observation Squadron, Baltimore, will assist the Twenty-ninth and those of the 103d, Philadelphia, will reconnoiter for the Twenty-eighth.

Maj. William T. Roy, commanding the District's special troops, appeared before Col. Walter W. Burns, commanding the 260th, today for examination for promotion to lieutenant colonel.

20 Balloons Shot Down, Berlin Says

the Polish campaign and the offensive in western Europe. Recently dancing has been permitted two nights a week.

Despite the desperate British opposition, the Germans said, their bombers shrieked down on their objectives, hitting airports and wharves which left towering fires in their wake.

Approximately a score of Britain's vaunted barrage balloons were sent flaming into the sea and to the ground in a tangle of twisted cables, the Germans declared, while small boats were engaged off shore in attempts to rescue luckless British pilots whose mounts were sent in streaking flame from the sky.

In Cellars 47 Minutes

Berlin had its third air raid warning of the war and informed sources admitted British raiders had reached Potsdam, 20 miles west of the capital, before being turned back by antiaircraft guns.

The warning sent Berlin residents to their cellars for 47 minutes while the sound of distant firing was heard, but no bombs were reported dropped.

Destruction of British aircraft yesterday, which Germans totaled at 132, was accomplished in part by the bombing and firing of two score on the ground at British airports before they ever had a chance to get into the air, the Germans said.

They pointed to this as indicating an approaching parallel to the blitzkrieg that paralyzed Polish and French air fleets.

German smashes at the centers of British air resistance was reported in the high command's communique. It said numerous hangars, barracks, oil tanks and equipment were blasted and burned yesterday in bombardments of airfields at Eastchurch and Detling, where the British back up their Dover and Thames defenses, at Andover and Odiham, where planes to protect the big Portsmouth naval base are massed, and at Farnborough and Middlewallop in south England.

Besides, armament plants at Exeter and Plymouth, and wharves at Walsend, Bournemouth and Plymouth on the south, and Hartlepool on the east were hit, the communique said.

Informed sources described the damage in these, "the most successful raids" yet against England, as "tremendous."

Boy, 14, Stunned By Lightning

Loue Heon, 14, son of the proprietor of Chevy Chase Lake, George Heon, was stunned yesterday when lightning struck a spot about 100 feet from where he was standing, in the yard of his home.

Dr. Thomas K. Conrad, of Bethesda, gave the boy treatment for shock and reported his condition last night was "not serious." Only evidence of the bolt were two small black marks on young Heon's arm.

R. A. F. Blasts Nazi Bases on Channel

"official spokesman" as calling the British reports "a midsummer night's dream. The English mind is full of fantasy.]

German warplanes struck in waves, dropping bombs over the southeast and southern coasts, in the southwest, the mildands and even in Wales.

But the Channel ports again were hardest hit.

A German raider dropped a bomb 10 feet in front of an express train in the suburbs of heavily raided Southampton, derailing engine and baggage car and injuring three passengers.

At Dover, the Nazis blasted away at barrage balloons.

At Hastings, famed as the landing place of William the Conqueror in 1066, several people were injured fatally, but the communique said enemy activity today was "much less pronounced."

Last night the air ministry announced that in a day of attack and counter attack in the skies 26 German planes had gone down in flames and four British fighting craft had been lost.

Giant flashes that lit the sky over the English Channel coast told of the thundering explosions with which British bombers paid back in kind for the pounding of southeastern England.

The British attack apparently ranged from Calais, a score of miles across the Channel from Dover, to the big port of Le Havre.

From an observation point at the southeastern tip of England the dull thud of bombing could be heard as an undertone to the siren scream.

Searchlights pierced up into the darkness in long luminous fingers, both on the French and English sides of the Channel that has become the No Man's Land of the Battle of Britain.

Somewhere between Calais and Le Havre glowed the light of a huge fire—like the half-risen sun.

In one hour more than 100 bomb flashes were seen along the coast of France.

Overhead there was the drone of airplane motors, but Britain's own alert coastal guards reported no signs of new German attack.

The Royal Air Force, desperately fighting off the German attacks here at home, likewise reported new and damaging blows Tuesday night at aircraft factories in four Axis cities—at Dessau and Bernsburg in Germany; at Turin and Milan in Italy—and the bombardment of German munitions plants at Lunen and Grevenbroich.

Struck by British bombers, too, were objectives in Germany's industrial Ruhr and 14 airdromes in German and German-held territory.

The R. A. F.'s raids on German and Italian aircraft and munitions plants were described here as highly successful.

It was declared officially that the Caproni factory at Milan and the Fiat plant in Turin, "two of Italy's most vital aircraft workers" were "smashed" and set afire.

The great Junkers factory at Dessau, said an air ministry bulletin, was systematically pounded in relays for more than an hour, the attacking British using parachute flares to observe the results of their work.

At Bernsberg both explosive and incendiary bombs were poured down on the Junkers factory—where, said the air ministry, "airframes for Junkers dive-bombers and (airplane) troop transports are produced."

Part of a building on an adjoining airdrome was said to have been smashed "in a shower of debris."

In the German munitions plants at Lunen and Grevenbrioch, it was said, a series of fires sprang up. At Grevenbroich, a heavy explosion also was reported.

Yesterday was the fourth successive day of almost ceaseless air raids—raids which kept the gray skies full of clamor—and as before the south and southeast coasts were the Nazis' special targets.

In a single 90-minute battle, 80 German bombers broke through the coastal defenses, under the protective wings of a cloud of fighter planes, to drop bombs inland.

In another screechng engagement, a total of 150 planes—attackers and defenders—tossed angrily in the low and scudding clouds.

One of the hardest-hit of all areas today was the industrial Midlands, where swarms of raiders dropped ton upon ton of bombs, many of them striking homes. In this section alone, at lease five persons were killed.

were badly damaged by bombs which caused fires and explosions.)

The British, according to Italian sources, unloaded their explosives at random. Yet the raid is certainly the talk of the day everywhere in Italy. The people have been greatly impressed with the fact that the British succeeded in flying unmolested all the way from England.

Leaflets Reprinted

The text of the leaflet dropped during the raid was printed on the front page of every newspaper as a proof of "British stupidity."

"Italians!" said the leaflet dropped on Turin, "to obtain the freedom and liberty of Italy your forefathers rose in arms against the tyrants and chased out of Piedmont and Lombardy their ancient enemy—the Germans. Today, unfortunately, Italy is not a free and independent nation in this war which you have not wanted. Italy is a vassal state of Hitler's. Why are you at war? For a greater Italy? Not at all. You are at war to make Hitler stronger and enable him to exploit you Italians for his war."

"Italians!" said the leaflets dropped on Milan, "who plunged you into this war? Are you slaves, to bow before your hereditary enemy—Germany? You had beter open your eyes because war, with its terror, is at your door."

There is no mistaking the indignation which the air raids have caused here, and it is any easy guess that reprisals will be attempted soon.

[Fascist quarters boasted that Italian planes were capable of flying from bases in Italy with full loads of bombs "much farther than the British Isles and said if the British unloose another raid Premier Mussolini's air force will "swarm" over Britain's cities, the United Press said.

[It was reported reliably that "strong representations" will be made to the Swiss government should another air raid on Italy be carried out by British bombers passing over Switzerland.]

West Estate Goes To Sons, Husband

The husband and two sons of the testatrix are the only beneficiaries under the will of Mrs. Nina Van Arsdale West, of Chevy Chase, which has been admitted to probate in the Orphans' Court at Rockville.

The son, Vernon eskridge West, jr., and William Van Arsdale West, received jewelry, and $3,000 is left in trust to complete their education. What is left of the fund is to be turned over to them when they reach the age of 21.

The husband, Vernon Eskridge West, is bequeathed the residence at 23 Hesketh street, Chevy Chase, for life. Upon his death it is to go to the sons.

The instrument was executed October 25, 1935, and names the husband executor.

the Aegean Sea.

[These reports, which did not find support from any other source, said there was "no sign Greece would resist such an Italian advance. London quarters believed, too, that Russia's attitude would immobilize Turkey, which otherwise probably would be quick to oppose any move by the Axis powers toward the Dardanelles.]

No Mobilization

Although tomorrow is a national religious holiday, hundreds of Greek government officials made plans to work as usual—despite the lack of any mobilization order.

The government-controlled Athens press answered with hot words the attacks of Italian newspapers, using the terms "willful distortion of facts . . . slanderous campaign . . . evil manifestation."

Some government officials privately drew a parallel between the Italian press campaign and that launched by German newspapers before the Nazi invasion of Poland, Norway, Belgium and Holland.

Germany and Italy apparently are not only demanding that this country break away from Great Britain—which has guaranteed to support Greek independence against attack—but German quarters said the Italian minister has insisted as well that Greece enter directly into Italy's sphere of influence.

Refuses to Junk Pact

Greece yesterday was reported to have refused to abrogate her treaty of friendship with Britain.

Metaxas' night conferences with the chief of staff, Gen. Papagos, and his ministers were without precedent for him. They followed a crowded day in which he had received the German and Italian ministers and talked for 2 hours with government officials.

There were authoritative reports that hundreds of Albanians living in the Ioannina district have been arrested by the Greek police on charges of plotting against Greek rule. The Italian press has asserted that Ioannina is rightfully a part of Albania, now encompassed in the Fascist empire.

Press Steps Up Drive

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Aug. 14.—The anti-Greek campaign today continued stronger than yesterday while authoritative newspapers specified Italy's claims over Greek territory. Those claims apparently embrace the Greek west coast, which the Italians assert was never Greek, and not only the Ciamuria region.

There is a clear desire to ignore Greece's calm attitude. Dispatches from Tirana, Albania, announced that "Greek attacks against Albanians are not decreasing" and that "other Albanians of Ciamuria have been taken to Jannina jail for being guilty of having lent a hand to espionage activities of the Greek authorities."

Claims over Yugoslavia also are being made although, as far, there has been no direct attack against that country. The Popolo di Roma today writes that the "sector running from the Adriatic to the Black Sea will be included in the construction of the new Europe."

It is clear, says the newspaper, that Albania must be satisfied, and Italy, when the Balkan settlement is made, "shall break the chains that for many years have bound the Albanian people."

The alleged murder of the Albanian "patriot," Daut Hoggia, which was the starting signal for the present crisis is stated to be only one link in the chain of intrigues instigated by England, with Greece's help, against the Axis.

Cudahy Denies He Was Rebuked

Won't Resign, Envoy Says After Visit To White House

John Cudahy, American Ambassador to Belgium, came out of President Roosevelt's office after an hour and a half talk yesterday saying he had not been rebuked for his recent interview and sticking to his story that a famine is threatened in Belgium this year.

"I am authorized to say," the envoy told newsmen, "that there has been no rebuke administered to me and none intended."

"I have no intention of resigning and see no reason to believe I will be asked to resign," declared the diplomat who was reprimanded by the State Department and called home after interviews in London in which he was quoted as comparing American soldiers unfavorably with German soldiers and reflecting on the British food blockade of Europe.

The absolution was made complete when Cudahy called later on Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles and drew from him a formal statement to the press that Cudahy had not been reprimanded and that so far as the State Department is concerned, the incident is "closed."

Cudahy said he had complained to the President "most emphatically" for the State Department's action in disavowing his remarks.

"But it was explained," he reported. "There was no question of a rebuke."

Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles issued a statement August 9 which said:

"The Ambassador's interview was given without prior authorization from, or without prior notification to, the Department of State.

"The interview given was in violation of standing instructions of the Department of State, and certain of the views expressed by the Ambassador are not to be construed as representing the views of this Government."

Tired and tense after two months in occupied Belgium, which he said "wasn't so soft," Cudahy declared that "without question Belgium is facing very hard rations by October 1."

"Belgium imports 75 per cent of her wheat supplies, her main food staple," he said. "Supplies will be all gone before the next harvest."

Cudahy said he had come home on accrued leave, on orders issued July 19, before the disputed interview. His return, he said, was dictated by German absorption of Belgium and he returned to Washington under the same circumstances as other diplomats whose posts had fallen into Nazi hands.

Expressing mystification over the furore caused by his reported statements, Cudahy insisted he had been "victimized."

Hasn't Seen Report

Asked whether he thought he had been misquoted in the official report on his interview sent to the State Department, which provided the basis for the reprimand delivered by Welles, Cudahy said he had not read the report yet.

After leaving the White House, Cudahy crossed West Executive avenue for a late afternoon interview with Welles.

The Ambassador planned to go to New York to clean up some business and then go to his Granville, Wisc., home for a rest.

As the envoy was being absolved at the White House, the California American Legion convention by resolution urged his removal, the Associated Press reported from San Diego.

The resolution demanded his resignation for his "gratuitous insult to the armed forces."

This Is the Payoff— And a Headache, Too

HE LOST ON ROOSEVELT—Ambassador to Belgium John Cudahy (left) had a real headache yesterday at the White House. He had to pay three $100 bills to Brig. Gen. E. M. Watson, secretary to the President, because he bet that President Roosevelt would not be a candidate for a third term

Police Capture Parolee in Shooting of Det. Sergt. Baker

When the officers approached Thompson, their guns drawn, he threw up his hands and said, "Here I am. Come and get me," they reported.

Police Find Weapon

Late yesterday afternoon police found Detective Baker's service revolver, with which he was shot, and arrested a 26-year-old colored man who said Thompson had given it to him.

Raymond W. Dickinson, colored, 26, took Policeman W. E. McCarten, Ninth Precinct, and Detective Sergts. E. E. Scott and George Thornton to First and I streets northeast, where the gun was cached. This was after he was arrested at his home, 622 Second street northeast, the officers stated.

Dickinson said Thompson appeared at his home about 2 a. m. yesterday with the bloody gun in his hand, saying he had a tussle with a policeman and took the gun away from him.

"Do you want it?" Dickinson quoted Thompson, according to the arresting officers.

Baker's .38 caliber service revolver was found in heavy brush against a fence. One bullet had been fired from it. There were no fingerprints on the weapon.

Baker's Condition Serious

Dickinson was held without charge last night, denying any knowledge of the shooting.

Dr. W. Warren Sager, police surgeon, said last night the detective's condition had improved following a blood transfusion. The doctor stated that early yesterday it was believed Baker's right arm would have to be amputated, the bullet having severed a main artery, crippling the muscles.

Last night the doctor said he believed the arm had been saved and Baker had a chance to recover. His condition, however, was still serious.

The detective was shot with his own revolver, allegedly by Thompson, about 12:30 a. m. The attack occurred a few doors from the corner of Fourth and O streets northwest.

Courage His Undoing

Baker's indomitable courage which won him two medals and promotions was blamed last night for his serious condition. Doctors said had he not chased his quarry for almost a block after receiving the wound he would not have lost so much blood.

Baker collapsed in front of 427 Neal street northwest, and lay unaided until police received an anonymous telephone message to "meet a citizen" in front of that address.

The detective started after Thompson, whom he wanted in connection with several recent housebreakings, at Fourth and N streets northwest. Thompson was in the rear of a sedan which was occupied by two other men. When the suspect saw Baker, he jumped from the car and ran.

In an alley behind 1314 Fourth street northwest, Baker caught the man after the latter ran through a barbed wire fence. On the way to a call box at Fourth and O, Thompson struggled and both men went down. Baker's gun fell from his pocket, was snatched up by the colored man and fired point blank at the detective who was on his back, according to police reports.

Still conscious when fellow policemen arrived, Baker identified his assailant and a city-wide manhunt began.

In less than an hour Thompson was traced to a brother's home in the 900 block First street northeast, where he asked for money, and to a sister's home in the 1300 block U street northwest, where he washed blood from his hands and face, the police reported. In each case he had gone just before detectives arrived.

During the early-morning chase, detectives arrested the two men in the car with Thompson and recovered the automobile in the 1200 block Linden street northeast. One of the fugitive's brothers also was taken into custody.

Thompson was paroled from Lorton Reformatory December 15, 1938, after serving two years of a five-year term for housebreaking, according to Hugh Rivers, executive secretary of the Parole Board.

Third Such Attack Here

Since his parole, until three weeks ago, Thompson was employed as a presser in a tailoring establishment. Police learned he quit his job the day after a prison companion was released from Lorton. It was about this time that stolen property began appearing at pawn shops, pledged, according to police, by the suspect.

Baker's shooting is the third case of policemen being attacked by colored men here since June 14, when Park Policeman Ivan Thompson was shot to death with his own gun.

Policeman L. R. Henson suffered a jaw fracture early last Monday when he was beaten with his own nightstick by a colored man. In the melee, Henson shot his assailant.

Twice Decorated

Sergt. Baker twice was decorated for bravery in the line of duty by the Commissioners. He received gold medal in 1935 for shooting Morris C. Beck, the "blackface bandit," during the holdup of the Blue Bell Cafe, on Bladensburg road northeast. Baker's first citation came about 8 years ago when he crawled across an ironing board from one building to another to apprehend an armed youth who had been holding a crowd of police at bay with a gun.

Sergt. Baker is married and has two stepchildren. He lives at 2837 Monroe street northeast.

"BEST USED CAR DEAL IN TOWN"

Noble, Organizer Of CAA, Resigns

In reply, the President congratulated Noble on his work as chairman of the CAA and Undersecretary of Commerce and then said:

"I am grateful to you for your offer to help in the field of national defense."

The President's letter ended with this significant sentence:

"In the event you find yourself with free or spare time on hand after November, I trust you will let me know if I can be of assistance to you then."

This remark, subject to various interpretations, was taken as confirmation of reports that Noble will try for the Senate seat of Francis T. Maloney, a moderate New Dealer, whose term expires this year.

The Noble resignation followed reports that there have been differences between him and Secretary Hopkins on policies, especially in regard to civil aviation, which Noble handled.

"I Understand His Move"

Hopkins, nevertheless, issued the following statement:

"I am terribly sorry that Mr. Noble is leaving the Government but I understand the reasons behind his move. Ed knows how much I appreciate the work he did in the department."

Noble strenuously opposed the transfer of CAA to the Commerce Department, effected this year in a White House reorganization order.

After reports that he would resign, Noble accepted the post of Undersecretary, where he was charged with "revitalizing" the 37-year-old department.

In his letter to the President Noble said:

"Because my resignation comes in the midst of a political campaign I am especially anxious that the record show that political partisanship has had no part in either my entering or leaving the Government service. As we have always understood, I have always been and continue to be a member of the Republican Party. But like many other Republicans I admire the breadth of spirit you have brought to public problems and the understanding courage of your foreign policy."

Three Big Jobs Open

Resignation of Noble will leave three topflight executive jobs open soon: his Undersecrtaryship, the Postmaster Generalship and the Agriculture portfolio, which Secretary Wallace is expected to relinquish before he accepts the Vice Presidential nomination August 28.

Louis Johnson, replaced as Assistant War Secretary by a Republican, was scheduled to see the President today and may be offered one of the jobs.

Both Official Scores of Plane Losses—Take Your Choice

By the Associated Press

The official—and conflicting—box score on five days of furious aerial fighting as issued by Berlin and London:

	German Claims		British Claims
	British Lost	German Lost	German Lost	British Lost
Thursday	49	10	60	16
Sunday	93	21	65	26
Monday	89	24	62	13
Tuesday	132	28	78	13
Wednesday	22	5	26	4
Totals	385	93	291	72

In addition to the 140 German planes which Britain claims the R. A. F. downed on Monday and Tuesday, officials said tonight "probably" another 140 had been destroyed.

Approaches Production Totals

Splitting the difference between the conflicting claims would indicate Britain is losing planes at the rate of about 54 a day and Germany at the rate of 43.

On the basis of a mean struck between the rival claims, Britain and Germany are losing aircraft at the rate of about 1,600 and 1,300 a month—a rate at least approaching their production capacity.

Here are the British and German versions of what information is required by each government before it lays formal claim to the destruction of an enemy airplane.

The Royal Air Force has dropped its earlier rule that no enemy plane would be marked down as destroyed unless two British pilots saw it crash.

In its place is a rule that the attacking British pilot must be prepared to pledge his word that he has destroyed the enemy plane, and it will be listed to his credit provided he saw it crash or break up in the air. This pledge, it is declared, is now a point of honor for the corps.

It was said that in the sort of continuous dogfight now going on over England it is impossible to follow the policy of corroboration.

Germany's Method

Every German flier who shoots down an English plane must have the verification of two witnesses before he receives recognition for the victory.

This is a German air force principle, military sources say, adding:

"Every battle and pursuit squadron has been sternly instructed to report only such planes definitely shot down for which there have been two witnesses."

Such successes, it was said, are then reported in service messages via the air corps to the air fleet headquarters, then to the air force general staff for final check.

Navy to Double Pilot Output

Three New Bases Planned

Enlargement of the local base is a part of a large scale program which involves the construction of three new reserve bases and the expansion of 13 existing fields. A total of 1,800 new pilots can be handled by the Navy monthly with the completion of the work, for which $10,000,000 has been appropriated by Congress.

With the completion of two new bases at Jacksonville, Fla. and Corpus Christi, Tex., for basic and advanced training, together with the expansion of the existing school at Pensacola, Fla., about 800 graduates from the elimination schools can be trained monthly.

The latter are being enlarged beyond present needs, it was said, to permit a large increase in "refresher" training for reserve pilots who live in the vicinity of elimination training bases.

Urged by Special Board

The expansion program was recommended by a special naval board and approved by Secretary Knox. In urging the increase of facilities at Anacostia and the leasing of the subsidiary field, the board proposed:

"At some future date, when time and other considerations warrant, consideration will be given to the acquisition of a field, located between Baltimore and Washington, for the exclusive use of the naval reserve aviation base."

The present base now uses facilities of the regular naval air station at Anacostia.

Trained Noses Of Gas Officers Sniff to Victory

By a Staff Correspondent

Rensselaer Falls, Aug. 14.—Gas officers of the Twenty-ninth Division saw action today for the first time since maneuvers began. In a conference at division headquarters the trained noses of the entire gas staff twitched suddenly as one. Following the noses, heads turned in unison toward the tent of Lieut. Col. Peyton G. Nevitt, adjutant general of the District of Columbia. A wisp of smoke was curling from the fly.

Together the gas officers rushed across to Col. Nevitt's tent, snatched up his water bucket and doused the smoldering fire. They discovered it had been set by concentrated sunlight from a magnifying shaving mirror hanging to the tent pole.

D. C. Kiwanis Head Enrolls in Willkie Campaign Club

Frank L. Peckham, president of the Washington Kiwanis Club, was enrolled yesterday as a member of the Willkie-McNary Campaign Club, Republican State Committee of the District of Columbia, President James A. Councilor announced last night.

Peckham has been assigned to rally local Kiwanians to the Willkie forces. In a statement issued immediately after his enrollment, Peckham said:

"This is more than a fight to determine which of two men shall be President or which of two political parties shall triumph at the polls. It is a last-stand battle to save the American system of government. We who believe in Americanism must defeat the Roosevelt coalition made up of isms which together mean totalitarianism."

Finnish Legislator Due Here for Relief Parley

Miss Kyllikki Pahjala, member of the Finnish Parliament, is expected in Washington today to confer with leaders of Finnish relief activities. During the Russo-Finnish hostilities, she took an active part in war-relief. She is noted for her work on social welfare legislation.

D. C. Repeats Ban On Blood Tests To Virginians

The Health Department yesterday stated it would not cooperate with local physicians requesting blood tests for Virginia couples who must comply with that State's new marriage laws.

Health Officer George C. Ruhland said a Richmond couple had sought a blood test for venereal disease. The doctor sent the sample to the Health Department's laboratory, which was instructed not to perform the test by Dr. Ruhland.

He reiterated his recent warning to Virginia couples not to apply to the local laboratory, which is supported by Washington taxpayers. The couple apparently thought submission for a test through a local physician would be acceptable. It was explained the Virginia health laboratories are now overtaxed, due to the new law, and that couples are in hopes the District could make the test in the interests of time.

Wesley Ruggles to Wed

Hollywood, Aug. 14 (AP).—Friends said Wesley Ruggles, film director and former husband of Arline Judge, and Marcelle Rogez, French actress, would fly to Las Vegas, Nev., tonight to be married.

Hungary Envoys Leave for Parley With Rumanians

Budapest, Aug. 14 (AP).—A Hungarian delegation left for Turnu-Severin, Rumania, tonight to begin formal negotiations this week-end with King Carol's representatives over Hungary's claims for the return of the rich Transylvanian province.

Pessimism was apparent in Hungarian quarters. Diplomatic sources expressed belief the conference was destined to fail and would be followed by German arbitration.

Andreas De Hory, former minister to Warsaw and Rome, headed the Hungarian delegation, which wants three-fourths of Transylvania. Rumania has offered to return only a small frontier strip combined with wholesale minority population transfers.

DAY OR NIGHT

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Tumult and Shouting Dies, Captains et al. Depart

"Virginia" Troupe Steals Away in the Night; Warners to Make "Conscription" Picture; This, that and the Other About the Theater

SUCH SUN-GREETERS as may have been up around the tender hour of 6 a. m., yesterday might have been witness to one of the greatest migrations of Hollywood great and near-great the Capital ever has seen at any hour. It happened that Washington was chief transfer point for that notable group of players who have practically wound up their location labors on Paramount's "Virginia," which has been "shooting" down around Charlottesville for almost a month now.

BELL

Fred MacMurray, male star of the picture; Stirling Hayden, the new "discovery," who plays the second male lead, and Producer-Director Edward H. Griffith were the trail-blazers who led the cast of 14 westward in a specially chartered plane that ought to be in Hollywood by now. Madeleine Carroll, feminine star, was a little more mysterious in her movements. Nobody seemed to know whether Miss Carroll would take off at 4:15 a. m. or skim into New York and soar back to the Paramount lot from there. Either way, she also probably is 3,000 miles away by this time.

There is still some "mopping up" to be done in and around Charlottesville, under the direction of Cullen Tate, in charge of the second unit of the company. But the "big show," to all intents and purposes, is over. Paul Hurst, Louise Beavers, Leigh Whipper and Darby Jones stole a bit of a march on the others by beating the gun and getting away by train a day or two in advance.

More than a month of filming on "Virginia" remains to be done in California. So now you know.

With the blondely gracious and intensely witty Madeleine Carroll in-their-midsting since July 17, it is highly probable that life never again will be the same for the lads around the University of Virginia campus, now that she is gone. Once you have met Miss Carroll, you do not eliminate her from memory with any single swipe of the eraser.

It is being inkled about here and there that the Warner Brothers will be the first of the major producers to hit the market with a picture dealing with the new United States Army conscription measures, the CMTC and other civilian training groups. It will be called "You're in the Army Now"—which is far enough for any discreet title to go, if you remember the rest of the lyrics of that ribald old song of the last war. Bryan Foy, eldest son of the late lamented Eddie, will produce, with a director still to be named. Penciled in for the leading roles are such as Ronald Reagan, Dennis Morgan, Wayne Morris, Frank McHugh, Alan Hale and Brenda Marshall. Some of that sounds a little like "The Fighting 69th." Hope it will be as good.

And speaking of such, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Loew's, Inc., closely affiliated, of course, are the first to assure any and all of their employes who are called to the colors of the return of their jobs when their service hitches have run out. This item of company policy, affecting a large number of employes in the National Capital, was communicated yesterday to Eastern Division Manager Carter Barron, of Loew's, Inc., and Rudolph Berger, manager of the M.-G.-M. Washington Branch Film Exchange, by President Nicholas M. Schenck, of Loew's.

We had a fairly definite hunch that it was a pretty funny bit of nonsense when we virtually stole a midnight preview of it with Manager Hardie Meakin a while back—not the most hilarious picture ever made, but hilarious enough for all reasonable purposes. So "The Boys from Syracuse" is going a second week at RKO-Keith's. That eminent old trouper and popular local barytone, Fred East, for example, sat through the frolic twice at one session and laughed off two pounds and a half! Paid his way in, too. So while "The Boys" are romping through a second week, Manager Meakin is romping away on a vacation—the lucky this-and-that!

Those intrepid patrons of the Earle Theater who enjoyed hearing their vocalizations recorded in the "Sing-a-Song-with-Mike" interval of public yodeling, will be given another week's whirl at it. The recordings will be continued through the week beginning Friday, with Eileen Ritter doing the coaxing and leading the chants, when, as and if necessary. And thanks to her, by the way, for the pleasant note, bearing lightly on the same topic.

Personal-Aside-to-the-Management Note

Some time, when you want to empty the house in a hurry, I'll get up there and sing you a song myself—I hope not!

Little

"Where do leading men come from, oh thou all-knowing-filmgoer-whose - omniscience - is - so - vastly-overrated?"

Well, my che-ild, back in 1936 most of them were in "Rose Marie," which the Little yesterday drew from its protective covering to satisfy the demanding storm for musical films. Sharing top honors with Jeanette MacDonald after their success in "Naughty Marietta" was Nelson Eddy. James Stewart hadn't yet gone to Washington as Mr. Smith, nor had he met Dietrich in "Destry Rides Again," but he was in the cast. Allan Jones had no thought of prancing about in a city-slicker version of "A Comedy of Errors" titled "The Boys from Syracuse," so he, too, sang sweet operatic nothings to the arch MacDonald. And a chap named David Nivens hadn't then dropped the final "s" of his last name and disappeared into an army fighting an amoral misogynist. He was in there, too.

The vehicle which employed all these suave deceivers had other claims of promise. It had a score by Rudolf Friml that included the widely-loved "Indian Love Call," which was to befuddle a Cabinet member on 1940's Information Please. "Rose Marie I Love You," had already sung itself around the globe and there was opportunity to interpolate a smidget of opera, an air from Puccini's "Tosca," staged by the Metropolitan's William von Wymetal. It had a script by Alice Duer Miller and Albert Hackett from the Harbach-Hammerstein play. It also had Gilda Gray, her vengeful shimmy, Reginald Owen, Alan Mowbray, Herman Bing and Una O'Connor.

And now all this prodigality is back at the Little to bewilder the economist in you. R. L. C.

No Wear or Tear!

GRACE McDONALD has her stockings painted on with make-up after having wrecked 66 pairs of hose in seven dance sequences for Paramount's "Dancing on a Dime."

Two Unsuspected Carpet-Cutters

ROSALIND RUSSELL AND BRIAN AHERNE, of all people cut loose a few didoes on the Universal lot between scenes of "Hired Wife." This jive session has no place in the picture, but merely represents a slight ebullience of spirit on the part of its costars. After "The Women," one might have suspected Miss Russell, but not Mr. Aherne, after "Juarez"—which just goes to show you never can tell!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Aug. 14.

If the spirit of the people making a picture is transferred to the celluloid, and I know it is, Boris Morros is going to be pretty happy when "Second Chorus" is previewed. I've never seen Fred Astaire so gay, debonaire, or happy on a set. Everybody calls him "Fred"—he's one of the gang. Paulette Goddard kids the life out of him, and wraps up as neat a package of sex as I've witnessed since the old Clara Bow days. The dance they do together was put in the can in two hours, after three takes.

HOPPER

They've got half a dozen of Paramount's top people, including cameraman Theodore Sparkuhl and makeup wizard Dotty Ponedel, because Paulette won't do a picture without her. She's the only star who's been able to get Dotty off the home lot. Marlene Dietrich, and Jean Arthur both tried, but Paulette didn't—she just sat down and said "I'll wait for Dotty." And after the first week of shooting, handed her a check for $500 and said, "Well, this won't buy you an automobile, but it will help."

Burgess Meredith is playing a part not nearly the size he usually gets, and even he was passing out lemonade and popcorn. And Director Hank Potter, even in the broiling sun, wore a grin from ear to ear. Now, that's the way to make pictures.

The chief Judge picking "Miss California" at the Venice Mardi Gras was none other than Sir Cedric Hardwicke.

When Andy Stone, who's directing "There's Magic in Music," asked me how I liked that soft soothing music after every race at the Hollywood track, I told him he must be hearing things—the only song I ever heard was "I'm Waiting for Ships That Never Come In."

I've found three mothers who believe in the magic of Hollywood. They've mothered three sets of twins who work in "the Quarterback" and play Wayne Morris and his twin brother at different ages. They all caught an item in this column and thought, "Shucks, there's no use sending in pictures, but we'll do it anyway." Ages range from 20 days to 15 months, then two years, and the resemblance to Wayne Morris is striking—so much so that an extra girl made the remarkable remark, "Gee, that guy must have a bicycle!"

One good picture did it. After Gene Raymond's hit in "Cross Country Romance," he gets third part with Carole Lombard, and Bob Montgomery in "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," and the lucky trio have Alfred Hitchcock directing.

Nice to watch Jack Oakie in stride again. Chaplain did it when he gave him that part in "The Dictator." Everybody told Charlie that he'd act up, so Jack decided he'd show him—and did. After "Young People" with Shirley Temple, he's wanted for another as soon as he finished "Little Men."

And speaking of Chaplin's "Dictator," he's finally licked the finish. Hitler's been set for an address to the world over the radio. Through some unforeseen happening, he can't make it, and Chaplin, as one of his stooges, gets on and does the speech for him.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Aug. 14 (INS).—When a movie company planks down $15,000 for an original script, you know it's good.

PARSONS

That's what M.-G.-M. paid Edmund Hartmann for "Female of the Species," and not without a battle, for several other companies were also trying to buy it. The deal was signed, sealed and delivered yesterday, and Myrna Loy will make it as her next movie following "Third Finger Left Hand." The idea sounds like a good one.

Myrna plays the wife of a professor of psychology and is so attractive that all the college students fall for her. The husband, a mild person, resents it after a time, but Myrna cashes in on it by going to New York and helping him sell his book on psychology, but not without a lot of complications. A man of the Ian Hunter type is required, and why not Ian? He is certainly a good actor.

There is no producer in the entire picture business who discovered and brought to fame more stars and directors than Winfield Sheehan. During the course of the many years he was head of Fox he discovered Janet Gaynor, Spencer Tracy, Shirley Temple, Charlie Farrell, Henry Fonda and Paul Muni, as well as Directors John Ford, Raoul Walsh, Henry King, Irving Cummings, David Butler and many, many others. A plan is now afoot to have a big testimonial dinner for Winnie, which all the people who ever worked for him will attend.

Buddy de Sylva couldn't get Shirley Temple for the wonder cheeild" in his Cole Porter musical, "Panama Hattie"—but he has walked off with little Joan Carroll, the juvenile riot of "Primrose Path." The deal was closed yesterday with RKO for Buddy to borrow her, and if you ask me I think he deserves a pat on the back for also giving Jimmy Dunn his comeback chance in this show with Ethel Merman.

All aliens in the United States, and that includes former Queens, movie stars and ditch-diggers, must register between next August 27 and December 26 as a measure of national defense. We have many aliens among the movie stars. All of them, as guests of Uncle Sam, are fully protected by our laws, but failure to register will result in a fine or imprisonment or both. Charles Boyer, one of the most popular motion picture actors on the screen, has already said that he would be one of the first to register. Interestingly enough, Dorothy Dennell Calhoun, formerly a well-known magazine writer, is in this department of the Government, and she writes, "Millions of people read Louella Parsons and will do what she tells them. So will you tell all alien stars to register early and show their good will and affection for Uncle Sam?" So there you are, friend aliens, save yourselves future trouble and register.

Snapshots of Hollywood Collected at Random: Fay Wray and Al Hall, latest Hollywood twosome, rumbaing until the wee sma' hours at Bill Jordan's Bar of Music; George Brent's latest gift to Ann Sheridan is a crescent and star diamond antique necklace; Vivien Leigh has rented the house in Coldwater Canyon where Dorothy Parker formerly lived; don't underestimate the Helen Vinson-Lew Ayres romance—it's hot. They were at the Esquire Theater holding hands the other eve; Bubbles Schinasi, who is night clubbing practically every eve, stepping out with Pere Westmore. Pere, by the way, has become a family man since his daughter, Norma, came to live with him.

Eleanor Powell's mother has told friends that her dancing daughter will retire when she marries Merrill Pye. That's difficult to believe; that was Dan Dailey with Judy Garland at Victor Hugo's Sunday night; Nan Grey is flying East to join Jockey Westrope, her husband, at Saratoga; Betty Grable is suffering with a bad cold; Terry Hunt will act in the Pete Smith short based on his health emporium; Laraine Day and Sidney Guilaroff are back from New York and 'tis said they have set their wedding day; Linda Darnell and Alan Gordon talking things over at Victor Hugo's.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

"I LOVE YOU AGAIN." William Powell and Myrna Loy play this comedy of an amnesia victim and his unexpected wife, opening tomorrow morning at the Palace Theater. Eight years before the story opens Powell was a gay bachelor. By an accident he loses his memory, but wakens to find he's a prize stuffed-shirt and the husband of smart Myrna Loy. She threatens divorce if he doesn't lay aside his prim principles and become once again the fun-loving man she married. Others in the cast are Frank McHugh, Edmund Lowe, Donald Douglas, Nella Walker, "Alfalfa" Switzer and Pierre Watkin. W. S. Van Dyke 2d directed.

Earle

"THEY DRIVE BY NIGHT." George Raft, Ann Sheridan, Humphrey Bogart and Ida Lupino are the central figures in this comedy-drama of truck-driving and its little-known thrills. Roscoe Karns, Gale Page, Joyce Compton, Henry O'Neill, George Tobias and John Litel are featured. The Earle's "Sing-a-Song-With-Mike" feature will again offer free recordings to the volunteer vocalists, while the stage bill will be headlined by Gene Austin, radio stage and screen singer. The Sherrell Sisters, Ames and Arno, dancing comics; the Three Music Masters, Jimmy Raye and the Roxyettes are the other stage entertainers. Opens tomorrow morning.

Capitol

"SOUTH OF PAGO PAGO." Jon Hall returns in the type of role which established him in "Hurricane" in this story of the South Seas which costars Frances Farmer and Victor McLaglen. The tragedy brought by white men in their search for pearls to the natives of the unspoiled islands forms the theme of the plot. Olympe Bradna and Gene Lockhart are featured. Jack Durant, whose bantering mimicry has become a favorite with Capitol audiences returns to headline the stage revue which further includes the Jack Cole Dancers; Ken Harvey and his novel "Vibralectron;" Barytone Fague Springman and the Rhythm Rockets. Opens tomorrow morning.

RKO-Keith's

"THE BOYS FROM SYRACUSE." This musical farce, stemming from last season's popular musical-comedy of the same name and from Shakespeare's "A Comedy of Errors," continues for a second week at the Fifteenth street house. Allan Jones, Irene Hervey, Martha Raye, Joe Penner, Alan Mowbray and Eric Blore head the cast. Rogers and Hart have added two new numbers to their original score. The "March of Time's" discussion on the Dutch East Indies, "Spoils of Conquest" also continues.

Metropolitan

A WALT DISNEY FESTIVAL, consisting of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" and four of the short color cartoons comes to F street after a smashing boxoffice records at New York's Criterion. "Ferdinand, the Bull," the Three Little Pigs in "The Practical Pig," Donald Duck in "Donald's Lucky Day" and "The Ugly Duckling" are the short cartoons, while Paramount and Universal newsreels complete the promising bill. Opens tomorrow morning.

Columbia

"MARYLAND." Postponed for a week because of the holdover engagement of "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante," this Technicolor horse story returns after a week at the Palace. "Maryland's" climax was filmed last spring at the running of the Maryland Hunt. Fay Bainter, John Payne, Walter Brennan, Brenda Joyce and Hattie McDaniel are in the cast. Opens tomorrow morning.

Trans-Lux

"INFORMATION PLEASE." Deems Taylor is guest expert for the second time in this latest release of the popular short subjects. "Our Constitution," a two-reel dramatization on the signing of the historic document, has its first local run, while "Bone Trouble," a Disney cartoon, completes the short subjects on the newsreel bill. Opens tomorrow morning.

Roadside

"THE VIRGINIAN." "When you call me that, smile!" cries Owen Wister's hero to Trampas, the villain, in the Roadsiders' revival of this celebrated American classic, opening its two-week's engagement Monday evening on the Rockville Pike. After several years spent in clearing copyright difficulties Roadside has cast Richard Kreuzburg, Harold Stepler, Lansing Hall, Dick Walsh, Natalie Core, Kenn Romney and Maccubbin Waters in this story of the Wyoming Territory in the 1880's. "Murder in the Red Barn" continues through this Saturday evening.

Cross Roads

"WHAT A LIFE." The high-school comedy which introduced Henry Aldrich to widely-amused audiences continues for another week at the Virginia barn theater. Gordon Gray has the leading role, while the supporting comedy includes Phyllis Warner, Bud Firestone, Laura Allen, W. Julian Hatcher, L. Zaft Rogers, Sidney Bassler and Carolyn Rogers.

Willard Roof

"THE NIGHT OF JANUARY 16TH." Drawing its jury from its audience, this courtroom drama by Ayn Rand is being played on the top floor of the Willard Hotel Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at 9 o'clock. Maxine Mitchell, John Van Sikken, Frances Brunt, Morris Arkin, Elinor Evans, Thomas M. Cahill and Robert T. Miller head the cast.

Sylvan

THERE WILL BE NO performance at the Sylvan Theater next Tuesday evening. "Rip Van Winkle" will be played as the next Sylvan Festival offering the following Tuesday evening, August 27, by the Washington Players, assisted by The Vagabonds of Baltimore.

Open-Air

"THE AMAZING MR. WILLIAMS," a comedy costarring Melvyn Douglas and Joan Blondell, and "Exiled Express," with Anna Sten, form the double feature program current at the drive-in theater on the Richmond highway. Miss Sten's drama goes on the screen twice—at 8 and 10:55 p. m., while the comedy is shown but once, at 9:30 p. m.

Glen Echo

MIDWAY HOUSE, with its appeal to the children, is one of the busiest features at the amusement park. With rides, swings, slides and gadgets for the kiddies, the spot is a haven of safe economical fun. For dancing adults, Paul Kain and Adele Van are preparing a "Gay Nineties" feature for the Spanish Garden Ballroom.

Wilson Line

CRUISES by moonlight and daylight are scheduled by the S. S. Mount Vernon, whose Washington berth is at the Seventh street wharves. Trips down the Potomac to Marshall Hall amusement park with hour-and-a-half stopovers at Mount Vernon sail at 9:30 a. m. and 2 p. m. McWilliams' Orchestra plays for dancing on the moonlight cruises, sailing every evening except Mondays and Tuesdays at 8:30. Kiddies' days every Friday and Monday.

The New Yorker

By Rowland Brown Movie Director

[Leonard Lyons, regular conductor of this column, is vacationing.]

PERHAPS the only place in the world where lunatics not only are allowed in public parks but are paid a salary in the bargain is Hollywood, Calif.

THESE FUGITIVES from a madhouse populate the daffiness fringe of what is otherwise a necessary and valuable part of movietown's make-up. They indulge in antics that would turn a keeper's hair gray. They are to the talented press agent what a shyster lawyer is to a Pecora or Dewey.

WE SHOULD REALIZE, in a spirit of tolerance, that the press agent's lot is not always the happiest, because he's too handy to have around. He's always there to take the blame when a picture flops, which makes it possible for a producer to go right on being a genius no matter what happens. The producer takes the bows for the good ones, the press agent takes the blame for the bad ones. A happy arrangement.

THIS MAY BE why California booby-hatch keepers, surveying the Hollywood scene, rub their hands in anticipation of a bumper crop.

NEVERTHELESS, this does not alter the damage done by the brainless trust among press agents. A screwball with an axe is no laughing matter, no matter where he happens to be on the loose. What drove him nuts is beside the point.

THE EVIDENCE is worth examining. One fine night some months ago, Ann Sheridan waltzed into the theater to attend her picture's premiere. The lights blazed brightly along Hollywood boulevard. Sleek limousines in long lines pulled up beside the purple carpet. The autograph seekers were fairly drooling.

AS ANN hit the door, out of the crowd leaped a college boy, who with a "rah-rah" snapped handcuffs on her pretty wrist and quickly manacled himself to her. Before you could say "oomph" he cried out that he had swallowed the key and thereby had won his bet with the boys at Etta Bita Pi.

POLICEMEN rushed around in search of acetylene torches but a press agent (it's magic!) found a locksmith shop open (at 9 p. m.) and unhitched the unhappy Ann without even taking the trouble to make a duplicate key.

NOW SHOWMANSHIP is showmanship, I will grant, but where this aforementioned episode added one iota to Ann's prestige or a dollar to the boxoffice, I fail to see.

EXHIBIT "B" is that little episode of Madeleine Carroll's arrival from Europe. She stepped out of a plane towing a baby lion named, of all things, "Safari." Picture of the same name coincidental and no similarity, living or dead, intended. The gag itself is about as new as the milk bath, and so was received by the public.

A PLACE of honor is reserved for that little fiasco which attended Bette Davis' trip to Honolulu and Charles Boyer's to New York. The story went out that the studio, desperately in need of new sound track for a portion of the Davis-Boyer picture, was going to rerecord the scene via telephone, Honolulu to New York. Miraculously there appeared in the hands of Miss Davis, some 2,000 miles from Hollywood, a copy of the script. Boyer's script by courtesy of the New York office.

THAT SUCH a feat of recording, taken from the technical standpoint, was positively worthless could have been told by any high school physics student. Under perfect circumstances the conversation would have recorded as though spoken through a bamboo tube.

BUT AS IT happened, neither a high school boy nor the telephone company created disaster. It was fate, no less, that did it. For when Miss Davis got on her end of the line and Boyer got on his, they found themselves trying to play different scenes together. Somebody slipped them the wrong pages.

SO IT WOUND up with each of them inquiring after the other's health and politely hanging up the receiver. Newspapermen and photographers in New York unanimously voted to adjourn to Sloppy Joe's without further delay.

MISS CAROLE LANDIS came in, for a lot of space recently when she complained about "leg art." Her complaint was well staged. First, her press agent announced a dinner would be held in honor of her being named the "ping girl because she make you purr." Followed the next day an indignant advertisement in the Hollywood trade papers excoriating the p. a. and disavowing all sympathy with the idea. On top of this, she publicly begged editors to cease using her bathing suit pictures.

This maneuver, older than the camera itself, worked well without its whiskers. The Landis legs were in evidence on many pages. Had enough?

President Calls Study Youth's 'Patriotic Duty'

Students Advised Not to Quit School For Defense Jobs

President Roosevelt said yesterday that it is the "patriotic duty" of young people "to continue the normal course of their education unless and until they are called" for service to the Nation.

The Chief Executive made the statement in a letter to Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator. McNutt had reported a serious problem among universities and colleges because young people were interrupting their educations to enlist in the military forces or to take defense jobs.

The President wrote McNutt:

"Reports have reached me that some young people who have planned to enter college this fall, as well as a number of those who attended college last year, are intending to interrupt their education at this time because they feel that it is more patriotic to work in a shipyard, or to enlist in the Army or Navy, than it is to attend college. Such a decision would be unfortunate.

"Their Patriotic Duty"

"We must have well-educated and intelligent citizens who have sound judgment in dealing with the difficult problems of today.

"We must also have scientists, engineers, economists and other people with specialized knowledge to plan and to build for national defense as for social and economic progress.

"Young people should be advised that it is their patriotic duty to continue the normal course of their education unless and until they are called so that they will be well prepared for greatest usefulness to their country.

"They will be promptly notified if they are needed for another patriotic service."

Youth Training Program

A youth training program built in times and in terms of peace today provides Uncle Sam with an army of young men in national preparedness.

In use of arms, they have not been trained because the two agencies which encompass them—the CCC and the NYA, both devoted to fighting unemployment—have opposed anything even remotely akin to the "youth movements" of Europe's dictators.

Under Army conscription plans, some of them would be liable to compulsory military service. But 85 per cent of the CCC boys are under 21, the lower age limit of the initial draft in Army plans. Likewise, a large percentage of NYA youths are under the draft age.

Already, companies of youth are being fitted into the Nation's defense needs.

Mechanics Trained

Two companies of the CCC—400 boys—will sail from Seattle next week for a lonely, tree-covered island off the coast of Alaska. There, with Army engineers, they will labor through the winter clearing and leveling a landing field for the Army.

In the central repair shops, where CCC keeps up its 50,000 pieces of motor equipment, new "helpers" are being assigned to the trained mechanics. Through the "helper" system, CCC has aimed to turn out about 1,500 skilled mechanics every year. The new apprentices will double that number.

Aubrey Williams, the NYA administrator, announced in New York that his organization, with 5,000 young men now in training for jobs as radio technicians and operators, would triple that number within 60 days.

Actors Named As Communists

fluences in a labor union.

To further the work of the party among motion picture people and to obtain funds for party support, Leech testified, "study groups" in which tenets of the party were taught were organized among writers, producers and actors.

Concerning Stander, the transcript showed Leech testified:

"Sometime in 1935 he came into my office at 224 South Spring street and presented his membership book and his transfer from New York to Los Angeles. I took a payment from him and gave him the official receipt of the Communist Party, made out in the name of J. Rand. I have known him as a loyal and trusted member of the Communist Party. At times he contributed as much as $75 a week."

Leech said Frank Davis, actor and producer, "made the largest contribution, to my knowledge, of any individual, $500 a month."

He testified James Cagney had been a heavy contributor to party funds and was "both a member and contributor in 1934." Humphrey Bogart, he said, possessed a Communist Party book and was on a "master list" of contributors.

The grand jury today called as witnesses several of those named by Leech as party members. The nature of their testimony was not disclosed. Stander, however, previously had denied in newspaper statements that he was a member of the party.

March issued a statement saying that "speaking for myself, Mr. Leech is an unmitigated liar. . . . I do not even know the man."

Bogart issued a statement saying: "I have never contributed money to a political organization of any form. That includes Republican, Democratic, Hollywood Anti-Nazi League or the Communist Party. I dare the men who are attempting this investigation to call me to the stand."

Cagney's brother and business manager, William, said, "I can speak for Jimmy in saying he is not a Communist, never has been a Communist and never will be, because he is not in sympathy with that cause in any way, and he never has contributed funds to the Communist Party."

Ornitz said he had been "consistently attacking District Attorney Buron Fitts and it is said he has elected to prey uupon and slander innocent people just before the primary election, just because they oppose him."

At Saratoga Springs, Lederer and Jean Muir denied any connection with Communism. "I am not a Communist and have never been one. I am violently opposed to Communism and everything it stands for," said Lederer.

Beauvais Fox, representing the actress, said, "she told me to say this is wholly false."

The transcript showed that Leech testified Franchot Tone's contributions ran from $75 to $150 monthly.

"I have appeared at meetings at which Mr. Tone was present," Leech testified, "and have talked to him concerning party affairs and know he was on the list of regular contributors to the Communist Party. He was in the master list of 43 persons I have in my possession."

Discussing Cagney, Leech said his name was involved in a cotton strike in California's San Joaquin Valley in 1934, "and the publicity was so unfavorable that he experienced professional difficulties.

"Shortly thereafter the Communist Party in New York notified the State committee, which in turn notified me in writing, that because of the unfavorable publicity the California organization and particularly the Los Angeles organization must in the future have no contact with Mr. Cagney; that any relation between Mr. Cagney and the Communist Party would be conducted entirely by the central committee of the Communist Party. We were warned and advised that local interference would not be permitted.

Assails Un-American Teaching

SAYS PATRIOTISM IS BEING UNDERMINED—A. P. Reeves (left), vice president of the Washington Rotary Club, talks with Lee R. Pennington (right), FBI official, who told the Rotarians yesterday that teaching of doctrines wholly un-American in the Nation's schools and colleges was undermining the patriotism of American youth ly to the FBI.

He charged that so-called Fifth Columnists are using a "softening process"—undermining American youth for the "final kill."

"The FBI," said Pennington," has recently conducted a series of conferences with State and municipal authorities to map a plan of attack on these evil forces. We have found that these un-American teachings have not alone crept into our schools but into our pulpits and, in many instances, the daily press.

He warned his listeners to avoid hysteria, combat the problem calmly and offer concerted cooperation with United States authorities.

Test Of Democracy

Chairman Sabath's report of the Rules Committee session which delayed action on the Sumners resolution gives rise to hope that this delay will be only temporary. The committee did not decide against the granting of a special rule. Indeed, it is impossible to see how it could do so on the basis of any of the arguments advanced at yesterday's session.

"Some of the members think the resolution is not broad enough," Chairman Sabath said. "Others think it is too broad and should be amended. And there are one or two who seem to be opposed to it altogether."

Coming from the chairman of the Rules Committee, this is an amazing report. Apparently that body has completely forgotten its function in the House of Representatives. It was not asked to pass judgment upon the proposed amendment to the Constitution giving Congress more complete control over the Nation's Capital. The Judiciary Committee has already examined this proposal from every angle and found it to be in the national interest. The Rules Committee was asked only to give the resolution right of way to the House floor.

It is freely admitted that the measure is in need of amendment. Chairman Sumners of the House Judiciary Committee will himself offer an amendment on the floor of the House. He is eager to restore the provision making possible the election of District Senators. But that is a question for the House, and later the Senate, to decide. For the Rules Committee to hold up the resolution because of differences of opinion as to its merits would be an inexcusably high-handed procedure.

Chairman Sumners has presented a cogent appeal for prompt action on his resolution. It is difficult to see how anyone who believes in the American system of government can oppose him. For this proposal would in no way weaken the tie between Congress and the Capital City. It would merely make the authority of Congress over the District more complete, while permitting a city of 663,000 persons to exercise rights accorded to all other Americans.

The committee set up to facilitate the flow of important legislation through the House could not arbitrarily block such a measure without bringing into question its own devotion to the principles of democratic government.

Balloons Vs. Bombers

Now that the long-dreaded blitzkrieg against the isle of Britain has got under way the efficacy of those interesting, if somewhat mysterious, clusters of balloons that float above London and other vital targets is being put to the test.

Military experts in this country have from the beginning been rather skeptical of the value of this form of air-raid defense. Even in England in the early days of the war the balloon barrages were the occasion of some sarcastic comment by the opponents of the government.

A rudimentary form of balloon barrage was employed over various European capitals during the World War. But the general conclusion of students is that as defenses they had little more than "psychological" value. That is to say, it is supposed that the raiding pilots worried a bit about the possibility of getting their planes enmeshed in the wires supported by the balloons.

The present balloon defenses in England are, of course, on a much more extensive scale. The balloons are anchored to trucks and thus can be moved from place to place and elevated rapidly to a great height. The principle of the device seems to be that it forces the enemy planes either to risk the danger of becoming entrapped in the network of wires and cables below the balloons or to fly at altitudes from which accurate bombing is impossible.

It is also claimed that many bombs dropped from high altitudes will bounce off the steel webbing and so be deflected from their targets. Planes flying under the balloon barrage would come within range of the antiaircraft artillery.

If there is any virtue in these claims, it would seem that the balloon barrages must offer a very considerable obstacle to the dive-bombing tactics that swiftly obliterated the defenses of Belgium and France. At any rate, it has been reported that the Stukas are taking the trouble to swoop down on the balloons and rip them open with machine-gun fire.

Obviously this method of attack, even if successful, increases the number of planes required for any given dive-bombing operation. Moreover, assuming ample reserves of balloons, there is nothing whatever to prevent the defenders from raising a new barrage. This they are reported to have done at Dover after the bombardment last Sunday.

Familiar Pattern

The crisis which has suddenly arisen in the relations between Italy and Greece begins to follow a tragically familiar pattern.

There was, in the first place, the inevitable frontier incident. Some days ago a murder occurred on the Albanian side of the Greco-Albanian border. The victim is sometimes described as an "Albanian patriot," sometimes as a "notorious bandit," depending on who does the describing.

But whether he was patriot or bandit, this individual's death would, under other circumstances, have produced nothing more than a passing headline. Murders are not uncommon in a feud-ridden land such as Albania, and this incident might have been the product of one of a dozen different causes.

The Italian government did not permit the episode to pass unnoticed, however. Subsequent developments make it clear that Rome was on the lookout for a pretext to justify a violent campaign of abuse against Greece. In other words, if the episode had not occurred, it would have been created.

Mussolini's journalistic pack is now in full cry against Greece as tomorrow it may be against Yugoslavia. Both of these Balkan kingdoms happen to occupy strategic corners of the European continent and stand in the way of effective Italian action against British positions in the eastern Mediterranean.

The road from Durazzo to Salonika (which runs through Yugoslavia) is only about a hundred miles long. With Salonika in her possession, with Greece placed in a vise, Italy would be in a much better position than she occupies today to challenge British sea power for control of the eastern Mediterranean, the Suez Canal and the route to the East. Mussolini's wrath has been directed chiefly at Greece because she is weaker than Yugoslavia.

Italian control of Salonika would also partially offset recent Russian gains in the Balkans. But this circumstance, at the moment, is probably an incidental element in Italian calculations.

At any rate, the Rome government has placed a sword of Damocles over the head of the Greeks. The violent press campaign launched against the Athens regime by the Fascist press suggests violent measures that may follow unless Italian demands are satisfied. Thus far the Greeks have remained firm. But whether they can long continue to do so is by no means certain.

In the meantime the Greco-Italian dispute suggests that the current cycle of aggression in Europe may revert to its starting point. Although it is often said that the first major act of aggression by a strong power against a weak and helpless neighbor began in Manchuria, an even better case can be made out for the contention that Mussolini preceded the Japanese militarists in the use of the technique of violence by no less than eight years.

It was just 17 years ago this month that the Italian fleet bombarded the undefended Greek island of Corfu as an act of reprisal for the murder of an Italian general engaged in delimiting the Greco-Albanian frontier. Despite the protests of the Greek government and the intervention of the League, Mussolini got away with this act of aggression. Though Italy withdrew from Corfu, she received a 50,000,000 lire indemnity from Greece. History now bids fair to repeat itself and with much greater violence.

Budgetary Control

By executive order Government agencies will hereafter be required to submit standardized reports for use of the Budget Bureau, with the object of tightening control over expenditures. Agency heads will be requested to recommend apportionment of their funds. And they must not contract obligations for future payment in excess of the amounts available under approved apportionments.

Reports are to reflect, as far as possible, all contingent liabilities of the Government and its corporate and other agencies. An attempt will be made to distinguish between recoverable and nonrecoverable expenditures. Uniform standards are to be employed insofar as practicable in the valuation of assets and determination of liabilities.

Budget Director Smith expects the new reporting system to provide more comprehensive and informative financial summaries for inclusion in the budget. He also believes that it will assist the Budget Bureau to keep a close check upon expenditures and determine possible economies.

One can only hope so, although when billions of dollars are being loosely spent, the sums saved by a better system of reporting and standardization are not likely to be impressive. In fact, it seems rather ironical that so much effort should be directed toward improving methods of budgetary control when the budget itself is so hopelessly out of control on the spending side.

However, a more comprehensive and understandable statement of the Government's financial position may stimulate public interest in budgetary problems. The present heterogeneous reporting system unquestionably puts a premium on loose practices and results in waste of public funds. The financial status of the Government's numerous lending agencies, for instance, presents a picture of complete confusion. There is no way of making valid comparisons between their statements of income and outgo or the value of the physical assets in their possession.

The result is that nobody in the Government service—certainly no member of Congress—has any idea what the Government's financial situation is at any given time. The defeatist attitude induced by such ignorance—so long as efforts at enlightenment were futile—doubtless has encouraged careless appropriation methods and loose spending habits.

An Inopportune Appeal

Testifying at the joint hearings of the Senate Finance Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee, Ellsworth C. Alvord, an official of the United States Chamber of Commerce, urged that 1940 corporate incomes be exempted from the proposed excess-profits tax. He argued that excess profits from defense contracts probably would not be realized in substantial amounts in the current year. Furthermore, he said, industry has suffered for a long time from low prices and depression and has not yet had an opportunity to earn normal profits.

Ordinarily such arguments would carry weight, but these are not ordinary times. On the contrary, we are confronted by such a grave emergency that Congress is debating a measure to draft the Nation's man power. Under the circumstances, the appeal of the Chamber of Commerce for a brief respite from emergency taxes to compensate industry for past hardships is likely to meet with a very cold reception.

The National Association of Manufacturers has taken a much more cooperative and tactically wiser attitude toward excess-profits taxation. Although opposing such a levy as a permanent part of the tax structure, the N. A. M. accepts it as a necessary evil in an emergency. It also concedes that the tax should be imposed upon the earnings of the current year.

Spokesmen for both the Chamber of Commerce and the N. A. M. are pressing for segregation of the amortization features of the tax bill from the excess-profits levy. Action on the amortization proposals must be speedy to remove a serious bottleneck in the defense program. More extensive study of the excess-profits tax seems desirable.

There appears to be little likelihood, however, that Congress will accept this advice. Mr. Alvord's request that excess profits taxes be delayed until next year may well strengthen the determination to link the two proposals and speed the tax program to passage as rapidly as possible.

In only a few days of hearings, spokesmen for business have suggested many changes in the tentative bill. Some of their recommendations are constructive and all of them call attention to the difficulties of attempting to frame tax laws of this type.

So the committee faces a dilemma. If it takes ample time to study suggested changes in the bill, it will be criticized for the delay. And if it acts quickly, it will risk enactment of an unsatisfactory measure. It is a pity that the committee did not originally foresee that the two problems before it demand separate treatment.

Sign Of Strength

At this distance there is no way of determining the validity or falsity of most of the German and British claims and counterclaims regarding the outcome of the aerial fighting over Britain.

Yet the truth cannot always be kept hidden behind the smoke screen of propaganda. Sometimes it is too palpable to be disguised. For instance, British planes carried out an air raid over Italy early Wednesday morning. We do not have to take the word of the British air ministry for it. The Italians themselves admit it. Italian reports also note that cities as far removed as Milan and Turin in the Po Valley and Augusta in Sicily had bombs dropped on them.

The extent of the damage inflicted on these cities remains unknown. The British insist direct hits were scored on the great Fiat aviation works at Turin and the Caproni airplane factory at Milan. The Italians, for their part, deny that any serious damage was done, although they report the loss of a score of lives.

In any event, the fact that the R. A. F. was able to carry out a mass raid covering 1,600 miles at a moment when Great Britain was being mercilessly hammered by an aerial blitzkrieg would seem to suggest that the British are far from being crippled.

Happiness is composed of a delicate blend of anticipation and imagination.

CCC For Defense?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Stanley F. Morse's article in Saturday's Post is an example of some curious thinking on his part. What have the CCC boys and those on relief got that needs protection from any outside forces? Why should they have to be so appreciative of the generosity of this country over those that have jobs and homes?

Strikes me that it is the duty of all of us to protect this country and mostly those of us who have jobs and have some form of security. We have something that needs protection. What right have we to say that some other George should do our job for us? We who have security have the most to lose and should be the first to get out and protect what we have, and stop thinking in terms of scapegoats. I suggest Stanley F. Morse, whatever his age, join up immediately and show his appreciation for not having to resort to a CCC job for his livelihood.

Hasten Defense

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There seems to be a certain group, or groups, who have personal grievances regardless of political affiliations who seem to be holding up the country's national defense program, and who also have strengthened the hand of the dictators knocking at both our front doors.

If we are to protect our democracy, which means freedom of the press, liberty and happiness, it is time the American people as a whole should call a halt on those who have personal grievances. They should all unite in strengthening our first line of defense at home and abroad. There is no time to lose—act now or never!

That great democracy of Europe, secondary to own own, is now in slavery because of some of the personal grievances of politicians who held up preparedness.

'Let George Do It'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: All of this fuss for and against compulsory military training has me somewhat confused. Naturally I am for an adequate defense, but am willing to let "George" do it. We should have an Army of 2,000,000 "Georges." The same way that some manufacturers would like to continue business under a democracy, provided the other industrialists take care of the planes and armaments and leave him alone. Just as the A. F. of L. back home would tie up the works, by a strike, while the men at the front are praying for something better than a slingshot to combat 70-ton tanks. I distrust the politicians who are endeavoring to protect us from this departure from the traditional American way. These demagogic politicians are playing to the gallery of Hitler and Mussolini. I know that a nation that is overripe with tradition is overripe for decay, but I refuse to see the point.

I am just an undisciplined, callow youth, not much good to my parents. Father is drawing a social security annuity, a brother is receiving a railroad retirement pension, another brother (who didn't get across) is drawing veteran's compensation while a younger one is in the CCC. The NYA is putting me through college. Dad's AAA check takes care of the "jalopy" and gas situation. (He owns a few acres of farm land.)

My mother, sisters, aunts and various girl friends think that it would be terribly undemocratic to subject me to a little discipline, a lot of wholesale outdoor training, good food and the chance to become physically fit and acquire a fresh realization of values and my duty to my country. Since I am rather pink around the edges (having attended college), it occurs to me that perhaps they are right. They are really spending quite a bit of money on me writing Congressmen. After all, didn't George Washington assure the security of this country when he crossed the Delaware or threw a dollar across the Potomac, or something? Why should our jitterbugging be interrupted now, even if there is a rumor of a war in Europe? LORD HELP AMERICA.

Food For Europe

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Was Ambassador Cudahy reprimanded for protesting the starving of the Belgian and French people? Americans have been justly proud of their humanitarian role in world disasters. In this terrible time we should not allow our hatred of the Nazis to blind us to the suffering of the conquered peoples.

Real friends of France believe that French civilization will survive the German conquests to rise again at some happier hour, but neither French nor Belgian civilization can survive starvation.

Herbert Hoover has a plan to sell food to Europe, after negotiating with the Germans to assure its reaching civilians rather than the German army. It will be said that we can't rely on Hitler's word, but that is a risk we will have to take rather than sit inactive while Europe starves. The head of Quaker relief in Europe says that in 20 years he has never lost a shipment; that food for rebel children in Spain went through the blockade with Franco's blessing.

It is hard to see how we can be "preserving democracy" by cooperating in the British blockade of Europe, as far as food is concerned. Which will a Frenchman hate most this winter, his German conqueror or the great American democracy which refuses to send food to his starving children?

More Views On Conscription

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many public leaders seem to be losing their heads in making irrational statements concerning the proposals for a selective draft. It seems silly to talk about the draft as the democratic way. Judged by this, Hitler is the greatest democrat in the world.

Democracy certainly means that every individual has as much freedom as possible to choose his occupation and to dispose of his own time and energies. National necessity may require a curtailment of that liberty, but the curtailment in itself is not a move in the direction of democracy but in the direction of national socialism.

A matter of more important concern now is what shall we do with the men who volunteer or are selected for service? We have heard too little of moves toward modernizing the Army and the Navy. Obviously, we must prepare to meet force with force, and we must have a well-organized and well-equipped defense force. But it would be a great waste to take men who are now well employed and put them in a camp to march and ride around for a year or more.

Now it seems rather obvious that men need training in mechanics, in the operation and repair of automotive machinery, including trucks, tanks and airplanes. It seems that a program for training should come first.

More adequate pay for service, and more adequate provision for training to do something in war and afterwards, would doubtless attract as large a body of men voluntarily as can be handled effectively in the year ahead. This would be a truly democratic, modern and forward-looking program. RUS.

Washington, Aug. 12.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It cannot be urged too strongly that compulsory military training in peacetime should be defeated. Such a measure is totally un-American, and in spite of what its proponents say there is no democracy in compulsion. Many Americans are beginning to question the motive behind the Burke-Wadsworth bill.

If a decent wage were offered enrollees, the Army might get the type of men it says it wants; whereas conscription will make the youth of this Nation no better than chattels. Again the question arises as to whether so large an Army as is suggested is necessary to defend the United States. Many experts say no. This problem calls for clear-headed thinking, and not for the hysteria that the Administration is fostering.

It is, indeed, ironical that the American people should be told to fear a Nazi menace without and at the same time succumb to Nazi methods within. Once freedom is taken from the American people, they may never regain it.

VIRGINIAN.

Alexandria, Va., Aug. 11.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One of the greatest pleasures I get out of reading The Post is in reading the letters written by the subscribers. There are often many excellent opinions and arguments set forth by sincere, thinking men and women which tend to give one an excellent insight into public opinion.

Occasionally, however, you publish a letter which is a classic of a sort in that it displays a complete, and therefore astonishing, ignorance of the subject being discussed. Such a letter, in my opinion, was that written by one Seymour Etkin, in the Post of August 12.

Mr. Etkin has taken it upon himself to classify, "roughly," those groups of people who are in favor of the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill. It is my pleasure to attempt to answer his very profound opinions.

Mr. Etkin started by pointing a derisive finger at the so-called octogenarians who are beyond the age limits of the proposed bill. I wonder if it has ever occurred to him that a large majority of those men fought in the World War and have, therefore, an idea of what a war is like.

Second, he takes a crack at our Army officers by insinuating that they are a group of self-centered, self-seeking plutocrats. He obviously has no idea of the difficulties of training those fledglings of whom he speaks and I am sure that he doesn't realize that a lieutenant with a thousand recruits under him is just the same as a lieutenant without any.

As to Mr. Etkin's third group, I can only say that somebody has to run the country, and it is much better that we have people to do it who know how than to have a bunch of slackers who certainly don't.

His last two groups can be classed in the same general category. For some reason he makes a great joke of the patriotic women of this country. Why I don't know.

Mr. Etkin has left out one group of people whom he really should have included in his little list. They are the real, patriotic, democratic, young Americans.

The Post Impressionist

Mme. Mere

THE FIRST SOFT rose and silver of the Roman dawn was coloring the drab suburban streets as the big closed carriage with the imperial bees marked upon its panel came rumbling into the outskirts of the city. At the sight of that coat of arms even the drowsy butchers' boys and market-bound peasants—the only ones abroad at such an hour—became instantly alert. That insignia in the streets of Rome at any time would have been enough to draw the stares of the inquisitive; now, two months after Waterloo and the last abdication, its presence must have seemed unusually odd.

But the passengers within the mud-stained equipage quite plainly had no intention of satisfying the curiosity of too-observant citizens. Although the morning was quite warm the shutters guarding the windows at either side were tightly closed.

Within, leaning back wearily against the heavy cushions, were a man and a woman. Neither was young. The man, who was in clerical dress, was in his early fifties; his companion was perhaps 15 years his senior. In the dim light that filtered through the shutters one might have noticed that her face, for all the ravages of time and trouble, still bore traces of more than ordinary beauty and dignity.

To Maria Letizia Buonaparte and her half-brother, Cardinal Fesch, that almost furtive journey through the streets of the city that had once been lined with cheering citizens to do them homage must have been far from pleasant. The flock of Mme. Mere was scattered—Joseph, Lucien, Jerome were homeless and in flight. Far out on the South Atlantic Cockburn's frigate was bearing another of her sons to his barren isle of exile. Her world had fallen to pieces. Old and broken, with only Fesch for guardian and protector, she was seeking, in the territories of the man her son had once held captive, a final refuge for her age.

As the heavy carriage jolted over the cobblestones toward the cardinal's palace the two within spoke little. The journey had been long and wearisome, and Mme. Mere was especially fatigued. Also, between these two there was little need for speech.

It is more than likely that the thoughts of each, as they peered out through the chinks in the shutters at the pavements bathed in the first honey-colored sunlight, were turned back upon another morning. The streets of their native Ajaccio had been gay with flags and green branches that day, and the air was full of the music of the bells that called the faithful to high mass at the cathedral. It was the morning of the 15th of August—the Feast of the Assumption.

In their Sunday clothes townspeople and peasants came up for the fiesta passed and repassed in front of the modest house of the family Buonaparte, facing the little square in the center of the town. Maria Letizia, coming out of the house on her way to the cathedral with her small half-brother holding tightly to her hand, was saluted with respect. The young wife of Carlo di Buonaparte had been a Ramolino, of the great family of Coll'Alta. The Buonapartes were of the lesser gentry, and Carlo himself was an impoverished lawyer, but the part he had played in the long war for Corsican independence from the Genovese money lenders had won him much honor. When Maria and 6-year-old Joseph arrived in front of the cathedral in the sedan-chair that was somewhat shabby evidence of the Buonaparte family's genteel background, her uncle, the Archdeacon himself, had come out to assist her up the steps. But the ceremony had been long and tiring and before it was over Maria, still holding tightly to the hand of her brother, had left. They had taken her home then, in the blazing sunlight, to the coolness of the little house upon the square.

That same day, in one of the starkly furnished downstairs rooms, had been born the small son to whom she gave the name Napoleone.

Letizia Buonaparte must have remembered that day often enough afterward, when August 15 had become a national holiday. When the crowds came to cheer the Emperor upon his birthday, at the Tuileries, he would insist that Mme. Mere should come out upon the balcony with himself and the empress. To the silent woman from the poverty of the Corsican foothills the 20 years when she was surrounded by the trappings of empire must have had about them the quality of a dream.

Dream or not, that world was shattered now, and with brutal completeness. Her sons had ruled more than half of Europe; not one of them was able to offer her, any longer, a shelter and a home.

It was just 8 o'clock when the big closed carriage with the imperial bees marked upon its panel drew up under the portico of the Palazzo Falconieri in the Via Giulia. Somewhat stiffly, Cardinal Fesch alighted, stretched out his hand to Mme. Mere. Holding tightly to the arm of her brother, as she had done that morning almost 50 years before, the tired old woman entered upon her exile.

Overhead the bells of a hundred churches were filling the air with sweet, insistent clamor. It was the morning of the 15th of August.

The Hoover Relief Proposal

MR. HOOVER has proposed that the United States intervene in Europe in order to assure supplies of food to some 27,000,000 inhabitants of four nations—Norway, Holland, Belgium and Poland—and possibly also to some of the 40,000,000 inhabitants of France. On the basis of information available to him Mr. Hoover describes the situation as follows. He says that if Germany allows the four little nations to keep their stocks of food and this year's harvest, their situation "will not begin to be acute until some time in the fall" but that their situation "will become fatal in the winter and spring next year—as domestic supplies are exhausted."

It follows that their situation will become acute immediately only if the occupying German armies draw upon the existing stocks of food and do not allow the invaded nations to use what this summer's harvest produces. Mr. Hoover does not say whether in fact the Germans have been taking from the existing stocks and from the present harvest. But he implies that they have. For in the plan which he proposes he stipulates that Germany shall "furnish an equivalent of any food already taken." This would suggest that he believes the German requisitions may make the position in some of these countries very desperate even sooner than the autumn.

MR. HOOVER'S plan calls for the setting up in these four, possibly five, invaded nations of "an adequate control of distribution" by a "neutral, nongovernmental organization." This, of course, means an American organization. Mr. Hoover then defines what he means by an adequate control. He does not mean merely, as some may suppose, that Americans in these four or five nations shall see to it that food from the United States reaches only the inhabitants of the invaded countries. Mr. Hoover means much more than that. He means that the American controllers are to see to it that the occupying German armies "take none of the domestic produce." For, obviously, if the American controllers do not do this, then the equivalent, or more, of what is sent in from America may go out to Germany. If, therefore, Mr. Hoover's American controllers do not supervise the administration of the whole food supply of these four or five countries, the net result of the vast humanitarian effort would be to finance and facilitate the import of food into Germany by the use of Norwegian, Belgian, Dutch, Polish and American funds.

But Mr. Hoover's plan does not end with the proposal to establish a control, administered by Americans, of the relief shipments and of the domestic stocks and the harvests of these four or five nations. His plan also requires the American controllers to get back from Germany "an equivalent of any food already taken." Nor is that all. His plan also requires the American controllers to see to it that these four or five invaded nations are able to import food "from Russia and the Balkan states"—in other words, that Germany and Italy do not monopolize all the exportable surpluses of central and eastern Europe.

THIS PROGRAM, as Mr. Hoover describes it, is no simple undertaking. An organization of private citizens is to distribute relief in four or five nations. It is to administer the whole food supply—the stocks, the harvests, and the imports—of four or five nations. It is to supervise the requisitions of the occupying army in four or five nations. It is to prevent the export of food supplies from four or five nations. It is to recover from Germany the equivalent of food taken out or consumed by her armies during several months of occupation. It is to make sure that four or five prostrate nations are able to buy their proper share, as against their conqueror, of the exports of Russia, Hungary, Rumania.

Only if all these things are done by the American controllers, "only so long" as these "guarantees are fulfilled," does Mr. Hoover suggest that the British let food ships pass through the blockade. It does then seem a bit premature, to say the least, for anyone to begin talking as if a fine humanitarian plan of relief was being opposed by the British and the American governments. Mr. Hoover's plan calls for a very large American administration set up to supervise and control and inspect the actions of Germany over a large part of the European continent.

Is there any good reason to think that Hitler would permit Mr. Hoover to exercise any such control as Mr. Hoover proposes? If, as has already been indicated in Berlin, what Hitler would allow is what he has allowed the Red Cross to do in Poland, then obviously what the Nazis mean and what Mr. Hoover means are two totally different things. For while the Red Cross has supervised the distribution of relief in Poland, it has never controlled the food supplies of Poland or done any of the other elaborately difficult things which are called for in the Hoover plan. Nor could such a control be exercised by the few Americans who have been permitted to work in Poland. It would require a very great organization with vast powers to begin to do what the Hoover plan calls for.

IN FACT, Mr. Hoover is proposing to have the British open the naval blockade to four or five nations on the basis of a guarantee that Americans will establish in its place an administrative blockade—a blockade not only on the frontier between Germany and the invaded nations but also inside all these nations—as between the occupying armies, the Nazi officials, the Gestapo on the one hand, the local inhabitants on the other. What point is there, then, in developing a passionate argument now about whether the American Government ought to ask Britain to let food ships pass, or whether Britain ought to let them pass? For Mr. Hoover has not said, and evidently does not believe, that the United States should compel Great Britain to open the blockade and let food pass unconditionally to the invaded and occupied nations. On the contrary, he has proposed that Britain be asked to open the blockade only "so long as the guaranties are fulfilled."

The guaranties, for which Mr. Hoover stipulates, would have to come from a gigantic system of control, supervision and administration by Americans in a vast territory occupied by German armies. A cool appraisal of the nature and the requirements of Mr. Hoover's proposed system is, therefore, not only morally the fairest but in practice the only sobering and enlightening introduction to the study of this great problem.

Trial Of A French Leader

Q.—You are familiar with the charges against you as a cabinet officer of France when the war was lost?

A.—All I know is that if the court has overlooked anything it's due to a mistake.

Q.—You were a former high official of the government of France?

A.—Guilty as charged!

Q.—At the time of the war and for many years before it, you had been prominent in the French governments, had you not?

A.—Yes, and in admitting this I realize how incriminating it is.

Q.—Did you favor the war against Germany?

A.—I did. It seemed to me the only course consistent with French honor, history, safety and tradition. Germany's course seemed a violation of international law and an immediate threat to France.

Q.—Have you changed your mind?

A. One does not change one's mind in matters of principle.

Q.—You talk like a Frenchman. Do you realize this may embarrass you?

A.—Do I!

Q.—Were you for the alliance with England?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What is your defense for this?

A.—I didn't know it needed a defense. France had been England's ally in the World War; we had been brothers ever since; we stood together for democracy, order and peace.

Q.—Isn't that kind of talk pretty dangerous? For a Frenchman?

A.—Only since May.

Political Hygiene

A SMALL DISPATCH from Buffalo tweaks an issue which at present gives no appreciable pain, but which should be examined and doctored in the interests of political hygiene.

In Buffalo the central committee of Polish organizations asked the city council to change the name of a thoroughfare known as Lindbergh drive, recommending that it be named, instead, for Adam Plewacki, the first resident of Buffalo killed in France in the first World War. Obviously, Adam Plewacki was a man of Polish birth or blood, and the suggestion that he be thus honored, coming as it does from a community of organizations which frankly profess to be Polish, is an unpleasant reflection on his loyalty to the United States, being tinged with an insinuation that he was American with reservations.

Would it be in bad taste, do you suppose, to remind this body that this is not Poland, but the U. S. A., and that organizations which consider and call themselves Polish, Italian, German or Irish, Czech, Dutch or Norwegian forget their manners in presuming to address suggestions to the American Government or any of its subdivisions affecting our own affairs?

NO POLISH group has any standing here except as an alien group, and we have had some difficulty ere now convincing alien groups that we can attend to the naming of our streets, the election of Congressmen, mayors and the like and the general management of the Nation and its communities without outside assistance, however well meant.

The fact that American sympathies and detestations at present are generally identical with those of the Polish people does not simplify the case. The point is that when Poles become Americans they are supposed to cease to be Polish and that most such groups as this are maintained less for the stated purpose of preserving their respective cultural treasures and admirable traditions than for the ulterior purpose of voting in blocs and exerting political pressure as unassimilated minorities.

It can be added that in many such cases able but discreditable politicians put themselves forward as spokesmen for the vote of this or that hyphen-American group and, by their sordid misdoing, including monkey business at the polling places and racketeering on public contracts, seriously injure the people for whom they presume to speak.

IT MAY BE admitted that some political leaders of such groups are fine citizens, but the fact persists that when they acquire power in American politics as representatives of colonies of foreign-born citizens they tend to set those people apart from the whole community and postpone their assimilation or Americanization.

As a result of this very practice many Americans of Italian birth or blood, whose political padrones kept them segregated in American cities, are now in painful embarrassment. For years it was thought possible to be wholly American but to retain a love for Italy, but suddenly Italy is found in partnership with the nation which in its national anthem proclaims a mission to rule the whole world and at present is engaged in a formidable attempt to realize that ambition.

Thus, plainly, Italy is allied with the nation against which the United States is now rearming, and the love of Italy comes into conflict with complete devotion to this country. The American-Americans are uneasy about this love.

THERE IS NO reason why a group of Americans, calling themselves Americans, should not propose that Lindbergh drive be renamed Spelvin Speedway or Elm street, but no organization of Poles has any such right. Speaking strictly, the Germans of Buffalo would be no further out of line if they should ask the city council of Buffalo to name a street for Horst Wessel or Hitler or the Italians should ask similar recognition for the Duce of Italo Balbo.

True, Adam Plewacki must have been an American. Greater proof of his Americanism he could not have given. But this organization, speaking as Poles, represents him as a Pole, which is no compliment to him.

This would be a good time for all such organizations to throw out their stationery, destroy their rubber stamps and, with one last look toward Europe, decide to become American with no reservations.

Draft Conclusion

By Mark Sullivan

Professional Soldiers For Army Core

THE DEBATE on conscription, in Congress and out, is shaping toward certain conclusions, or trends of thought. These trends do not deny that conscription may be necessary. But neither do they assert that conscription, of the particular kind provided in the pending bill, is imperative at this moment.

One trend of thought is that, whatever else is done, the core of America's Army, its solid base and frame, must be a body of professional soldiers, highly skilled, who make the Army their lifetime career, and are adequately paid for it. It is practically certain the base pay for privates will be raised from a present $21 a month to $30, plus, of course, maintenance, and with rapid and material increases for skill and length of service.

The lesson of the war in Europe puts strong emphasis on two qualities, mechanical skill and quick efficiency in coordination. Those are, mainly, the qualities of the German army which account for its victories. And it is doubtful if either of these qualities can be acquired, in sufficient degree, by the one-year training period provided in the pending bill.

AS TO THE SIZE of this permanent professional army, the Regular Army, the thought emerging in the Senate looks toward a figure of from 750,000 to 1,000,000. These are maximum figures; some experts say 600,000 would be enough. Within limits, great size is less important than the two special skills, mechanical efficiency and experience in coordination. The total number of German soldiers engaged in actual fighting in the battle of France has been estimated at strikingly low figures. A comparatively small number, because of their skill in mechanized war, and in coordination, was able to overcome several times as many French, British, Belgian and Dutch soldiers.

Whatever the number of our permanent Army, it must be backed up, of course, by a very large well of reserves, available to be drawn on in emergency. How large this well should be, how to recruit it and train it—that is the subject of the present debate. It is certain the number of reserves must be large. To get enough, compulsory training may be necessary, though possibly not compulsory service, which is a different thing.

Another trend of thought is to go slow, to take time for thorough debate and perhaps defer the date of conscription, if conscription is finally adopted. There is strong Senate support for the proposal of Senator Maloney, of Connecticut, to continue with the system of voluntary enlistment, and make a special drive for it, until January 1; and then consider conscription, in case voluntary enlistment has by that time proved to be not enough.

"GO SLOW" may be a poisonous phrase, in the light of the daily news from Europe. Conceivably, whoever practices it or condones it may be made extremely uncomfortable by early events in Europe. But whether justified or not, it can be explained. There is the natural reluctance to adopt conscription before actual war is clearly imminent. There is among some a feeling that, however great the need of speed as respects the Navy and air force, speed with the Army is not so imperative. There is recognition that equipment for a greatly enlarged army cannot be ready until 1942.

On the political side there is, as Senator Adams, of Colorado, says, some definite waiting to see what Republican Candidate Willkie says in his acceptance speech Saturday. This political waiting would be extended by some, if it were possible, until after the election.

Latent in the situation is a vague feeling which interprets conscription in the light of conditions and personalities. Some who would readily have supported conscription under President Wilson in 1917 may feel less ready under President Roosevelt in 1940, especially considering that 1940 may extend into a third term lasting until 1945. In this, as in other matters, Mr. Roosevelt suffers the handicap of the impression that some around him wish centralized power, not merely for the purpose of war, but under ordinary conditions such as have existed before the fear of war arose. In the opposition by some Senators to conscription today one finds the same spirit with which, three years ago, they opposed the attempt to change the Supreme Court. In 1917 everybody knew that the extraordinary war powers granted Wilson would be terminated as soon as the emergency ended, and they were. There is not today so much feeling of certainty on this point.

There is honest search for sound judgement, as distinguished from consulting popular emotion. Republican Senator Holman, of Oregon, suports the conscription bill. He does it for a reason which reflects the Senate at its best:

"I have not counted the number of postal cards and letters I have received pro and con on this question, but I have sought for intelligent contributions of thought. I do not believe that wisdom can be found in quantity . . . I believe that this is a republic, a government by the chosen representatives of the people, and that we should on all questions endeavor to learn the part of wisdom and to exercise that wisdom regardless of whether at the moment our action may be popular or unpopuler . . . We should not go around with our ears to the ground hunting for the groundswell of immature popular and temporary opinion. Ours is a position of responsibility and we must assume that responsibility and bear its burdens."

That is nice to hear, at a time when some confuse mass polls with inspired wisdom, Dr. Gallup with God.

Canada Trims Its Sails

By Our Ottawa Correspondent

The Case Of Mayor Houde

Ottawa.

THE FEDERAL PARLIAMENT of Canada completed its sessional program on August 7 but there was not the usual formal ceremony of prorogation with which the end of a session is marked. Under pressure from the opposition groups, Premier Mackenzie King agreed that the Parliament should stand adjourned until November 5 but would be summoned immediately if a serious emergency arose.

The session, which opened on May 16, was productive of quite satisfactory results. The Liberal ministry was always in possession of a commanding majority for its measures and most of the time was occupied with governmental business. But the Conservative opposition, although only 40 strong, was a much more effective force than anybody thought possible at the opening of the session. This was due mainly to the skillful leadership of Mr. R. B. Hanson K. C., who was suddenly called upon to lead his party in the House of Commons after the defeat and resignation of Dr. Manion.

Mr. Hanson when he was minister of trade and commerce in 1934-35 had not cut much figure and had never shown any particular qualities of leadership. He was reluctant to accept the post as his health was far from good and his ambitions had been satisfied by the attainment of cabinet rank. But he had an even temper and a genial disposition and a very shrewd practical intelligence. He soon developed a real flair for parliamentary strategy. He gave ministers cooperation on all vital issues pertaining to the war but he spiced it with valuable criticism and he did not hesitate to bring the government to account for errors and shortcomings whenever he discovered them.

The timing of his attacks was excellent and they were usually justified and supported by public opinion. On several occasions he was able to drive ministers into tight corners and force them to alter or modify their policies.

Accordingly, he raised the spirits of his depressed party and at the close of the session he earned commendation from more than one Liberal paper for valuable services to the country.

Another effective critic of the government was Mr. M. J. Coldwell, who undertook the leadership of the C. C. F. Party after its chief, Mr. Woodsworth, was at the opening of the session overtaken by a grave illness which may end his political career. Among the cabinet, the ministers who enhanced their reputations most were Maj. Power, now minister for air, who impressed Parliament with his initiative and driving force and Mr. Angus Macdonald, the former Premier of Nova Scotia who is the new minister for naval affairs. Although unable to take his seat, he demonstrated that he was a valuable recruit to the cabinet.

The popular demand for a genuine national ministry has for the moment abated. But if ministers were to make any serious mistakes or relapse into the dangerous complacency which they were showing before Hitler invaded the Low Countries, it would be speedily revived with increased momentum behind it.

THE MOST IMPORTANT accomplishment of the session was the arming of the government with very drastic powers for the full mobilization of Canada's manpower and material resources for the national war effort, and the necessary measures encountered comparatively little opposition.

The plan for the compulsory military training of all male citizens under the age of 44 was very suspect by most of the rank and file of the French-Canadian Liberals and they had to be placated and kept in line by the renewal of explicit assurances that recruiting for overseas service would be maintained on a voluntary basis. But suspicions about the real objective of the scheme of national registration for all adults over the age of 16 continued to persist among the French-Canadian population. There was considerable alarm among ministers when Mayor Houde of Montreal tried to exploit the disquietude by forbidding his officials to allow the use of municipal premises for the registration and announced in a public statement that he was unalterably opposed to the scheme because it was merely a prelude to full military conscription. At the same time he advised the citizens of Montreal not to register.

Here was a forthright defiance of the federal government and its laws which seemed to call for immediate action under the war measures act. But ministers were evidently fearful of provoking an outcry in Quebec and making Mayor Houde a martyr. So they waited for several days and made the serious mistake of trying to use their powers of censorship over the press and radio for the purpose of keeping the mayor's statement from the general Canadian public.

But the story of his defiance leaked out, and when Mr. Hanson raised the issue very sharply in the House of Commons and demanded an explanation from the government both about its inaction and its attempt to throttle the press, there blew up a storm of protest from all over the English-speaking provinces. Thereupon the federal minister of justice issued a warrant for Mayor Houde's arrest. Under the authority of the war measures act he has been consigned to an internment camp.

The offending mayor is a notorious but very expert demagogue who is so popular with the working classes of Montreal that he is now enjoying his seventh term as mayor. He was for a time leader of the provincial Conservative Party. He has, however, never made any secret of his anti-British and isolationist views. At the time of the Ethiopian crisis he went so far as to declare that French-Canadians should sympathize with the Italians, who were, like themselves, Latins by race and devout Roman Catholics, rather than with the British.

So the government has preserved its popularity by suppressing Mr. Houde, and while he has his sympathizers in Queber, they are not vocal. Moreover, Cardinal Villeneuve of Quebec, the leader of the Roman Catholic hierarchy, has issued a pronunciamento bidding all good Catholics comply with the law and fill in the registration forms. Thus no further trouble is anticipated in French Canada. The plans for the national registration have been fully worked out, and it will take place on August 19, 20 and 21.

AS SOON as data from it are available the scheme for compulsory military training will be put into operation. A beginning will be made about mid-September, when the first batch of draftees from the classes of young men of the ages 21 and 22 will be called. The total of these is over 190,000. It is estimated that there are camp facilities and instructors available to handle 30,000 of these draftees at a time and each batch of this number will be given a month's training, after enrollment in some unit of the nonpermanent militia.

But to prevent any curtailment of the output of munitions through the loss of workers, men engaged in certain essential occupations will be placed in "reserved classes" and instead of being trained in a camp will be given military drill two or three evenings each week. The scheme, however, is not without powerful critics like former Premier Meighen, who maintains that a month's military training is quite inadequate and points out that there is no provision compelling the men who are thus trained, to fight.

AT PRESENT, however, sufficient recruits are offering themselves for overesas service. The minister of national defense was able to announce recently that the Canadian active service force was only a few thousands short of its authorized strength of 150,000. The flow of Canadian troops to Britain continues steadily and Canada will soon have there a corps of two complete divisions with ancillary units. The third and fourth divisions, whose organization is now virtually completed, will be trained and equipped in Canada. Whereas most of the heavy equipment for the first two divisions had to be procured in Britain, it will be possible hereafter to draw everything that is required from Canada's own industrial resources.

Not long ago ministers were declaring that it was impossible to manufacture tanks in Canada, but arrangements have now been made to turn them out at the rate of 30 per month. A variety of military equipment which had never before been made in Canada is now being successfully manufactured. Practically every industrial plant in Canada which is capable of making munitions is now working at full capacity and there are also in process of construction a group of huge new plants, jointly financed by the British and Canadian governments at a cost of over $150,000,000, which will soon be producing explosives, shells and other munitions.

AT ONE TIME it looked as if the Commonwealth air training scheme, on which such high hopes have been pinned, was liable to be stalled through the inability of the British to spare the planes which they had promised to supply for elementary training purposes. But Maj. Power, the minister for air, and his very competent deputy, Mr. J. S. Duncan, a prominent Toronto industrialist, have bestirred themselves so effectively that the deficiency in planes has been made good by the acceleration of domestic production and purchases in the United States, planes destined originally for France having been taken over. The original program of the Commonwealth scheme has been greatly accelerated and it will reach full efficiency at the end of one year instead of two as originally planned.

Over 30 of the 115 establishments projected under it are already functioning and 90 per cent of the total will be completed by November. On July 24 the Royal Canadian Air Force had an enrolled strength of 1,765 officers, 17,688 airmen and 2,558 civilians and many more recruits were waiting to be called up as soon as more training schools were opened. Contingents of partially trained airmen are arriving from Britain and New Zealand to complete their training in Canada. As the aerial warfare now in progress over Britain seriously interferes with training in many places, it seems probable that Canada will become the chief training ground for the air forces of the whole Commonwealth.

British Shell Somaliland, Halt Italians

Fleet Bombardment Scatters Columns Moving on Berbera

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 14.—British warships have turned their guns on the coast of their own protectorate of Somaliland to hold up Italians advancing there against the key port of Berbera, British bastion on the south shore of the Gulf of Aden.

Armored columns and troop concentrations were scattered by salvos from light naval units offshore, British military headquarters reported, and the Fascist offensive was declared to have been stopped well before Bulhar, which is about 40 miles west of Berbera.

(A dispatch to Il Giornale D'Italia, an authoritative Fascist organ in Rome, reported the British fleet at Aden, the Arabian port across the gulf from Berbera, had left there, adding to the already intense movement" in the gulf.

Other Successes Reported

(This news suggested an intensification of British fleet action against the Italians, whose drive against Berbera is to attempt to break British Empire communications through the Red Sea, coincident with an expected general assault on Egypt and the Suez Canal.

British ground forces reported other successes in the defense of Berbera, declaring that Italian forces had been thrown back at Jurgaran Pass, 35 miles south-southeast of Berbera. They also said they had defeated Fascist columns in skirmishes both in Italian Libya and in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

In the Libyan engagement, it was declared, British troops had penetrated 35 miles into that Italian area, putting an Italian patrol to flight.

(The Italians acknowledged today that "bitter fighting" was in progress in British Somaliland east of Adadleh, which is some 60 miles west of Berbera, but added, "Our maneuvers, though strongly opposed, continue.")

Berbera Capture Predicted

Rome, Aug. 14 (INS).—Imminence of the capture of Berbera, capital of British Somaliland, was hailed by the Italian press tonight. Following an official communique revealing bitter fighting in Somaliland, the influential newspaper Corriere Della Sera, of Milan, described the Italian tactics being employe to effect an "imminent capture of Berbera."

"This conquest is imminently achievable in the converging movement of three Italian columns," the newspaper said. "The first is proceeding from Zeila; the second from Adadleh, where British resistance is strongest, and the third, after occupation of Adueina, is marching toward Seick and will easily descend upon Berbera when it joins up and collaborates with the central column."

(It was the first column, advancing southeastward down the coast from Beila, which London today said was shelled by British warship from the Gulf of Aden.)

Briton Tempts India Anew With Self-Rule

London, Aug. 14 (AP).—L. S. Amery, secretary for India, in another bid for India's wholehearted war aid, told the House of Commons tonight that an "efficient" All-Indian Congress would do well to welcome the offer of eventual dominion status.

"Dominionship is not an inferior status," he said. "We in the British Commonwealth enjoy security, prosperity and friendship which is the result of free and equal association."

Indian Nationalists have demanded prior recognition of their independence as a price for wartime collaboration.

Earlier Lord Strabolgi, Labor peer, told the House of Lords:

"If India's manpower could be mobilized, we need have no fear of threats to the Straits Settlements and Burma, and in certain circumstances, great help could be sent to Indo-China.

"Armed India could drive the Italians out of the whole of Africa."

British Fortifying Burma Border

Copyright by New York Times

Chungking (Thursday), Aug. 15.—The British are fortifying the Burma border and installing antiaircraft defenses at cities in North Burma, according to foreign travelers from Rangoon to Chungking. It is presumed these activities are impelled by a fear of Japanese invasion of Yunnan from Indo China with a subsequent threat to Burma.

Returning Alsatians 'Admit' German Blood

Basel, Switzerland, Aug. 14 (AP).—Peasants who were moved from Alsace-Lorraine to Southern France last autumn are being welcomed back by the German conquerors, but reports reaching here say they are being informed by the Nazi authorities that by their return they "admit they are of German blood."

(This would appear to bolster previous intimations that Germany intends to take Alsace-Lorraine into the Reich. France lost the area in the Franco-Prussian war and regained it in the World War.)

Luxembourg Deprived Of Its Constitution

Copyright by New York Times

Luxembourg, Aug. 14.—The constitution of the former Grand Duchy of Luxembourg was today declared null and void by Gustav Simon, German civil administrator now in charge. The flight of her regent and her government, Simon declared, had deprived the constitution of its legality.

Use of the terms "grand duchy" as well as the "state of Luxembourg" moreover have been prohibited in all official documents.

Nazi Raiders Fail to Shake British Calm

By Robert E. Bunnelle,
Associated Press Staff Writer

A South Coast English Town, Aug. 14.—War as only a hundred and more German bombers can wage it came back like an avalanche to Britain's new coastal defenses today.

I saw a lightship literally blown out of the water and sunk, her seams ripped open; I peered from a shelter while barrage balloons plunged in flames from the sky, their clashing cables falling almost at my feet; I saw a melee of perhaps 150 raiders and defenders surge through the clouds and in my ears all day dinned the crash of antiaircraft and the dull thud of bombs behind me—inland.

The biggest cloud of German raiders—I counted about a hundred plainly visible, with others dotting the sky up higher—roared across the coast this forenoon from France, defiantly breasting a circle of 27 British fighters.

The British ringed them; then, one by one, dived on them. One vast, wild jamboree of twisting, flame-spitting planes developed.

Four Planes Plunge Into Sea

Four planes, then another, then others, rocketed, burning, into the sea. We could not tell which side they belonged to.

In a crazy din of antiaircraft, machine-gun and cannon explosions, six big Junkers screamed at the lightship, dropping two bombs apiece.

They sent up geysers from the sea; others dropped on land.

A new swarm of raiders tore viciously at the barrage balloons moored from coastal barges. Some, in flames and shreds, came down—in a shower of spent machine-gun bullets, aerial cannon shells, antiaircraft fragments and even an empty machine-gun clip.

As we watched the helpless lightship, a diving plane screamed at a balloon over our heads and the blimp-shaped bag came down a mass of fire, its cable clattering behind our shelter.

While other planes were getting inland and up and down the coast to other targets, a low-flying German bombed one seafront near us, killing a home guard soldier, wounding several civilians and wrecking three houses.

Dover Amazingly Calm

By H. Taylor Henry,
Associated Press Staff Writer

Dover, England, Aug. 14.—You're in the front line of the battle zone when the London-Dover train comes out of the last tunnel through the chalk hills of the coast.

I realized it today, riding on that train.

Daylight just had flooded the windows, after the tunnel's long gloom, and an incendiary bomb dropped barely a stone's throw from the right of way.

At least 40 German planes were overhead. Apparently they had passed high over the Royal Air Force's coastal patrol, then dived low to try to disrupt transportation between the coast and the heart of England.

Swiftly, eight or ten more flame bombs crashed in a rough circle about the train.

One set fire to a field. Farmers quickly put out the blaze. The others seemed merely to bury themselves and fizzle out.

When we pulled into Dover, the town was amazingly calm.

The big midday air raid was just over.

All the way from the station to the Shalimar Hotel, on the waterfront, my taxi driver kept up a play-by-play commentary on the attack.

R. A. F. Was Ready

"You just missed all the fun," he said. "More of them were over today than ever before. They got a few of our barrage balloons but it was nothing to the hot time our fighters had ready for them."

I reached the waterfront just as the seventh barrage balloon to be shot down came floating slowly to earth.

It had not burned and when it landed it bounced high, then settled slowly.

Tonight Dover was a peaceful Kentish town—almost. Until dusk, however, planes, both German scouts and British defenders, circled frequently, droning high in the sky. Antiaircraft puffs chased the Germans.

Richmond Girls' Bowling Team To Play D. C. Stars

Men! Take a back seat.

Tonight it's the girls who will take the spotlight at the opening of the new Arlington Bowling Center, home of the finest set of alleys in suburban Washington.

Facing each other will be two of the best girl bowling teams in this area. The Health Center Girls, of Richmond, State and Southern champions, will defend against an attack by the District champions of 1939 and 1940.

Considerable interest has been shown among local fans who have heard of the prowess of the Richmond agreation. The quintet is supposed to be a match even for the better squads of men bowlers and some of the local teams of brawny he-men seem eager to arrange a match with the Health Centerites.

The Richmond favorites include Helen Randlette, Dorothy Lawson, Edna Brockwell, Phyllis Wills and Mary Brooks. With the Washingtonians are Thelma Robinson, Evelyn Ellis, Blanche Wooten, Gladys Lynn and Lucy Rose.

Doors of the bowling center open at 6 p. m. and the featured match begins at 8:15. There is ample seating for spectators in this new bowling palace. An added convenience is a soda fountain with attendants who will bring refreshments to your chair.

J. T. Wallace, manager of the alleys, would like to hear from any teams who want to organize a league or participate in team matches. Phone him at Oxford 2988.

Eden Promises Death Blow To Germany

Says 'Second Phase' Of Battle of Britain Seems to Be Opening

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 14.—Anthony Eden, British War Secretary, promised solemnly tonight that Britain will yet strike Germany a death blow and that when she does the nations defeated by Hitler will turn upon him "like ghosts arising from the dead."

In a broadcast, he asked: "When the time comes for us to strike, where will Hitler's Fifth Column be? Where will he find friends in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France and Austria?

"Like ghosts arising from the dead, with their arms and their hands, the nations that he has ravished for a season will turn upon him. Then we shall not be alone."

"Way Wars Are Won"

The real war for Britain, Eden said, will begin only "when we take the offensive and strike home at the enemy."

"That is the way wars are won and that is the way we mean to do," Eden promised.

"There must be no war weariness or peace weariness this time," he added. "There must be no third war in our time or in our children's time."

The war secretary said the "second phase of the Battle of Britain appears to be opening.

"Now one day soon it may be the turn of the army at home.

"We make no boast, but we feel confident."

Berlin Bars Dancing

It was generally agreed that the hour of the great test—the hour when a landing for German troops may be attempted—was close at hand.

The diplomatic correspondent of the Canadian Press tonight quoted authoritative sources in London as saying Germany has troop concentrations in both Norway and the Netherlands ready to attempt an invasion of Britain if the present air attacks on this country "prove successful."

(In Berlin there was an order that seemed freighted with gravity for England: Public dancing was barred in Germany, as it was during the Polish campaign and again during the offensive in western Europe.)

Neutral military and naval circles incline to the belief that any Nazi invasion of Britain will strike somewhere on the northeastern coast, probably from Norway, while the R. A. F. is busy fighting German air raiders in the south.

Preparations Go On

These men believe the Germans are not likely to forfeit the element of surprise by invading Britain at the spots where the air activity has been greatest—that is, on the southern and southeastern coast.

There has been no lessening of preparations to receive German invaders, but some circles now advance the idea that Germany may be content with a winter-long aerial war aimed at weakening the R. A. F. and softening up the nation by hammering away at seaports and industrial centers.

These sources point out that the Germans postponed action on the Western Front from November 11, 1939, until May 10, 1940, and "did all right."

The apparent weakness of such a plan of delay is that unless Germany can effectively bomb munitions works and armament factories the British army will be at least 50 per cent stronger next spring.

British Sink Two Nazi Ships In Channel

Victory Tempered By Announced Loss Of Merchantman

Copyright by New York Times

London (Thursday), Aug. 15.—Britain's navy, patrolling the Channel and North Sea for signs of seaborne Nazi invaders, last night reported a victory in its second skirmish in two days, but balanced the happy news with admission of the loss of a seventh armed merchant cruiser.

The 16,293-ton passenger liner Transylvania, armed as a naval cruiser since the start of the war, has been sunk by a German U-boat in the Atlantic with a loss of about 30 lives, the admiralty revealed.

The Transylvania, once a popular West Indies cruise boat running out of New York, was torpedoed at night and for two hours her crew struggled to save her before abandoning ship, it was said. The date of the sinking was not revealed by the admiralty.

Earlier the admiralty announced that two British destroyers on anti-invasion night patrol in the English Channel sank two light German ships and hit another in a battle early yesterday morning.

The German forces, according to the admiralty, immediately dropped smoke floats and tried to disappear behind the screen, but before they were able to do so the British say they hit three ships.

U. S. Buys Madison Place Property

to the sale May 27, was still "working on it." No site had been decided upon nor was it known when the club would move, it was reported.

It was learned, however, that the club has for some time had under consideration the old Hageman house, red brick structure at 1600 I street northwest, adjacent to the Hay-Adams House.

The Hageman house was valued variously at $400,000 and $450,000 by two local real estate men yetserday. It is owned by the Government and controlled by the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board.

Opening Will Be Cut

The Government's acquisition of the Belasco will permit the expansion of the Disbursing Office of the Treasury, which is cramped for space in the Treasury annex at Pennsylvania avenue and Madison place northwest.

Public Buildings Administration officials said only a little remodeling of the theater would be necessary to connect the building with the annex. It will be used primarily for storage of files and other bulky records.

An opening will be cut through the walls from an upper floor of the annex to an upper floor of the theater, and a passageway built, it was reported. No decision has been reached as to the use to which the auditorium will be put.

It was expected the 1,900 members of the Cosmos Club will continue to occupy their biulding for some time. The Government has not announced when it proposes to take over nor to what use it intends to put the clubhouse.

Built by Dolly Madison's Kin

Also Federal property is the Wilkins Building adjacent to the Cosmos Club, on H street.

Both of the historic buildings, now occupied by the Cosmos Club, are more than 100 years old. The corner building, the Madison House, was built by Dolly Madison's brother-in-law, Richrd Cutts, in 1818. The Cutts family was unable to maintain the house and it became the property of James Madison a few years later in satisfaction of a debt.

After Madison's death in 1836, Dolly Madison restored the house with the proceeds of a sale of the Madison papers to Congress. During Mrs. Madison's occupancy it was the center of Washington social life. Later it was occupied by such figures as Attorney General Crittenden, Senator William G. Preston, and Commodore John Wilkes, and in the Civil War it was the headquarters of the Army of the Potomac.

Defense Sidelights

Aeronautic Group to Meet Leaders Here

The National Defense Committee of the National Aeronautic Association will hold its first meeting in Washington today to plan active participation of N. A. A. chapters and affiliated organizations in the air defense program.

MacCracken

Conferences will be held with officials of the Army, Navy, Commerce Department, Defense Advisory Commission and National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

Chairman of the committee is William P. MacCracken, jr., former Assistant Secretary of Commerce. Members are: Grover Loening, aircraft designer and manufacturer, of New York; Ralph W. Howe, N. A. A. governor for Virginia, Richmond; Brig. Gen. W. G. Kilner, of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation, Buffalo, and former executive officer of the Army Air Corps, and Earle L. Johnson, director of the Ohio State Bureau of Aeronautics, Columbus.

Col. G. deFreest Larner, general manager of the N. A. A., will act as ex-officio member and secretary.

By the Associated Press

Secretary Knox announced yesterday the Navy had awarded contracts for the purchase of 12 fishing trawlers which are to be converted into mine sweepers.

Among the vessels were the Delaware, 303 gross tons; Illinois, 256 gross tons, and Maine, 256 gross tons, all from Booth Fisheries Corporation, Chicago, $250,000 each.

The Secretary also announced purchase of the yacht, Arlis, of 103 gross tons, for $70,000, from R. Livingston Sullivan, Philadelphia, for patrol duty.

The Navy announced that proposals for constructing eight mine sweepers of approximately 600 tons displacement would be received until noon September 18.

Under the Constitution, the House Ways and Means Committee originates all the Federal money-raising legislation—tariffs, taxes and the like—but the committee rarely sees the money.

Yesterday a citizen sent in a dollar and with it a national defense slogan.

"A dollar given today helps keep the invader away," wrote Roy E. Craner, of Flicksville, Pa.

Chairman Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, said he was sending the money back with instructions as to how the man could donate it to the Treasury, if he still wanted to.

Two new policies designed to spread Army contracts more widely and to speed deliveries of munitions and supplies were announced by the Defense Commission.

Bids henceforth will be accepted on the basis of delivery at the manufacturing plant, instead of at an Army post.

Under the second new policy, split bidding will be permitted so that manufacturers may contract for only part of an order. Split bidding, the commission said, "will enable industry to receive a much wider distribution of orders throughout the country and will allow small businesses to participate more directly in supplying for the defense program.

"It will also enable the earliest possible deliveries of materials needed by the armed forces."

gress voted $400,000,000 in June have been awarded to date, due to the uncertainty over the situation.

Meanwhile the House debated legislation authorizing the President to call out the National Guard and Army reserves for a year's service, but delayed a vote until today as a revolt developed on the floor over a proposal to limit use of the troops to the United States and its possessions.

Navy to Expand Air Training

As the Senate and House worked on the draft and Guard-call measures, Secretary of the Navy Knox announced plans to expand naval aviation training by enlarging 13 elimination training bases and building three new ones. He also revealed that efforts to speed the construction of warships had resulted in advancing the completion dates of four destroyers from two to six months.

Testifying earlier before the House Military Affairs Committee, Knox urged passage of the conscription bill, declaring that if Great Britain falls, the United States, not possessing a two-ocean Navy, must have a large well-trained Army.

"This fight over England—we're not getting the whole truth about it," he said. "We don't really know what the extent of the British losses is.

"If we had a 3,000,000-ton Navy, we'd unquestionably control the Atlantic and Pacific oceans and we'd not be under the necessity of having a huge Army. But we haven't that Navy and won't have it until 1946."

Scale of Pay Increases

Under the pay amendment written into the draft bill, Army and Marine Corps privates, both voluntary recruits and draftees, would be raised from $21 to $30 a month after four months of training, if their service were satisfactory. At present, many men serve for $21 a month for two or three years because of lack of vacancies above.

Privates, first class, would receive $36 a month—an increase of $6—under the plan, while corporals would be paid $54—$12 more than at present, and sergeants $60, an increase of $6. The pay of higher ranking noncommissioned officers would be unchanged. Officials estimated the cost of the pay increases would be about $70,000,000 this year for the Army alone.

Expansion of the naval air training facilities, Secretary Knox said, will give the Navy preliminary instruction facilities for a maximum of 1,600 new pilots a month. Under an enlargement of the Pensacola, Fla., naval air base and with two new bases now building, the Navy will be able to give further training to about 800 men a month, it was said. About 80 per cent of these would earn their wings.

2,000,000 Under Arms By 1943

Other defense developments were:

Defense Commissioner Knudsen informed Congress that an Army of 2,000,000 could be put into the field, fully equipped with modern weapons, by October 1, 1943. The existing program, calling for complete equippment for 1,200,000 men and the procurement of critical non-commercial items for an additional 800,000 will be completed by the end of 1942, Knudsen's memorandum stated.

The Navy announced the organization of a 500-bed portable hospital to be sent to Guantanamo, Cuba, for use "anywhere in the Caribbean area it may be needed." An experimental project, it was said to be the largest of its kind in the world.

Before adjourning for the day, the House wrote into the National Guard bill a proviso permitting guardsmen under 18 years to be given an honorable discharge rather than be called for active service.

Chairman May made the motion to quit late in day when it appeared backers of a motion to limit use of the guard to the United States and its possessions might outnumber his supporters. A vote on the amendment will be taken early today when the Administration expects to have its full strength on hand.

Taft Leads Senate Attack

During the House debate an assertion by Chairman May of the House Military Committee that the bill was necessary because of the "emergency existing in the world today" brought a rejoinder from Representative Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan, that the "only emergency" was the Administration's "worry about the third term."

Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, led the day's attack on the conscription bill with a three-hour speech in the Senate. He urged that a system of voluntary enlistments be substituted for the draft, which, he declared, was "typical of totalitarian nations."

The Ohio Senator charged that "a group of propagandists" were stirring up "excitement and prejudice" for the draft. He named as members of the group, Secretary of War Stimson, Assistant War Secretary Patterson and Col. Julius Ader, of New York.

Modern Recreation Center Opens Tonight in Arlington

New Building Has Theater, Bowling Alleys

Many Conveniences Provided for Patrons In Virginia Structure

To furnish amusement and entertainment for people of what is described as "the fastest growing county in the United States," nearby Virginia's fine recreational center, including the Arlington Theater and Bowling Alleys, opens this evening at 6:30 o'clock. Situated at Columbia pike and Fillmore street, in Arlington, Va., the building is a landmark which the community can accept with pride as one of the finest in the State.

Containing stores and office space as well, it is of solid steel, concrete and brick fireproof design and construction throughout and is equipped with the Carrier air-conditioning system. Patrons there will enjoy the latest motion pictures while resting on large, beautiful, spring-bottom seats, amply spaced for maximum comfort and relaxation in a theater appointed with comfortable lounges and rest rooms. In fact, every modern development to add to the pleasure of customers has been incorporated in the building, as well as every factor adding immeasurably to their entertainment and convenience.

Modernism is the keynote of the establishment. The entrance to the theater from Columbia pike is through a spacious lobby decorated in soft pastel shades and leading directly to the ultra-modern lounge, which is furnished with large, luxurious divans and will afford a meeting place before and after shows.

The auditorium of the theater is outfitted with the latest Bodiform chairs, which are widely spaced, and the aisles are heavily carpeted, harmonizing with the color scheme and absorbing the sound of footsteps. The air-conditioning assures a uniformly healthful temperature, regardless of outside weather conditions.

The bowling alleys are located on the second and third floors of the building, with their entrance on Fillmore street just off Columbia pike. Here have been installed 24 modern, streamlined twentieth century Brunswick-Balke alleys. The bowling center also has been furnished with Bodiform seats for spectators and chrome leather benches for players, which will add to their comfort between games.

Here also is found a complete fountain service with sandwiches, drinks and tobaccos, and as an added convenience a staff of waiters has been assembled to take orders and deliver refreshments to customers. Nothing has been left undone to provide the citizens of Arlington County and its surrounding localities with an amusement center that will be among the foremost of the Washington metropolitan area.

All materials used in the theater are so treated chemically as to provide the utmost in safety and protection. Theater and bowling alleys have been so designed as to provide ample exit in case of emergency. The entire personnel is fully trained to make patrons' visits pleasing and welcome.

The theater is under the personal management of John Duffus, highly experienced and widely known in that community for his friendly service as manager of other theaters in the section. The management states "it is our earnest endeavor to bring to you, your family and your friends good, wholesome and healthful entertainment in keeping with the community with which we are happy to be a part. We are exceptionally proud of our entire personnel for their proven ability, character and interest in your behalf. They have pledged their every effort toward enhancing your visit, and to this end we sincerely believe you will be pleased.

"The policy of operation will be a flexible one, entirely in keeping with your wishes. Doors will open daily at 6:45 p. m., with complete shows at 7 and 9; Saturdays and holidays at 12:45 p. m., with continuous shows from 1 to 11 p. m.; and Sundays at 2:45 p. m., with continuous shows from 3 p. m. The finest pictures available from all the leading producers will grace the Arlington screen. The very best in good wholesome entertainment at popular prices will always be presented in the healthfully air-conditioned comfort of the friendly Arlington Theater."

J. T. Wallace, long a resident of Arlington County and widely known throughout bowling circles for his friendly cooperation, is manager of the bowling alleys. Devotees of the sport can always count on his enthusiastic help and that of his assistants in aiding them to form leagues, make reservations and straightening out bowling problems. Mr. Wallace and his assistants are able, patient instructors, always willing to offer individual help to all desiring to learn or improve their ability.

The bowlig alleys are fine, high-speed regulation type, colorful and modern, in an atmosphere where the increasingly popular and healthful sport can be enjoyed to its fullest extent. On these alleys even noise has been reduced to a minimum by acoustical sound-proofing.

British Barred Bowling in Middle Ages

Game Interfered With Archery and Other Military Sport

Probably originating when a couple of cave men declared a truce and found resulting peace a little too quiet and dull and decided to liven things up a bit by throwing or rolling stones at objects instead of each other, the great game of bowling comes right down through the ages to the present day with as glamorous and exciting a history as the most romantic person could wish for.

Taking on different forms in the different countries in which it became popular, bowling has been the pet game of kings and emperors one day and the victim of laws passed to suppress it because of its popularity the next. In England in the Middle Ages so many of the young bloods of the nobility preferred bowling to archery and other military exercises that laws were passed forbidding the game. And in the period of Queen Elizabeth the great Sir Francis Drake was found bowling by the courier sent to warn him of the approach of the dreaded Spanish Armada. Said Drake, "There's time enough to win this game and beat the Spaniards too." He did both!

While every country has its own variations of the game and alleys have varied from 20 to 100 feet in length and from 6 inches to 10 feet in width and the arrangement and number of pins have been changed countless times, the most extreme variation of the game is the swashbuckling version practiced by the Irish from the days of William the Conqueror to the present.

For equipment they used two 28-ounce iron balls and a country road about 3 miles long which boasts the virtues of as many turns, twists and hazards as can be found. On the great day of the contest the two competitors arrive, surrounded by a host of very loyal and partisan followers. Each county backs its man to the limit—with tongue, purse and fists if need be. The object of the game is to throw the iron ball the distance of about 3 miles in the least possible number of heaves. And these strong Irishmen frequently threw the whole 28-ounce mass of iron 280 yards!

The finessing comes in at the turns in the road, where a throw may possibly be saved by heaving the ball over some poor farmer's house. If it goes over the house, that's swell; if it knocks over a chimney or plops through the roof onto the dining table that's too bad—for the owner of the house!

So enthusiastic are the followers of each bowler that they crowd the road ahead so that there is only a narrow lane left for the ball to pass through. When the ball takes a bad bounce and caroms off some fellow's head he is lucky if he is able to escape without further punishment from the enraged partisans of the bowler whose ball has been "slowed up." That's how they take their bowling in Ireland.

When our Puritan fathers in the middle of the seventeenth century banned the then popular game of ninepins, introduced by the Dutch, they little dreamed that by sounding the death knell of the old game they were giving birth to the new game of American tenpins, which was developed by the addition of one pin, evading the nine-pin "blue sky" ban.

From this has developed the modern game of bowling, one of the Nation's favorite indoor sports, with a rabid following of more than 10,000,000 player enthusiasts, men and women of all ages and in all walks of life.

History dates the first crude forms of bowling to the thirteenth century, when only those of privileged rank, the nobility and members of the royal family participated on privately owned outdoor courts or alleys. They were constructed of any suitable material which would provide a nearly flat surface, such as clay, cinders, slate, wooden slabs or grass. What a far cry from the sleek, mirror-like surface of the modern bowling alley.

Casting of Player Odd Coincidence

Just 22 years after the death of his eldest brother in a German submarine, Ferdinand Schumann-Heink, a son of the late Ernestine Schumann-Heink, famed opera star, was signed at Paramount Studio today to portray a German submarine captain.

Schumann-Heink's role is that of an officer in "Mystery Sea Raider," whose "U-boat" is crushed under a freighter captained by Henry Wilcoxon.

Player Is Injured In Fight Scene

Richard Denning, Paramount featured player, suffered a slight chest injury in prize fight scenes of "Golden Gloves," in which he was boxing Robert Ryan, four-time Dartmouth heavyweight champion.

The actor was removed to Hollywood Hospital for X-rays, which proved no bones were broken, and after an hour's rest returned to continue scenes under direction of Edward Dmytryk.

Actor Lyricist

Gene Raymond, who stars with Wendy Barrie in the sparkling comedy, "Cross Country Romance," is a successful song writer on the side. One of his hit numbers, "Let Me Always Sing," is used by his wife, Jeanette MacDonald, on her concert tours.

Cary Grant, Irene Dunne On First Bill

'My Favorite Wife' To Be Shown at New Arlington Theater

Arlington Theater, located in the new Arlington Recreation Center, will present as first motion picture at its opening this evening at 6:30 o'clock, "My Favorite Wife," starring Cary Grant and Irene Dunne. Besides this comedy hit there will be a showing of Wendell Willkie, Republican candidate for the Presidency, as guest "guesser" on a recent "Information Please" program, and up-to-the-minute news reels. Complete shows will be given at 7 and 9 p. m., and the opening program, in its entirety, will be repeated tomorrow and Saturday.

Ace talent and a streamlined story of modern marital entanglements mark the fast-paced, delightful comedy entertainment, "My Favorite Wife." Reunited for the first time since their appearance in the memorable comedy hit, "The Awful Truth," Irene Dunne and Cary Grant are costarred. The reunion also includes Leo McCarey, producer-director of "The Awful Truth," who guided the production for RKO Radio. Garson Kanin, responsible for "Bachelor Mother," "The Great Man Votes" and "A Man to Remember," directed, with Randolph Scott and Gail Patrick heading a notable supporting cast.

The comedy penned by Bella and Samuel Spewack, authors of "Boy Meets Girl" and "Clear All Wires," is described as a breezy, laugh-laden, sophisticated comedy.

Miss Dunne, cast as Grant's wife, disappears when a scientific expedition for which she is the photographer is shipwrecked in the South Seas. After seven years Grant has her declared legally dead and marries Gail Patrick.

Unfortunately, Irene is very much alive, and is rescued from the desert island with Scott, a handsome scientist with whom she has been marooned alone all this time. She arrives home on the very night her husband embarks on his second honeymoon.

Chartering a plane, she flies to Yosemite to overtake the newlyweds. After she flabbergasts Grant with her appearance the play attains dizzying heights of hilarity. Irene tries to outwit Gail for the love of her husband. Grant grows frantic in his efforts to tell his bride the startling truth of Irene's return. Gail can't understand her groom's sudden coolness. And when Grant learns of Irene's island mate, Scott, who now wants to marry Irene, the picture unrolls a series of spicy situations and scintillating moments unique to the screen which are climaxed by a whirlwind laugh-finish!

Envoys From Europe Enjoying Spotlight

U. S. Diplomats Home From Blitzkrieged Countries Cynosure of Attention as They Lunch and Confer at the Mayflower

By Hope Ridings Miller

DIPLOMATIC CIRCLING centered around the Mayflower dining room at luncheon time yesterday when several United States envoys to blitzkrieged countries ran away with the spotlight.

Whispers of interest rippled from one table to another as John Cudahy, Ambassador to Belgium, arrived with Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Ambassador to Poland, and Mrs. Biddle, and Mr. and Mrs. "Chip" Robert.

Hope Ridings Miller

An additional dash of diplomatic drama was furnished by Ambassador William Bullitt, who came in a bit later and joined the party briefly. Presently, Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles turned up, and Bullitt went over to a corner table to lunch with him.

Across the room German Charge d'Affaires Hans Thomsen was in a small luncheon group. The Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga, had a couple of guests with him. Later yesterday, he left for Miami, Fla., and will go from there by plane to Havana.

Still another diplomatic luncheon party on yesterday's Mayflower calendar was the small one attended by the Spanish Ambassador, Don Juan Francisco de Cardenas.

AS I HINTED BEFORE, however, Ambassador Cudahy was the center of more attention than anybody present. Arriving in Washington early yesterday, he is registered at the Shoreham, as is Ambassador Bullitt. Both will be here until Saturday. Also planning to be here a couple of days longer are the Biddles, who are staying at the Carlton, and had a few friends dining with them last night.

Next week-end Ambassador and Mrs. Biddle will go to White Sulphur Springs, where they will be joined by Prince and Princess Aleksander Hohenlohe, Mrs. Biddle's son-in-law and daughter.

Meanwhile, Evie Robert will be off Saturday for Hot Springs, Va., where her small daughter, Alice Birney, is on a vacation. The two will return to Washington Monday. Later in the week Mrs. Robert will go to New York, and from now on through the next few months she will divide her time between there and here.

NEWPORT NOTES: Biggest fete at the Bailey Beach Club this season is scheduled to go on the boards tonight when a brilliant crowd turns out for the Red and White Ball for the benefit of the Red Cross. The idea for the event originated with Isabelle Meuser, who made her debut here a few months ago and is handling plans for the party.

Assisting on arrangements is Helen Marie de Limur, who, with her mother, Countess Andre de Limur, is spending the summer at Newport; and Sylvia Szechenyi, daughter of Countess Laszlo Szechenyi. Meyer Davis and his orchestra will provide music for the ball, and there will be three dance competitions and prizes for the best red and white gowns worn. Judges for the waltz number will include Mrs. Henry Drummond-Wolff, Dr. Alexander Hamilton Rice and George Henry Warren. James Parks, of Washington, will serve with Julian M. Gerard, jr., as judge of the Conga number.

Pendleton Hogan Leaves Today On His Vacation

Pendleton Hogan, who has divided his time this summer between a military training camp and his job here, will leave today on a real vacation. He will go by boat to Bar Harbor for a visit with James Mitchell, from there to Skowhegan, Me., to stay with Artist William Cummings, and will spend several days at other Maine resorts.

Mr. Hogan, who is a successful novelist in his spare time, hopes to see Mary Roberts Rinehart during his Bar Harbor sojourn. He has met her several times before and says she is very charming. She will enjoy a family reunion at her summer home on Monday, her birthday, when two of her sons, Theodore and Stanley, accompanied by their wives, arrive to celebrate with her.

During the quiet summer evenings in Washington, Mr. Hogan has been working on a new novel and is about a third through it. The scene is laid in an old Mediterranean town, and he says the whole thing is completely "escapist."

Procopes to Fete Finnish Guest

A woman member of the Finnish Parliament, Miss Kyllikki Pohjala, has arrived in Washington, and will be feted at a tea to be given this afternoon by the Minister of Finland and Mme. Procope.

Miss Pohjala is in this country on a Finnish relief mission. She has been in New York for several weeks but this is her first trip to the Capital. Her progressive little country has several other women members of Parliament.

Mrs. Shawhan Flies To California

Mrs. Romer Shawhan, of Crestwood drive, left recently by plane for California, where she will visit her daughter, Mrs. H. Gardner Putnam, in Oakland for some time.

Also in Oakland for a visit are Mrs. Shawhan's son, Edward Zabriskie Buck, and his bride, the former Miss Dorothy Hoard, of El Paso, Tex. Mr. and Mrs. Buck later will sail for Honolulu where he will resume his practice of law.

Selden Chapins Are Honor Guests Of Glen Abbey

Glen Abbey of the State Department had a few friends in for cocktails yesterday afternoon at his apartment on Florida avenue, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Selden Chapin. Mr. Chapin's tour of duty with the State Department in Washington is up, but so far he hasn't been told his next post.

Department colleagues of the host were in the majority at the party. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Clark were there and others included Mr. and Mrs. Julian Harrington. Mr. Harrington is in the visa division and so has had a very busy summer. His wife has been here the whole time also, except for a brief stay on Long Island with Mrs. Chapin.

Miss Louise Claytor, in a blue and white polka dot dress and a blue turban also was among the guests. Mrs. Chapin wore a blue and white print dress.

Mrs. McCoach Gives Luncheon At Army-Navy Club

Mrs. David McCoach, jr., wife of Col. McCoach, Engineer Commissioner of the District, entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Army-Navy Town Club.

Guests included Mrs. Eugene Reybold, wife of Col. Reybold; Mrs. George Mayo, wife of Col. Mayo; Mrs. Beverly C. Snow, wife of Maj. Snow; Mrs. Patrick Timothy, wife of Maj. Timothy; Mrs. John Person, wife of Capt. Person; Mrs. Frederic V. Hemenway, wife of Col. Hemenway, and Mrs. James Hemenway.

Col. and Mrs. Reybold have arrived for duty from Little Rock, Ark., where he was division engineer. He will be with the general staff. Mrs. Frederic Hemenway has come from Chicago, where her husband is stationed, for a visit with her sister-in-law.

Hoges Leave Today For Jamestown, N.Y.

Maj. and Mrs. K. G. Hoge and their son, K. G., jr., will leave today for Jamestown, N. Y., where they will visit Mrs. Hoge's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Radford for several days.

On September 1, the Hoges will sail from New York on the Grant for San Francisco by way of the Panama Canal. From California they will travel by motor to Maj. Hoge's new post at Fort Bliss, Tex.

Comdr. Windsor Marries Mrs. Stephenson

Couple Are Wed In Chapel at U. S. Naval Academy

Yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, in the chapel of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Mrs. Lowry B. Stephenson, of Washington, was married to Lieut. Comdr. Charles Clifford Windsor, U. S. N., retired. Their engagement was announced on Monday.

The bride was given in marriage by her son, David Chew Stephenson, of Washington. She wore a long flesh-colored gown of chiffon, with a wide-brimmed hat to match, and carried a bouquet of gardenias. Her only attendant was Mrs. Clarence Nelson Hinkamp, who had chosen a white eyelet frock and hat to match. Capt. Hinkamp, who is in command of the U. S. S. Texas, which arrived in Annapolis yesterday, was best man.

A reception at the Officers Club followed the ceremony. Later the couple left for a honeymoon in the North. They will visit relatives in Marion, Mass., and York Harbor, Me., and then go on to New Brunswick, Canada, before returning to live here.

Among out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. James M. Mason, jr., Mrs. Page Mason and Mrs. James M. Mason 3d, of Charles Town, W. Va.; Miss Rosebud Talbot, of Louisville, Ky.; Miss Jean Hancock, of Philadelphia, and the bride's uncle and aunt, Oswald Chew and Miss Elizabeth Shew, of Philadelphia.

The bride is the widow of Lieut. Col. Lowry B. Stephenson, U. S. M. C.

Elizabeth Mullane Engaged to Wed Ensign Alexander

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Mullane, of East Hampton, Long Island, announce the betrothal of their daughter, Elizabeth Frances, to Ensign Raymond Wellington Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Michael Alexander, of Washington.

Ensign Alexander was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1938 and is now stationed at Norfolk, on the U. S. S. Decatur. Tentative plans are being made for the wedding to take place in October.

Iowa Man Weds Miss Armitage

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Armitage, of Alexandria and Richmond, announce the marriage of their daughter, Jacqueline Elizabeth, to Daniel Leo Tierney, of Dubuque, Iowa, on August 9, in Washington.

Mr. Tierney is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Tierney, of Dubuque, Iowa, and Chicago, Ill. He will engage in the practice of law, shortly, in Washington.

They will make their home after September 1, at the Presidential Gardens Apartments, in Alexandria.

Kappa Gamma Chapters To Hold Joint Meeting

The interchapter meeting for the six chapers of Kappa Gamma Sorority will be held this evening at 8 o'clock at the clubrooms in the Raleigh Hotel.

There will be a varied program and the featured speaker of the evening will be Inspector L. R. Penningon, administrative assistant to J. Edgar Hoover, of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Lieut. and Mrs. Heinl Arrive Tomorrow

Lieut. and Mrs. Robert Heinl, who are stationed at Parris Island, will arrive here Friday for a short stay.

Mrs. Heinl, the former Miss Nancy Wright, will be with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wright, for several weeks.

Mrs. A. Dennie Lewis Gives Large Luncheon at Shoreham

Two guests from out of town and two new residents of Washington shared honors yesterday when Mrs. A. Dennie Lewis entertained at a large luncheon at the Shoreham Hotel.

In the feted group were Mrs. George Cornelius, of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Seafrie Andrews, of St. Paul, Minn., the latter is Mrs. Lewis' sister. Other honor guests were Mrs. Bruce B. Adel and Mrs. Eric Zemke, wives of naval lieutenant commanders who have recently come to Washington for duty.

The Louis Seize room was the scene of the party. Four bouquets of yellow and rust blossoms decorated the long table at which covers were laid for 32. Receiving her guests informally, Mrs. Lewis was smartly attired in a black and white figured frock, set off with a small black nalo hat and black accessories.

Among the guests were Mrs. Hal Clagett, Mrs. Robert Graham, Mrs. Frederick Richardson, Mrs. Walter Maloney, Mrs. Moran Drury, Mrs. William Marsh, Mrs. Cy Zeller, Mrs. Earl Houck, Mrs. Warner Cubberly, Mrs. William Bayfield, Mrs. D. Russ Woods, Mrs. Paul Teter, Mrs. F. McKenzie Davison, Mrs. Neitah King, Mrs. Newton Brewer, Mrs. Edward Walter, Miss Kathryn Lewis, Mrs. Clarence Lee Miller, Mrs. Joseph Herbert, Mrs. James Drury Cunningham, Mrs. Al Ryan, Mrs. Roy Sayre, Mrs. Dwight Galt, Mrs. Paul Ward, Mrs. Clifton Veirs and Miss Anne Graham.

Arnolds Plan Benefit Party

All roads this afternoon and evening will be leading to the home of Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Thurman Arnold in Great Falls road, Va. From 5 o'clock on, the buffet supper and marionette show for the benefit of St. John's Episcopal Church, McLean, Va., will be full speed ahead—with something planned for everybody.

The country store, where fresh eggs and all manner and type of "produce" may be purchased, is set up and will be ready for business well before the opening hour. A troop of Boy Scouts will handle the parking situation, and a number of Campfire girls will be on hand to sell popcorn and candy.

A special feature of the program will be pony rides for youngsters. The pasture back of the Arnold home will be the scene of the rides, which will begin near the shed usually occupied by "Angel," the Arnolds' famous cow, and her twin calves.

In case of rain, the fete will take place tomorrow evening.

Engaged

MISS ANNE F. BRADY, whose engagement to Dr. Edward A. Salloom is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Brady, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa. The bride-elect is a graduate of Mercy Hospital, Wilkes-Barre, and has been affiliated with Georgetown Hospital for the past five years. Dr. Salloom, son of Mrs. Job Salloom and the late Rev. Salloom, is a graduate of Georgetown University dental school. The wedding will take place October 30

George Bell, Jr., And Bride to Live In Takoma Park

Mr. and Mrs. George Edington Bell, jr., who were married here Sunday morning, will make their home in Takoma Park. The bride is the former Miss Catherine Josephine Fraley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Fraley, of Redland, Md., and Mr. Bell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bell, of Potomac, Md.

The couple were married in Calvary Methodist Church. The rector, the Rev. Orris G. Robinson, officiated. The bridegroom's father was formerly sheriff of Montgomery County and at one time was a county commissioner.

Walter Nelsons On Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Edwin Nelson, who were married Sunday afternoon, are spending their honeymoon in the Adirondacks. Mr. Nelson was recently named dean of men of the Union Springs Academy, Union Springs, N. Y., and the couple will go there the end of this week to live.

The bride is the former Miss Ruth Theodora Petty, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Theodore Petty and the late Mr. Petty, of Hamilton, Bermuda, and Takoma Park. The couple were wed in Brooklyn, N. Y., at the home of the bridegroom's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Walter Alfred Nelson. The bridegroom's father, who is president of the Greater New York Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, officiated.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Nelson are graduates of Washington Missionary College in Takoma Park, and Mr. Nelson was chosen as one of the students whose name will appear this year in "Who's Who Among the Universities and Colleges in America."

Virginia Capps, T. B. Ridgeway Are Married

Bridegroom's Father Officiates at Evening Candlelight Ceremony

At a candlelight ceremony at 8 o'clock last night, Miss Virginia Ruth Capps, daughter of Mrs. Murray H. Boyer, of Washington, became the bride of Thomas Byron Ridgeway, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Frank T. Ridgeway, of this city. The bridegroom's father officiated at the wedding, which took place in the Francis Asbury Methodist Church before an altar flanked with palms and baskets of white gladioli and lilies.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. Boyer, wore a gown of ivory satin made with a sweetheart neck, puffed sleeves and a long train. Her veil, which was trimmed with lace, fell from a seed pearl tiara, and she carried white roses and lilies of the valley with an orchid center.

Miss Leona Shade Is Maid of Honor

Miss Leona Shade was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Florence White, Dorothy Jones, Patricia Ridgeway and Eleanor Corbin. Miss Shade was dressed in blue taffeta and the others chose orchid, pink, green and yellow. They carried hats filled with garden flowers and wore flower wreaths in their hair.

Kenneth Karr was best man, and the ushers were Douglas Reeve, Edward Mason, David Hargrove and Walter Grubbs.

A reception at the Boyer home for relatives and out-of-town guests followed the ceremony. The bride's mother wore old rose lace, and Mrs. Ridgeway was attired in printed pink chiffon. Assisting were Mrs. Prentiss D. Sale and Mrs. Victoria MacDonald.

Several Guests From Out of Town

Later the couple left for Rehoboth, the bride wearing a pink crepe ensemble with white accessories. She is a graduate of Strayer College, and her husband is an alumnus of Catholic University.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mrs. John Worthington, Upper Darby, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Hutchinson and Mr. and Mrs. Ken Linkins, of Herndon, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Hyde, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McCulloch, Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Henderson, of Buchanan, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Lake, of Philmont, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Van Sickler, of Purcellville, Va.

Leaving for Resort

Col. and Mrs. F. G. Munson and their sub-deb daughter, Miss Hilda Munson, will leave today for Rehoboth Beach, Dela., where they will be until after Labor Day.

Mrs. McLean's Guest List As Brilliant as Hope Diamond

Joseph Hergesheimer, Lionel Atwill, Dr. de Savitsch and Long List of State And Diplomatic Notables Among Guests

Invited by impromptu telegrams, guests gathered at Friendship last evening for an informal dinner party given by Mrs. Edward Beale McLean—proving that society can and does function in humid Washington.

The guest list glimmered almost as much as the Hope diamond worn by the hostess. Novelist Joseph Hergesheimer and Dr. Eugene de Savitsch, whose autobiography recently was published, were centers of as much interest as was Actor Lionel Atwill. That artistic fillip, which is all too infrequent in official-ridden Washington, is an integral part of a McLean function.

Others who attended the dinner party were the Argentine Ambassador Felipe Espil, the Finnish Minister and Mme. Procope, Senator and Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., Senator Henry F. Ashurst, Senator William H. King, Senator Arthur Capper, Senator Robert A. Taft, Senator Joseph F. Guffey and Miss Guffey and Senator Robert R. Reynolds.

Admiral Emory Land and Gen. and Mrs. Sherman Miles were among the guests, as were Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Fleming, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, George T. Summerlin, Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Hetzel, James Williams, the Rev. Edmund J. Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Lewis, J. Fred Essary and the hostess' daughter, Miss Evalyn McLean.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

The Belgian Ambassador and Countess van der Straten Ponthoz are leaving shortly for a brief vacation at the Meadow Club, Southampton, Long Island.

Representative and Mrs. Harold D. Cooley, of Nashville, N. C., are at the Wardman Park. Others recently arrived there are Representative J. Bayard Clark, of Fayetteville, N. C.; Representative W. Sterling Cole, of Bath, N. Y., and Representative Leonard W. Hall, of Oyster Bay, Long Island.

Mrs. Edward L. Reed, wife of the Counselor of the American Embassy in Rome, is spending several days in New York, where she is at the Waldorf Astoria.

Mr. and Mrs. William W. Rapley, of Washington, are at the St. Regis Hotel in New York for a brief visit before returning to the Chevy Chase Club, where they are summering. Mrs. Rapley was, before her marriage last winter, Mrs. McKenney Mallan.

Mrs. George F. Shea, of Washington, with Mrs. Frank R. Blaul, entertained at cocktails recently at the Essex and Sussex Hotel, Spring Lake Beach, N. Y., for Baron and Baroness de Nieuvenhove.

Fletcher G. Conn, former State Representative in Tennesse, now special attorney for the Federal Trade Moccission, and his mother, Mrs. Hattye Gans, will leave today for Hot Springs, Va. En route they will visit Memphis, Tenn., their former home, and will stop at the Peabody Hotel there.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Mann Miller, of West Chevy Chase, and their daughter, Miss Edna May Miller, have left for Virginia Beach, where they will be at the Cavalier. Miss Miller recently returned from Rehoboth Beach, where with Frederick Steiwer, jr., she was a guest of the latter's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McElvenny, at their home in The Pines.

Col. Edgar H. Thompson is a patient at Walter Reed Hospital. Mrs. Thompson, the former Miss Elsie Brock, will be at the Hostess House during his stay in the hospital.

Miss Evangeline Rice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Rice, of 1749 Irving street, has as her guest this week Miss Marjory Boucher, of Nassau, Bahamas. Miss Rice recently returned from a month at Nassau and Miss Boucher is en route to Toronto to compete in the Canadian National Swimming Championships.

Mary Bouic Is Bride Of George F. Evans

Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Boulc, of Rockville, Md., have announced the marriage of their daughter, Mary Vinson Bouic, to George Francis Evans, son of Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur E. Evans, of Chevy Chase, Md.

The marriage took place Monday at All Saints' Episcopal Church. The Rev. Henry Teller Cocke officiated.

Basic Wool Costume Heads List In Most Fall Wardrobe Planning

Permits Ensemble Changes; Experts Predict Record Year for Fabric

By Marshall Adams

The Post Fashion Editor.

IN PLANNING your fall wardrobe, consider first a basic costume of wool. It might be a sheer wool dress, a hairy wool suit or a topcoat and frock combination. It might be a little jacket and dress with a wool calot of identical fabric.

MARSHALL ADAMS

Fashion experts predict 1940-41 will be one of the biggest wool years in recent fashion history. It's not going to be the sort of woolly fall we've been used to when those of unlimited check books could saunter out and buy up virgin wools imported from the Shetland Isles; fragrant tweeds from England or heathery ones from the Scottish moors. Fat check books can still buy these imported woolens, purchased seasons back by canny stylists, but the quantity is limited. The brightest news about fall woolens is that they have been loomed right in our own back yards, in places like New Jersey and New York, and with much of the artistry used for over a century in British and European factories.

Wool this fall is not relegated to tweedy or horsey types. Tweeds have gone on a sort of wool exchange so that they can be juggled around with harmonizing lightweight or lacy-type woolens for contrast.

Almost every woman will be on this exchange system by next month, juggling her tweed costume jacket with its matching angora wool dress; swapping the same jacket with domestic men's wear slacks; changing it over for wear with cashmere sweaters and flannel skirts; or contrasting the same tweed topper with a broadcloth dinner gown.

Washington shops are already featuring a three-to-one "rate of exchange" with a natural colored camels hair balmacaan combining with a "boys jacket" of the same camel's hair and a skirt of the same warm fabric in a darker color. Camel's hair, is not, strictly speaking, a wool, but is classified as such since moderately priced camel's hair is usually woven with lambs wood for practical purposes. Another exchange basis has been worked out in local shops in the form of a three-piece Highland plaid suit. The pleated skirt can be worn with jerkins, blouses and such, the gay jacket over first dark crepes, and the little plaid skull cap can give color to fur jackets or somber winter coats.

The success of exchanging woolens with rayon, velvet or other wool garments lies in the balance of lightweight fabrics against heavier ones. Never combine clumsy hairy tweeds with equally heavy woolens—unless you are "painfully thin" and wish to give the appearance of greater bulk.

If you're very slender, wear roughage tweeds, the more texture and the bolder the plaid, check or herringbone pattern, the better. Wear them in light colors, especially since white and beige woolens are the sauvest fabric news of the fall and winter.

If weight is your problem, you can still wear wool and feel just as slim as in crepe. Choose wool jersey, cashmere, rabbit's hair or tissue dress woolens. The darkest browns, blacks, purpley taupes or subdued pheasant colors are most flattering. Smooth texture and dull surface effects are slenderizing and quiet styling in shirtwaist dresses or feather weight costume suits is all to the good when one wants to look 10 pounds slighter.

An illustration of the adaptable rate of exchange possible in this fall's woolen fashions is seen above. Patricia Plunkett, last season's "No. 1 deb of New York," poses in this three-piece highland plaid suit, adaptable just "as is" for campus or country week-ends. The flaring skirt can be juggled around with light sweaters; the flaring jacket with dark skirts, the jaunty beret with bright wool shirtwaist dresses

The Gentler Sex

The New Foundation

"Yes, these are the ones advertised . . . Yes, only $3.50 . . . Oh, yes, some are a little soiled but then of course . . . Well wouldn't you like to look at some in our regular stock? . . .

"Now here's one of the newest fall Sylphies . . . Yes, you see to give the new hilhouette . . . Oh, it's $5, but then it's a much newer model than those on the table. And then it hasn't been lying in stock. However, you can't tell much about it this way. Don't you want to step into the fitting room? . . .

"Now this little Sylphie gives you the new hipline control. See how slenderizing . . . Oh, no, now you aren't either—that is, not really stout. Why you have a very nice figure—if you'd just take care of it with the proper coreting . . . Now see how smooth that is . . . Still—I believe you could stand a little more length. Wait a minute!

"Now this little Hollywood Stretch is a little longer—it'll give you more leg control . . . No it's not much more expensive—only $7.50, and anyway if you have a good foundation, you really don't need anything else. Just slip it on . . . Now, isn't that flattering! Look at that lovely fluid line! And that panel control! Now that really does things for you! Still . . . you could stand a little more waistline control. Wait! I have something I want you to see!

"Let's just try this little Mermaid Flex. . . . Yes, there you see it gives you that midriff control you need. . . . Oh, no, now really you haven't any spare tire to speak of—only it's something you'll have to watch! That's why it's so important to get the right corset—what? . . . This is $10 . . . Oh no, that isn't so much! Not for a really good foundation! And when you consider that your figure is really all that counts—what? . . . Stiff? . . . But it couldn't be stiff when it's made of this new zephyr flex . . . However I have another little model that's lighter . . . and with a little more abdominal control.

"Now here's something that's really your garment—this little Venus Lax . . . Just slip it on . . . There, now—look at that marvelous girth control! And yet see how much freedom—what? . . . Well that's $12.50, but then of course it has the imported boning. And look at that satin applique! and that plush padding! . . . And those little satin rosebuds! . . . Oh, but that really isn't high for the figure you're buying . . . Now, now—that's just because you're not corset conscious! Really it makes you look a lot less fat—that is, lots lighter . . . No, no, it doesn't give you a corseted look at all . . . No, I know what you mean, but this doesn't make you look at all stiff. Still—if you want to really see something—wait a minute.

"I wish you'd just put this on . . . Did you ever feel anything as comfortable? Look at that torso control! Now this is a little Bali Girdlierre. What? . . . Well it's $15 but then—Oh, but now wait! See what it does for you! Why it takes at least 10 pounds off! What? . . . No indeed, I don't think that's too much to pay for a corset . . . Yes indeed it's a marvelous investment! . . . No, no, you'll never regret it! Why it would simply be extravagance to buy the cheaper ones . . . Yes, you see they all gave you such a corseted look and this is so—so sinuous. You see it's designed to give you the Bali figure—you know the women of Bali? Why they say that every man traveler just comes back raving—What? . . . Oh, all right. Cash or charge?"

Learn to Play Piano at Home

A GIRL has a right to feel proud when she's taught herself to play the piano—can say "yes" to friends who beg for popular hits. How a man beams when you can play his own special favorite!

Learning the piano isn't hard and, by an easy short-cut method, you soon have many pieces in your repertoire, can keep up with all the new music.

For your first lessons, you have a "life-size" chart for the commonly used part of the keyboard. This chart shows you each note as it appears on the music staff and the piano key, numbered, that you strike for it.

With this guide you soon master notes and keyboards. But in following the quick way to play popular hits, you don't have to play every note you see.

You'll notice above the vocal staff little guitar diagrams. The letters with these diagrams are chord symbols. "F," for instance, is the first chord symbol shown. You look in a table of chords, find the "F" chord with the numbers 10-6-1. These numbers correspond to the numbered keys on your chart—show at a glance what keys to strike.

You may have only four or five different chords for an entire piece, so you look them up in a jiffy—writing the key numbers on your sheet music. With your right hand follow the melody or tune on the vocal staff, play with your left the numbered keys as accompanying bass chords. And what a thrill to find yourself dashing off popular hits, winning applause.

Our 24-page instruction book, "A Short Cut to Piano Playing," gives you the keyboard chart, a table of chords, the music and words of six favorite tunes for practice. Explains musical terms, time values, flats, sharps. Size of book: 8½ by 12 inches.

Send 15 cents in coins for our instruction book, "A Short Cut to Piano Playing," to The Washington Post Home Institute, 100 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of instruction book.

Three Simple Exercises Daily Will Help 'Save' the Figure

By Ida Jean Kain

FROM NOW ON you can't call it a day until you have taken a few exercises. Here I've been warning you against exercise early in the morning or late at night—and probably those were the only times you could find to do your daily half-dozen. So you've had a perfect alibi!

That early morning exercise ban really wasn't intended for you. It applies to the highly strung nervous girls who need slowing down, not speeding up, and must learn to ease into their day's activity. The only real objection to you reducers taking your workout then is that you may not have the time to do a thorough job—but better a few hurried exercises than none at all! And, there's the chance that if you get into the habit of exercise before breakfast you will allow 5 to 10 minutes in which to do your figure a good turn.

Not Sleep Maker

Since exercise is a stimulant, it is certainly not a good plan to romp through 30 minutes of calisthenics just before retiring. A vigorous workout will wake you up, not lull you to sleep. But if you haven't taken any exercise during the day, then you'd jolly well better take a few of the less strenuous variety.

Here are three which may be used either night or morning, for they will wake you up gently or relax you for slumber:

POSITION: Lying on the back on the floor, legs straight down, arms down at sides.

MOVEMENT: Cross the right leg over the left, touching toes to floor at far side, as you stretch right arm up on floor high overhead. Stretch and relax, then stretch the other side. Perform slowly, eight counts in all, relaxing between.

POSITION: Lying on back on floor, arms straight out on floor at the sides shoulder level, knees flexed and feet on floor close to buttocks.

MOVEMENT: Keeping arms and shoulders on the floor, twist at the waist to one side, pointing knees down hard. Back to position, and twist to the other side. After twisting at the waist to both sides, rest for a second in starting position and pull up and in with the lower abdominal muscles, pressing the small of the back against the floor, then continue the exercise.

POSITION: Lying face downward on the floor, head resting on folded arms, legs straight down.

MOVEMENT: Tensing the muscles of the buttocks, raise alternate legs as high in the air as possible. Hold, lower. Repeat 12 counts, relaxing between movements.

These three simple exercises very effectively tone the muscles of the waistline, abdomen and hips. Done night or morning they will save your figure—but for special streamlining, make it ten minutes night and morning.

Casserole Dish

Appealing and Nutritious

IF YOU are looking for a nutritious dish to serve with a tossed green salad when planning an appealing summer menu, try a casserole of deviled eggs and shrimp. The blending of the several flavors in this dish gives it a great distinction.

Deviled Eggs and Shrimp

Hard cook 6 eggs. Then peel, mash yolks; add ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard and 2 tablespoons mayonnaise. Place the eggs in a greased casserole with 1½ cups cooked or canned shrimp from which the membrane has been removed. Melt 3 tablespoons butter and 4 tablespoons flour and ½ teaspoon salt, and mix well. Add 3 cups milk gradually, stirring until thoroughly blended. Cook, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened. Add 4 ounces grated American cheese and cook until melted. Pour over eggs and shrimp. Top with buttered bread crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, about 35 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

A combination vegetable salad to complement the casserole dish would be just the thing to serve. Make it as follows:

Vegetable Salad

Combine 1 cup shredded cabbage, ½ cup raw carrot, chopped fine, ½ cup celery, chopped fine, and 2 tablespoons minced green pepper. Chill thoroughly. Mix with French dressing.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Nervous Widow Says Doctor Prescribes Love Affair As Health Restorative; Is This Sensible Advice?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: After six years' separation from my husband, I don't seem able to forget that I have been married and that the vows are null and void. What can I do? I have joined club groups, a church and a young peoples' church group. I have sung in the choir. I have tried social work. And all of it leaves me empty hearted and forlorn.

It isn't that I love my husband any longer. Since we parted, I have just lost interest in men. You see, he left the city with the understanding that when his finances improved, I was to join him. I had a good job of my own at the time. However, he hadn't been gone a month before he wrote to say that while I had been a fine wife, he hadn't been happy with me and we were through. I tried to find out why. I learned there was another woman and so I gave him his freedom.

My health and nerves are bad. I have consulted my physician and he prescribes a love affair as a health restorative. I don't feel that I can make such a compromise with my conscience. I feel it would be wrong. But things look desperate and I can't go on indefinitely in this dreary fashion. So, lately, I have been toying with the idea of having an affair with a man much older than I, and married. This man doesn't love me and I don't love him. It would be a purely selfish arrangement on both sides.

If candidly viewed for just what it is, could so desperate a remedy be employed without doing more harm than good? Is it a foolish proposition? I am 30 years old and have always been known as the sturdy, sweet, dependable type; have never been considered foolish, and have never intentionally hurt others. I need guidance badly and hope you or your readers can give it to me.

Sincerely,
PERPLEXED.

An Unlikely Prescription And Doubtful Remedy

DEAR PERPLEXED: I am inclined to question your statement that your physician "prescribes a love affair as a health restorative." The average doctor's common sense self interest, professional code of ethics and special knowledge of the acutely increased psychic distress usually experienced by neurotic women who defy their conscience to engage in furtive intrigue, would constitute a three-fold deterrent to any such recommendation—even though he might recognize that love starvation or sexual repression were largely responsible for a given woman's nervous illness.

However, in order to get ahead with the discussion, we shall assume, as our premise, that such a course has been suggested to you; or has, at least, occurred to you. And I should say that it would be an absurdly superficial remedy, calculated (as implied above) to intensify rather than to relieve (much less correct) the emotional blockage that is making your life a waking nightmare.

As all intelligently self aware women know, love and sexuality are synonymous or indivisible—incapable of finding truly healthy separate expression—for the normal (or potentially normal) feminine nature. Thus, a woman who was psychically off key, because of a lack in her life of either love or adequate sexual satisfaction, very likely would be tearing herself further to pieces, rather than achieving any coherency of emotional expression, if she were to engage in so brutish a relationship as you consider.

To the sense of outrage her nervous system already suffers, as a result of being denied normal emotional fulfillment, she would be adding the even greater outrage implicit in affronting mind, spirit and feeling with an experience that was a hideous mockery of her heart's desire. The shock, the disillusionment, the sense of depravity and self-betrayal—such involuntary reactions as these would sum up to a terrorizing depression of mind and emotions, making her second state much worse than her first.

If a normal love life is essential to your general well being, then the sensible thing to do is to look for another husband. At the age of 30, your life as an adult is just well begun; and the decade of the thirties is proverbially woman's most attractive age, so far as her appeal for men is concerned. You are conceding defeat without ever having put up a fight for happiness, in acting on the assumption that because one man deserted you in your early twenties, you must henceforth feed emotionally upon husks and crumbs.

Instead of hoodwinking yourself with the false assertion that you "have lost interest in men," admit to yourself that you want to be married—and make the finding of a husband your major social project from now on. If this means moving to another city (since Washington is nationally known for its scarcity of marriageable men, as contrasted to the number of matrimonially eligible women)—don't hesitate to pack your belongings and begone.

In conclusion, I must say in all honesty that I think you are afflicted more by emotional frigidity than by any struggle to discipline a healthy sexual ardor. Your distorted social and emotional outlook gives strong evidence of this; and I suspect that psycho-analytical or psychiatric treatment would prove immensely beneficial, not only in correcting your current melancholy but also in giving you a poised, sympathetic understanding of human nature that would greatly advantage you in your husband-hunt.

Sterilize Jars For Canning

When canned food spoils it is because bacteria are present. They may have been in the food, in the jars or caps, or on the canner's hands. All the work and expense of canning may be wasted if the person who does the canning is careless. The time taken to keep hands thoroughly clean, and to wash and sterilize the containers is trifling compared with the insurance against spoilage which these precautions provide.

Just before the containers are filled they should be washed inside and out with abundant soapsuds, thoroughly rinsed, then sterilized in boiling water.

Period Furniture

Charles I and II—These seventeenth century English kings are identified with the furniture style known as Jacobean. Actually there is considerable difference between them; Charles I designs often being also known as early Jacobean, Charles II being designated as Carolean. Restoration, late Jacobean, late Stuart.

War to Boom U. S. Fabric Industry

Imported Items Will Be All but Impossible to Get

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

EVEN IF America keeps out of war technically, we are and will continue to be affected by it, every one of us.

For among the most important imported items from the European war zones were fabrics, both plain and grand, used for upholsteries and draperies.

The things that will be all but impossible to get, will be the linens; both printed linens as well as linen back fabrics like linen velours and brocatelles. No linen is coming from Poland, Belgium, or Czecho-Slovakia, while Irish linen is terribly expensive. The marvelous Swiss nets and laces, the fine hand-woven Italian and French damasks, are among the other fabrics that we won't be able to duplicate.

New Domestic Sources

But in the case of many other materials, the American manufacturers are probably going to be able to supply the demand without too much of a strain. For ever since the outbreak of the last war, when American markets were caught with almost no domestic sources for good fabrics, there has been a constantly increasing production by American mills.

At the outbreak of the present war, one of the leading American jobbers at the outbreak of war stated that only 15 per cent of his stock was imported. While another stated that just 25 per cent of his stock was of foreign manufacture. In screen printing, we produce as fine fabrics as can be imported. Some of our other new processes are very near to achieving as effective results as some of the English roller and hand block prints.

Surpass Imported Products

Damasks and tapestries of exceptional quality are made in America now, while various fine nets and organdies will be made here, probably at lower cost than the imported materials. For some years the American machine-made lace nets for curtains have been surpassing the imported products in styling and in competing commercially on quality and price.

Synthetic fabrics are being developed domestically to such a point, that they will eventually supersede many natural fabrics we have been using.

Though we'd be the last to gloat over a triumph born out of such suffering as war, the fact is that the present world upheavals will undoubtedly be an enormous stimulus to the American fabric industry. Just as the last war brought about the first significant efforts of American manufacturers to produce fine material on a commercial scale; so, out of the present conflict the American factories will mature to the point where we can produce practically all of the goods for our domestic market.

Girl Must Be Good to Get Job in Aviation

ALICE ROGERS HAGER, publicity director for the Civil Aeronautics Authority, really knows her subject. Her new book, "Wings Over the Americas," deals with an extensive flight she made recently over South America; she has flown more than 250,000 miles, chiefly in commercial airliners; she was the first American newspaperwoman to do straight reporting in the aviation field.

MRS. HAGER

She feels that the present period is a crucial one for women in aviation. "In the early days of flying, there was still room for girls to make names for themselves by setting records of various kinds," she explains. "Now the industry has grown up. It's too big for individual personalities and spectacular feats."

A girl really has to be good these days to persuade an airline or manufacturer to give her a place beside male workers. First of all, Mrs. Hager says, she should have a pilot's license. She should head for the smaller factories. And she should be prepared to undertake selling, publicity, even mechanics, if she hopes to find her future in aeronautics. Her aid-minded daughter agrees with her; she has her pilot's license and is now studying engineering at Stanford University.

American-born women who enjoy diplomatic immunity in Washington include Senora de Espil, wife of the Argentine Ambassador; Mme. Hurban, wife of the Czecho-Slovakian Minister; Mme. de Kauffmann, wife of the Danish Minister; Mme. Louden, wife of the Netherlands' Minister; Senora da Boyd, wife of Panama's envoy; Mme. Irimescu, wife of the Rumanian Minister; Mme. Bruggmann, wife of the Swiss Minister, and Mme. Polenyi, wife of the Hungarian Minister.

BOOK SECTION—Reduced for clearance at Woodward & Lothrop's: "Let's Visit Belgium" . . . Lady addressing clerk during Brentano's midsummer sale: "Not on Sale; on Sailing!"

Motorists and bus passengers on Connecticut avenue probably have noticed that shiny metal mailbox which lends a rural note to the corner of Connecticut avenue and Quebec street, just below the Broadmoor. The receptacle is for the convenience of the postman who delivers mail addressed to Dr. Julia M. Green, 2726 Quebec street, a quarter of a mile east of Connecticut.

For a long time Dr. Green had no delivery service, because postal officials did not consider the half-mile trek justified by the three houses in that section. "My family gave me the box for Christmas," Dr. Green explains. "It had to be big because it occasionally holds packages. I'm not responsible for the large lettering on the box; that was done to surprise me by our colored houseman. I'll be just as glad when time fades the letters. They're a little conspicuous."

Sewer Extensions Listed in Budget

$1,728,340 Asked In '42 Estimate; Increase of 43%

Vast extension of the city's sewer system, to prevent flooded conditions after rains and pollution of the Potomac and Anacostia rivers, is requested in a $1,728,340 budget for the next fiscal year, submitted yesterday to the Commissioners by John Blake Gordon, director of sanitary engineering.

Extension of 22 major sewer systems, most of them with WPA labor, and increased funds for local mosquito control, are included in estimates which represent a 43 per cent increase of $525,180 over the 1941 appropriation. The department is now operating under an allotment from Congress of $1,303,160.

Fire Chief Stephen T. Porter also submitted his budget, calling for an appropriation of $2,693,155. This is an increase of $646,540 over the current amount. The additional sum would be used to build a new firehouse, purchase a $75,000 fireboat, create a new truck company and employ 38 additional firemen.

Plan New Firehouse

The new firehouse, recommended in the Taney survey, would be located at North Capitol and Crittenden streets, on District-owned property, and would cost $90,000. Its use would eliminate the No. 14 Engine House, 413 Eighth street northwest.

Twenty of the sewer projects listed by Gordon would be WPA projects. The District's share for the work would be $285,233, an increase of $167,740 over this year.

Highlights of the sewer improvement program are:

A sum of $70,000 to construct Rock Creek diversion sewer to run along the west side of the creek from Normanstone drive to Connecticut avenue.

Request for $54,720 to complete the Oxon Run interceptor sewer to improve service in a drainage area of 8,800 acres.

An increase for mosquito control work from $12,000 to $15,000.

Three hundred thousand dollars more next year for service sewers, which connect new residences with the city's system, because of the expected increase in the number of new buildings for defense workers.

The 20 sewer projects, some of which have been demanded by citizens' associations, are as follows:

Arizona avenue interceptor, between Canal road and just north of Newark street, $55,800; Portland street drainage area, on Portland street southeast, between South Capitol street and Nichols avenue, $12,800; Section 2 of Yuma street branch, Falls branch stormwater, from Forty-fifth and Yuma streets to Forty-third and Warren streets, $6,900; Oklahoma avenue stormwater, from Lake Kingman across Anacostia Park to Oklahoma avenue, thence to Twenty-third place and E street northeast, $19,800; Forty-ninth street northeast, stormwater sewer, between Grant and Blaine streets, $16,800; R street northwest, replacement sewer, north side of R street between Twelfth and Fourteenth streets, $3,240; K street northeast, replacement, between Tenth and Eleventh streets, $1,403; Arizona avnue stormwater sewer, from vicinity of Arizona avenue and Newark street extended, to Fortieth street, just north of Veazey streets, $23,900.

Broad Branch road stormwater sewer, between Thirtieth street and Linnean avenue northwest, $19,700; Section 3 of Massachusetts avenue branch, Massachusetts avenue northwest, between Fordham road and Upton street, along Van Ness street between Massachusetts avenue and Forty-sixth street, in right-of-way in line of Upton street between Massachusetts avenue and Forty-sixth street and along Forty-seventh street between Massachusetts avenue and Upton street, $24,500; Deanwood stormwater sewer, between Kenilworth avenue and the Pennsylvania Railroad right-of-way, $6,500; Georgia avenue branch of Luzon stormwater, Georgia avenue, from Underwood to Van Buren streets, $2,940; Wheeler road and Alabama avenue southeast, along Alabama avenue between Seventh and Eleventh streets and Wheeler road between Alabama avenue and Dixon Run stream, $23,500; Mathewson drive and Argyle terrace stormwater, between Blagden avenue and Mathewson drive to Argyle terrace and Varnum street northwest, $5,800; Anacostia avenue and Ian place stormwater sewers, vicinity of Anacostia avenue, Fortieth and Forty-second streets northeast, $20,200; Underwood street northwest, between Fourteenth and Thirteenth streets, $11,870; Oakwood and Fifth streets southeast, stormwater sewer, in Fifth street between Newcomb and Oakwood streets and in Oakwood street between Fifth and Portland streets, $3,100; Utah avenue and Tennyson street northwest, stormwater sewers, in Tennyson street between Thirty-first street and Thirty-first place and in Utah avenue between Rittenhouse and Thirty-second streets, $4,550; Reno road northwest, stormwater, between Albemarle and Cumberland streets, $6,300, and Watts Branch flood control, Section 2, between Forty-fourth street and Division avenue, $7,000.

Gordon pointed out that in many of these sections of the city proper building developments have been impeded due to lack of sewer service.

Wagner Offers Security Act Amendment

Would Extend Old Age And Unemployment Benefits to Millions

By the Associated Press

Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, introduced in the Senate yesterday legislation to amend the Social Security Act to extend old age insurance benefits to about 10,000,000 workers, chiefly in agricultural pursuits not covered by the act.

He proposed, in addition, that unemployment compensation benefits be extended to employes of firms hiring fewer than eight persons (who now are excluded from such compensation payments), as well as non-civil service Government workers and employes of charitable institutions. Farm workers would not be covered in this bracket.

Wagner's bill also would substitute a system of variable grants to the States for present flat-rate payments. This, he said, would permit some poorer States to raise their non-contributory old age assistance payments to a level comparable to that of more wealthy States.

He proposed to include in the contributory old age insurance system all agricultural and domestic workers, employes of State and local Governments, non-civil service employes of the Federal Government, and employes of non-profit, religious, charitable and educational institutions, except ordained ministers.

Wagner told the Senate that the proposed changes would "eliminate the inequities which now arise because workers frequently lose their insurance when they shift from covered to uncovered employment." He said the amendments would make the Social Security Act "vastly more comprehensive."

Junior Trade Board To Vote on Draft Today

Members of the Washington Junior Board of Commerce will vote today on the question of compulsory military training for American youth.

At a luncheon meeting in the Annapolis Hotel, Senators Claude Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, and Gerald P. Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, have been invited to present pro and con arguments on the subject. The vote among members will be taken following the discussion.

Children Join Imprisoned Leopold

By the Associated Press

Brussels (Via Berlin), Aug. 14.—A prisoner of war in his own castle, King Leopold of Belgium has his children with him again—after weeks of separation amid war's tumult—but he still awaits the return of hundreds of thousands of his countrymen who fled to France during Germany's invasion of the Lowlands.

About 1,500,000 Belgians were wandering refugees in France when the armistice was signed. They have been returning only gradually to their homes.

Even before the conclusion of the Battle of France, Leopold did what he could to speed repatriation of Belgian refugees. He asked the President of Switzerland June 13 to negotiate with French and German authorities for the return of Belgians across Swiss frontiers. Last month he won the Red Cross cooperation.

The King's three children, Princess Charlotte, 13; Crown Prince Baudouin, 11, and Prince Albert, 7, were detained for a while in France—apparently against the wishes of their father, who had given instructions to send them to Portugal—German military authorities intervened to speed the children's homecoming recently.

Also with the King now are his mother, the Dowager Queen Elizabeth, and his brother, Prince Charles. They are living in Laeken Castle, near here, the usual residence of the royal family.

A Belgium refugee who had an audience with the King said:

"The King's health now is very satisfactory. He was ailing for some time, but he is all right now. He is not down-hearted, and is happy to have his mother with him."

"It is for us, the living..."

AROUND THIS GIANT, brooding figure of Lincoln, in the month of August, 1940, the men and women who have inherited his great Republic stand in silence as deep and meaningful as his own.

For the Lincoln Memorial is America's most moving shrine. And here, under the spell of a personality so great that its living presence can almost be felt, Americans are rereading words as luminous today as in that other day when the nation was so gravely endangered.

"It is for us, the living, rather, to be here dedicated to that unfinished work... to the great task remaining before us... that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

▶ It is a touchstone... that marble wall with its inscription. It reveals character, purpose, and attitude in everyone who stands before it.

You catch a fragment of talk between a young man and an older woman...

"Gee, mother, a fellow should be glad to do something at a time like this!"

"Just the same—I can't bear to think of you as a soldier! Our only son."

Yet six months from now, if her boy goes into training, that mother will have forgotten that she ever grudged his service to her country.

The boy will come home from camp a man ...with the self-reliance, the responsibility, the understanding of his fellows that make a man, and a leader of men.

She herself will have found a way to give service of her own. And she will discover, as a great American philosopher long ago pointed out, that what the human soul wants most in this world is the opportunity for loyalty.

▶ What will bring about this change of attitude—this victory of strength over weakness, of the greater loyalty over the lesser? Events? The example of others? The acts and words of great public men?... Partly.

But high among the list of influences that are turning passive patriotism into active loyalty are the country's more farsighted newspapers.

Consider this question of military training in peacetime. Public-opinion polls show that a majority of Americans believe it necessary. But no other part of our defense program quite so urgently needs universal support—a speed-up of the usual democratic process by which the minority is converted to the viewpoint of the majority.

This is where most of the nation's newspapers are doing, and will continue to do, a great job. Not by editorials primarily—nor by any "coloring" of the news. Simply by digging out all the essential facts and telling them...

▶ Reporting the extent and immediacy of the national peril—and so dispelling the complacency which has been the ruin of so many other free nations...

Reporting the number of trained men needed to make, service, and operate the war machines we have ordered—and thus getting rid of the dangerous notion that we can defend ourselves with machines alone...

Reporting the government's many-sided projects for housing, feeding, training, doctoring and distributing its brand-new soldiers.

"With us," wrote Lincoln to a friendly Frenchman, in 1862, "every soldier is a man of character, and must be treated with more consideration than is customary in Europe."

It is still true today. The three-fold task before the press is to show us that Uncle Sam will take care of the boys the best he knows how; that their talents and abilities will be used with as little disruption as possible of normal civilian lives and careers; that if war comes, they will be far safer trained than untrained.

▶ To the Weekly Newsmagazine, the manpower element in defense seems of the most crucial and urgent importance. And whether recruiting is on a volunteer or a conscription basis, as soon as it begins in earnest, TIME will present to the nation an organized week-by-week report on progress.

▶ In TIME's new department—National Defense—the converting of civilians into soldiers will be examined, checked, and totalled as often as it is practical to do so. Nor will TIME's report stop with mere numbers. It will probe, impartially and thoroughly, the caliber of their training—and pass its conclusions along to you.

Men and machines; machines and men. In a modern war, one is useless without the other. TIME will keep an eye on both...will, as always, tell the truths gathered by the world's best reporters about this issue which is so vital to the lives and liberties of all of us.

In these days of crisis, the free press is more than ever a vital force in making our democracy a living, working success. Therefore, TIME is seeking, in this series of advertisements, to give all the readers of this newspaper a clearer picture of what the press in general, and TIME in particular, are doing to keep the people of this nation safe, strong, free, and united.

Capital News In Brief

Boy, 3, Shows How Sister Fell—Too Well

A 3-year-old showman, who gathered his pals to demonstrate how his sister fell 15 feet from a second-floor porch, slipped himself, fell and joined his sister at Casualty Hospital last night.

"She was standing right here," said Edward Jamison, pointing to the opening in the rear porch railing at his home, a flat above a laundry at 1352 H street northeast. Then, like 2-year-old Delores, who fell 20 minutes earlier, he plunged to the concrete walk below.

Both children were admitted to the hospital, Delores with cuts and bruises and Edward with head and shoulder injuries. Their mother was cooking in the kitchen when the accidents occurred.

The children were taken to the hospital by their father, Edward Jamison, a truck driver, who told police: "We'd wire the porch, if we could afford it. Ed fell through a year ago, but, luckily, he wasn't hurt badly then."

Foreign Correspondent To Address Fraternity

James R. Young, International News Service correspondent in the Far East, will speak at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Washington graduate chapter of the fraternity of Phi Gamma Delta, Thursday at 1 p. m., at the Trans-Lux Restaurant. Young, a member of the Johns Hopkins University chapter of the fraternity, only recently returned from Japan, where he was questioned by police and jailed because of his journalistic activities.

Maj. Hershey to Talk On Selective Service

Maj. Lewis B. Hershey, executive officer of the Joint Army and Navy Selective Service Committee, will discuss selective service in a radio talk from 10 to 10:15 p. m. today over a Nation-wide Mutual network. The address will be heard locally over Station WOL.

Refugee Child Aids 'Mercy Ship' Appeal

With Josephine Allfrey, 9-year-old English refugee, Mrs. Harold T. Pulsifer and Mrs. Auguste Richarde, cochairmen of the women's committee on "Mercy Ships, Inc," yesterday took to the Senate an appeal that American ships be used to evacuate Europe's child refugees.

After conversations with several members of the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee, the chairman said the bill apparently had received favorable consideration in an executive session. They understood it was to be redrafted without amendment.

'Twill Be a Great Night for the Irish

Irishmen will come into their own tonight at St. Dominic's Carnival with a celebration dedicated to the Emerald Isle.

All Irish organizations in the District have been invited to the festival at 515 Sixth street southwest, including the Ancient Order of Hibernians, the Ladies Auxiliary, the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, the Irish War Veterans and the United Irish Clubs of Washington.

Entertainment will include singing by the Irish tenor, Bernie Fitzgerald. Miss Josephine Martin will appear as Queen of Quiz, garbed in green. Other entertainers include Michael O'Brien, Sam Holland, Sylvester Reilly, Sam Holland, jr., and Matt Morley.

'Night of January 16' To Finish Tonight

Tonight's performance of "The Night of January Sixteenth" atop the Willard Hotel will mark the end of the play's three-week run.

The cast will take a vacation prior to reassembling in early fall for a series of out-of-town engagements in the drama.

Several of the players will begin rehearsals Friday night with the Washington Players for a revival of Washington Irving's "Rip Van Winkle," which is scheduled to close the Sylvan Theater season on Tuesday, August 27.

Tydings Submits Bill Allowing Memorial

Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, yesterday introduced a bill authorizing the Secretary of Interior to grant permission to the Twenty-ninth Division Association, American Expeditionary Force, to erect a memorial within the District of Columbia in honor of its deceased members.

Fight Injuries Fatal to Inmate

An inmate of St. Elizabeths Hospital died yesterday of injuries which Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said were suffered in a fight July 29 with another patient.

After an investigation which led him to that conclusion, Dr. MacDonald set Friday for an inquest into the death of Jesse M. Wallace, colored, 22. Both of Wallace's jaws were broken and an infection developed, causing his death, the coroner reported.

Sumners Again Put Off on Rule

Sabath Says Members Considering Changes In Bill Giving D. C. Seats in Congress

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

The move to give the District representation in Congress, ran into a "bottleneck" on Capitol Hill yesterday when the House Rules Committee withheld action on Representative Sumners' request for a special rule to expedite consideration of his national representation resolution.

That the delay does not portend defeat was indicated by the remarks of the Rules Committee chairman, Representative Sabath (Democrat), of Illinois, at the conclusion of an executive session which followed the 90-minute hearing.

"Some of the members wish to consider Sumners' request further," he declared. "A few think his resolution should be broadened, others believe it ought to be curtailed."

Will Be Put to Vote

He also pointed out that four of the committee's 14 members were absent from the hearing at which the principle of national representation for the Capital was stoutly advocated by Chairman Jennings Randolph of the House District Committee; Representative U. S. Guyer, ranking minority member of the Judiciary Committee, and Sumners, veteran Texas Democrat and chairman of the judiciary group, which favorably reported the resolution last week.

Sabath said the next meeting of the Rules Committee probably won't be called before next week, at which time the Sumners request will be put to a vote.

Chairman Sabath himself is on record as a supporter of representation in Congress for the District of Columbia.

Sumners' sharpest and most persistent interrogator at the hearing was Representative Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, whose parting shot was:

"This is just a feeble gesture you're making. This doesn't seem to have much substance to it."

Previous Self-Rule Cited

The Georgian's first interruption came when Sumners was arguing that it would not be unreasonable for Congress to have the discretionary power to grant Washingtonians "ordinary American privileges."

"Has not Congress heretofore set up a municipal government that cost the people a lot of money and it had to be abolished?" Cox demanded.

"Yes," Sumners replied, "like some of the Federal legislation that had to be abolished."

In response to further questions by the Georgian, Sumners denied that national representation would affect the guardian-like feeling which Americans have for their Capital city and came back with a flat "no" to Cox's query if it wouldn't be simpler to cede the District back to Maryland.

Sumners Against Statehood

On the other hand, Guyer, who testified later, voiced belief the whole question of governing the District could be satisfactorily settled by yielding responsibility to Maryland.

Representative Michener (Republican), of Michigan, wondered whether, since the Sumners resolution provides for a Constitutional amendment permitting Congress to decide what sort of government Washington shall have, the plan might not suffer at the hands of "hostile" Congresses in future years.

Sumners replied he saw no reason for uneasiness on that count.

When Cox asked why not go all the way and give the District statehood, the resolution's author said: "I am not in favor of surrendering to the people of this community anything that would interfere with the Federal interest."

Randolph based his support of the national representation plan principally on the results of a sample "plebiscite," as he termed it, conducted here in 1938, when out of 100,000 votes cast between 85,000 and 90,000 were in favor of District representation in Congress.

"Fundamental," Says Randolph

There was a comparable majority as well for local self-government, Randolph told the committee.

He estimated that Washington has 150,000 residents of voting age who do not have voting residences in the States, nor can they establish such rights while continuing to live in the District.

"It is fundamental," said the House District Committee chairman, "that there should be no part of the United States where citizens are deprived of the ballot."

Citizens of the Capitol should be enfranchised to vote for President, Vice President and Representatives in Congress and should have "some form of local self-government," Randolph asserted.

Threat of Stormy Weather Keeps Crowd From Watergate

YOUTHFUL EARS—Anne, Billy and Rosemary Bristow, of Chevy Chase, listen as Antonia Brico conducts the National Symphony Orchestra.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Antonia Brico conducts the National Symphony Orchestra Wednesday night at the Potomac Watergate. Program: Overture to "Coriolanus" (Beethoven), Symphony No. 1 in E minor (Sibelius), "Mephisto Waltz" (Liszt), "Sand" (Mary Howe), "Nuages" and "Fetes" (Dubussy), "Eine Faust Ouverture" (Wagner).

Menacing clouds boded no good last evening for the concert of the National Symphony Orchestra at the Potomac Watergate, with the result that the audience was one of the smallest of the summer series. Even at that, the assembled music lovers would have filled Constitution Hall several times over, and their numbers proved that "poor attendance" is a relative phrase, depending upon the place. It was unfortunate that so many persons were deceived by the threat of stormy weather, for the intimidation turned out to be nothing but bluster.

Not a drop of rain fell throughout the program, and long before it was over the clouds had passed on their way, leaving a field of stars. The evening was as balmy as could have been desired, and the audience enjoyed in comfort a concert which was rewarding both in its content and in the manner of its performance.

Antonia Brico, well-remembered for a previous appearance at the summer concerts, received a hearty welcome when she advanced to the podium, and the cordiality of the listeners grew apace until it reached ovational proportions at the close of the program. This demonstrative approval was fully justified by the authority of her conducting and the musicianship she displayed in her readings. It was evident that these qualities were appreciated by the members of the orchestra who collaborated with her as with one whom they not only trusted but also admired.

She began with the time-honored overture which Beethoven is said to have written in one night for the tragedy, "Coriolanus," by Heinrich von Collin. Her interpretation had a keen sense of dramatic contrasts and emotional values. The incisiveness of her reading prepared one for the insight and the evocative power she displayed in her splendid handling of Sibelius' first symphony, a work which requires surety of purpose in a conductor.

The strong personality of Sibelius is stamped upon his first symphony, which arrests one immediately with its individual accent. Orthodox enough in adherence to the four movements of classic tradition, it starts out uniquely with a long and expressive monologue by a solo clarinet. This reverie, since it plays no part in the subsequent development, seems to be utterly detached from the symphonic scheme, but it actually establishes the mood for the composition. Despite the passages of storm and stress which occur in the work, its main conception is one of the relation between the tragic sense of life and the immanent beauty of the universe.

Those who wish may read into this symphony allusions to Finland's sufferings in the struggle for independence, but is is preeminently personal music. It is the first work in which Sibelius turned from objective writing and began to express fully his subjective emotions. In her reading, Miss Brico showed her knowledge of this fact by the subtlety of her shadings as well as by the forcefulness with which she projected the basic vitality of character.

The second part of the program contained Liszt's sardonic "Mephisto Waltz," Mary Howe's clever impressionistic study of "Sand," Debussy's "Nuages" and "Fetes," and Wagner's "A Faust Overture." Miss Brico dealt skilfully with these varied pieces, revealing a ready adaptability to styles. She was particularly effective in the nuances of Debussy.

The audience was clamorous for more music than the program offered, and insisted that Miss Brico keep on. Her compliance with the demands took the form of the bacchanle from "Samson et Dalila," Sibelius' "Valse Triste" and the anything but sad waltz that Johann Strauss called "Tales From the Vienna Woods."

Funds Urged For Recreation Centers in D. C.

First Ward Group Asks for $100,000 Appropriation in 1941

The recreation committee of the First Ward Neighborhood Council last night urged the Commissioners to recommend the appropriation of $100,000 for the care and upkeep of District playgrounds in the 1941 budget.

No appropriation for this purpose was made last year, and the recreation department recently sent a similar recommendation to the Commissioners.

Meeting at the Goodwill Industries, 1218 New Hampshire avenue northwest, the committee also urged that the sector of Rock Creek Park west of Twenty-fourth street be turned into a well-equipped playground.

Sixteen organizations in the area have already indorsed this proposal.

Another resolution asked the park and planning commission to purchase ground immediately under the school merger program. They asked that the property be used for recreational purposes until the schools are built. Under the program, no schools will be built for six years.

The request pointed out that there are virtually no recreational facilities in the area. The committee also asked for completion of the grounds and field house at the Francis Junior High School recreational center.

It urged that the temporary setup at Snows court, between I, K, Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth streets northwest, be extended into a permanent, year-round recreational program.

Most High Students Unable To Read Correctly, Report Says

Ten Nationally-Known Educators Condemn Schools for Their Failure To Use Proper Methods in Teaching

Many pupils go through high school in this country without learning how to read properly, 10 nationally-known educators have reported to the American Youth Commission.

This phase of a report from the committee headed by Ben. G. Graham, superintendent of Pittsburgh schools, was revealed yesterday by the commission at its headquarters here. Along with strong criticism of present textbooks, the committee made recommendations for changes in high school instruction.

Although a student may graduate from elementary school and then go through high school without apparent difficulty, the chances are good that he will never become a "fluent independent reader," according to the report.

Remedy Proposed

Many pupils in high schools are still only at fourth or fifth-grade level in reading ability, it was stated. The condition can be remedied by continuing in high school the instruction in reading that begins in elementary school, the committee said.

"One reason why pupils are unable to read well is that much of the material which is presented in textbooks is altogether inappropriate for the cultivation of reading habits. When the history of the United States, for example, is condensed into a book of 500 or 600 pages it has to be compressed to such an extent that the anecdotes which would make it a lively, interesting subject are almost, if not entirely, left out."

Furthermore "in most of the recitations . . . the teachers show ingenuity in torturing the subject studied by asking all kinds of questions which train the pupil in the most deliberate and minute dissection of what he has read. The result is that whenever a pupil takes up a book he begins to ramble in his thinking, indulging in all kinds of speculation as to the possible questions that one might raise. Pupils begin to think that it requires from three to six months to read through a book."

Along with advocating "stimulation, encouragement and instruction" by experienced teachers, the report urges the use of "free reading in libraries, with some guidance as to good methods of using books."

The committee, making the report, consisted of Thomas H. Briggs and Will French, both professors of secondary education, Teachers College, Columbia University; Oscar Granger, principal, Haverford Township High School, Upper Darby, Pa.; Charles A. Prosser, director, William Hood, Dunwoody Institute, Minneapolis; Francis T. Spaulding, dean, Graduate School of Education, Harvard University; Alexander Stoddard, superintendent of Philadelphia schools; George D. Strayer, professor of educational administration, Teachers College, Columbia University; Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools; Ralph W. Tyler, chairman, department of education, University of Chicago, and Graham.

Son Asks Permit For Settling of Dunkum Estate

Gratz E. Dunkum, jr., 6210 Fifth street northwest, vice president of Topham's Inc., leather company, filed a petition in the District Court yesterday for letters of administration for the $325,000 estate of his father, Gratz E. Dunkum, sr.

Mr. Dunkum, sr., died in Garfield Hospital July 24, after having been a business and civic leader here for more than 30 years. He was a member of the Board of Education and for several terms was moderator of the District Association of Baptist Churches. He left no will.

The son and the widow, Mrs. Louise Dunkum, 5322 Colorado avenue northwest, were listed as the only heirs.

15 Call McAlpin's 'Unsatisfactory' Rating Unfair

Representatives of colored civic organizations, who appeared yesterday at the hearing in the case of Harry S. McAlpin, colored, supervising interviewer of the District Employment Center, in the office of the Social Security Board, were turned away disappointed when announcement was made that the hearing would be private.

An appeals board, composed of Joel Gordon, chosen by McAlpin, H. H. McCaw, chosen by the Employment Center, and Miss Elizabeth Long, selected by the other members of the board, heard 15 witnesses testify to the effect that an "unsatisfactory" rating given McAlpin, resulting in his dismissal, was unfair.

McAlpin, who has served for five years as supervising interviewer, was given high ratings until the center came under the Federal Security Administration as the only such center directly under control of the Federal Government. He was represented before the appeal board by Morton Stavis, of Local 10, United Federal Workers of America, and by Charles H. Houston.

Finance Official Overcome by Gas

Arthur C. Lampe, 60-year-old vice president of the International Finance Co., was accidentally overcome by fumes from his automobile's exhaust yesterday afternoon as he worked on his auto. Revived by a motorcycle policeman he was pronounced in "fair" condition at Emergency Hospital last night.

His daughter, Helen, 22, found him unconscious in the garage of their home at 3633 Fulton street northwest. She thought he was dead and called the police. Policeman H. A. Mechem administered first aid until arrival of the Emergency Hospital ambulance.

Lampe told police he was changing a spark-plug when he was overcome by the carbon monoxide gas. The garage doors were open.

Hechinger Co. to Raze Old Court Building

Hechinger Engineering Co. yesterday was awarded a contract to tear down the old Police Court Building, 515 D street northwest, to make way for the new Recorder of Deeds building.

The company will pay the District $889 for the job. The building, which will cost $450,000, will be a PWA financed project.

Agent Sues Union For $1,976 Claimed Owing in Salary

Wilson E. Osburn, 415 Gallatin street northwest, filed a suit in the District Court yesterday against the Retail Grocery Clerks' Union for $1,976, the difference between his $22 weekly salary and the $60 a week for one year he claims ought to be paid him for being business agent of the union.

The union is affiliated with the Retail Clerks' Protective Association and the American Federation of Labor, Osburn said in his complaint. Besides the union, Osburn named as defendants John Crosby, former local president; Mack McLain, local president; Virgil C. Rice, financial secretary, and John Grosso, business agent.

World's Y. W. C. A. to Set Up Temporary Offices in District

New York, Aug. 14.—Plans for a temporary office of the World's Young Women's Christian Association, in Washington, were made today at a meeting of the American members of the executive committee of the World's Council of the Y. W. C. A. at their National headquarters here.

Miss Anne Mills and Miss Pearl Carruthers, members of the World's Y. W. C. A. staff at Geneva, Switzerland, who arrived here Saturday from Lisbon aboard the Excalibur, will head the new international office which will be used mainly as a center of communication and for disseminating programs to the various Y. W. C. A. branches in 33 countries, it was announced.

Due to war conditions in Europe, the office at Geneva is almost useless as a world center for the organization. However, it was reported by Miss Mills that association programs were continuing in all countries. Numerous hotels have organized in England to house the women who are now working in munition plants and in the fields, filling the places vacated by the men who are defending the country, Miss Mills said.

Mrs. Maurice T. Moore, chairman of the European Y. W. C. A. emergency fund, announced that $40,000 has been collected for the fund, the goal being $100,000. Miss Ruth Rouse, of England, president of the Y. W. C. A. world's council, who has been here since April, presided at the meeting.

Profits in 1940 To Exceed 1929's, U. S. Experts Hold

Manufacturers' profits during 1940 will be near to the record highs established in 1929, Government experts predicted yesterday.

A survey for the first half of the year showed the profit rate only slightly below the "exceptional" equivalent period in 1937, and Government experts said they do not expect a collapse similar to that which occurred in the last half of 1937.

Even including high defense taxes, the experts believe that manufacturing corporation profits will be higher than they have been in 20 years. Earnings, they point out, have not been limited to war-stimulated industries and have not been bolstered by sharp price advances and inventory profits.

Mt. Vernon Boulevard Reopened

Rep. Smith Waves Flag to Start Cars Moving Over Relocated Section

Waved on by Representative Howard Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, a stream of automobiles yesterday sped across the relocated Mount Vernon Memorial boulevard around the new Gravelly Point Airport, inaugurating traffic on the highway.

Smith, who represents the district, in which part of the airport lies, lowered a red flag at 2 p. m. and the first southbound car rolled by, carrying two visitors from Massachusetts.

Airport officials meanwhile announced the lease of the restaurant concession to Jacobs Brothers, of Buffalo, N. Y., and the gasoline concession to the Gulf Oil Co. The proposals of these companies, it was said, were $50,000 more favorable to the Government than any other bids.

The new boulevard, 228 feet shorter than the old, permits a full view of the airport, the river and the background of Washington's solid Government buildings.

Much of the old one-way road will now be torn out to complete the park-like slope from the boulevard, which follows the crest of the rise. The new road rejoins the existing boulevard just south of the new Four Mile Run bridge at the south end of the airport.

The only work remaining to be done, aside from landscaping and planting, is the completion of a cloverleaf grade separation for entry to and exit from the airport without crossing traffic. Work on the bridge and grades for this project has already begun.

Those present at the opening of the road, besides Representative Smith, included Col. Sumpter Smith, chairman of the Interdepartmental Commission for the Airport; Col. R. S. Thomas, U. S. Army district engineer, and H. H. Houk, resident engineer.

Peace Group Meets To Consider Delegates

Nats Win Over A's on Lewis' Triple, 5 to 3

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Aug. 14.—Ted Williams, 1939's fabulous baseball rookie, got up off the trunk on which he had been sitting in moody grandeur and walked out of the Boston locker room at the Yankee Stadium. He spoke to no one, and no one spoke to him, though one of the Boston players muttered "meat-head" as he passed. Proudly, Williams continued his sulky march.

CONSIDINE

On the bench the "chill" was equally as obvious, on both sides. Williams played through the double-header against the Yankees with a certain diligence. But there was none of the gabby sparkle that made him unique and irrepressible last year, and little of the menace, although he's hitting in the .330's.

One of the officials of the team was telling us before the game about Williams' "latest stunt." He's been popping off about being mistreated, and the newspapermen have taken pity on him and not printed anything. But enough's enough, so Duke Lake, of the Boston American, quoted him today. Something about Yawkey's a bum, Cronin's a punk manager, the Boston fans are nuts and he wants to be traded. Says he's going to try to get a fireman's job this off-season.".

Williams, whose $12,500 salary this season equals or surpasses the second-year salaries of Joe DiMaggio and Bobby Feller (and far outdistances Babe Ruth's income until Babe came to the Yanks), is as strange a case as baseball has seen in years.

When he became a comical sort of pop-off upon his arrival in spring training camp this year it was believed that he was just a cocky kid whose success had gone to his noodle. But when he began criticizing Yawkey, an incorrigible generous owner, for underpaying Bobby Doerr, Jim Tabor and other members of the Red Sox, the other Sox began to look at him as if he were a nut.

When we spoke to him down in Sarasota this spring he told us that he thought Jimmy Foxx was the greatest hitter of all time (high praise from a youth of 21). But some of the Red Sox players now insist that Williams seems to resent every one of Foxx's long hits this season, and has long since lost his wide-eyed admiration for the vet. He is the only Red Sox who rooms alone on road trips.

Joe Cronin called reporters together in Chicago earlier this year and told them that he had reprimanded Williams for listless fielding. Some of the older players offered the kid advice after that, but (they say) Williams told them he didn't want or need it. For a time, too, Roger Cramer, a prankster of long standing, would take Williams aside and get him started on his "mistreatment" theme—for laughs.

When Harry Grayson, the sportswriter, quoted Williams as saying that he'd rather be a fireman than a member of the Gold Sox, he touched off the baseball year's bleakest blast of ridicule. Today Williams is the most abused player in baseball. Every rival bench gives him a ride, and most of the Sox seem to enjoy the Inquisition. The peak of ridicule was engineered by the artful Jimmy Dykes, who distributed papier mache fire helmets to his players whenever Williams came to bat during a Chicago-Boston series. Buck Newsom, of the Tigers, keeps asking Williams which wheel of the hook-and-ladder he wants to steer.

This must be Tom Yawkey's most disappointing season. There is not much doubt that the Red Sox have been the next-best team in baseball for several seasons. They gave the Yanks a merry chase for most of last season and were plainly better than anything in the National League. This should have been the year for them to give Yawkey that pennant he has been after for five expensive years. But the Boston pitching developed a bad list, and the Williams case has brought about such a wave of crabby diffidence to the once cheerful club that it must be classed as one of the reasons for the team's decline.

Only Four Chisox Reach First As Cleveland Hurler Wins Night Game by 4-0 Score

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Aug. 14.—Al Smith held Chicago to one hit here tonight as the pennant-mad Cleveland Indians beat the White Sox, 4 to 1, before 59,068 fans. Jimmy Webb's single in the third inning cost the left-hander a perfect game. He fanned four and walked only one in notching his thirteenth victory against five defeats.

Roy (Stormy) Weatherly, little Cleveland centerfielder, was the big gun in the Redskins' attack. In the first inning he singled over second and came home on Lou Boudreau's triple and in the third poled his sixth home run of the season to score Smith, who had walked.

Boudreau tallied the Indians' other run in the first as he raced home after his triple when Webb threw wild on the relay from the outfield.

The victory, enabling the Indians to hold their two-game league lead, came at the expense of Edgar Smith. He gave up six hits suffering his ninth setback against eight victories.

Only four Chicagoians got on base. Taft Wright walked in the fifth but was erased on a double play. In the third Bob Kennedy was safe on Boudreau's error and raced to third on Webb's hit. However, Mike Kreevich lined out to end the inning. In the ninth Beau Bell made a two-base muff of Webb's fly.

It was the largest night crowd of the major league season. The year's high was 82,437 at Yankee Stadium in New York Memorial Day. Cleveland's record night crowd of 62,000 saw the Indians and Tigers in this city's first contest under the lights in 1939.

The victory was the eighth in ten night games for the Indians.

Big Eighth Helps Tigers Beat Browns

Detroit Scores 7 Runs to Overcome Lead; Whitehead K.O.'d

Detroit, Aug. 14.—The Tigers picked on the little Brownies for 7 runs in a merry-go-round eighth inning today to win a loosely played tussle, 13 to 7, and stop their losing streak at four games.

With Schoolboy Rowe batted from the mound while trying for his twelfth victory, the Tigers lagged, 7 to 6, as they entered the eighth with no great promise of coming out in front in view of a laggard performance up to that time.

Twelve men batted against Roxie Lawson and Slicker Coffman, the last two of five Brownie pitchers, in the eighth, however, and a mixture of four hits, three walks and two errors brought Detroit victory.

Johnny Whitehead, who pitched a six-inning no-hit game in his last appearance against Detroit, started for St. Louis today but was spiked in a collision at first base with Bruce Campbell in the second and retired. He was knocked unconscious and carried off the field. His right ankle was cut in two places.

The triumph carried Detroit a half game closer to the leading Cleveland Indians, who, however, had still to play a night game with Chicago.

Veteran Egan Breaks Jinx In Victory

Kentuckian Finally Scores in Trotting's Most Famous Stake; 30,000 View Race

By Orlo Robertson

Associated Press Sports Writer.

Goshens, N. Y., Aug. 14.—The hard luck man of trotting finally broke his jinx today.

After finishing in the money in 10 of 12 Hambletonians, barely missing out on two of them, Fred Egan, Lexington veteran, drove C. W. Phellis' Spencer Scott, of Greenwich, Conn., to a straight-heat victory in trotting's most famous stake.

With about 30,000 packing Good Time Park, the son of Scotland reeled off the first mile in 2:02 and the second in 2:03 to justify his position as the people's choice. He won like a champion, taking the lead soon after the start in each brush and setting the pace all the way.

Egan was forced to go to the whip both times to finish in front of the fast-closing Remus, and Kuno, champion juvenile of 1939. Remus owned by Paul Bowser, of Boston, Bill Dickerson, of Goshen, and his trainer-driver, Harry Short, of Columbus, Ohio, trailed by a half-length in the first heat and a full length in the second.

Runs in Bostwick Colors

Kuno, flying the silks of polo-player Dunbar Bostwick, of Westbury, Long Island, was another half-length back in the opening test and a length and half behind in the second.

The crowd played Spencer heavily in the first heat, and backed him still more in the second test and in the result pool. He paid only $3.40 for $2 in the result pool and $3.30 in winning the second mile after returning $5.10, $5.40 and $4.20 across the board in the opening dash.

Phellis, retired chemist and one of the country's foremost trap shooters, received $23,077.15, the winner's share of the richest Hambletonian in eight years. The value of the race was $43,658.45.

Remus' three owners split $8,391.69 and Bostwick pocketed $5,035.01 for Kuno's performance.

The other three money awards went to Queen Victoria, Bill Strang's New York-owned filly who finished fourth and seventh in the respective heats. Mrs. Edith Mix's Princess Pert, of Sherbourne, N. Y., with a fourth and ninth and Joseph

Yanks Beat Bosox, 8-3, For Sixth Straight

Ruffing's 11th Winning Effort Trips Johnson, Boston Rookie; Finney, Williams And Foxx Get Home Runs for Losers

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 14.—Charley, The Red Ruffing, kept the Yankee winning streak alive today, humbling the Boston Red Sox with six hits to win, 8-3. That was the third straight win over the Sox and ran the Yankee victory string up to six.

Three of the hits the Sox got off Ruffing were impressive homers by Lou Finney, Ted Williams and Jimmy Foxx.

The Yankees teed off on Earl Johnson, Rookie lefthander, for 10 safeties, massing four of them around three walks in the seventh for a five-run outburst.

Denny Galehouse pitched the eighth after Johnson had been removed for a pinch hitter, and allowed the last Yank run and hit. Johnson was charged with the loss, his second of the year. The victory was Ruffing's eleventh against eight setbacks.

Finney and Williams poled their homers in the first inning to give the Sox a lead that failed to hold up. Foxx's blow came in the seventh. It was his twenty-eighth and carried into the upper tier of the leftfield stands.

Dodgers Split Pair of Games With Phils

Brooklyn Wins 1st, 6-5, but Loses Finale, 9-6, as Rizzo Homers

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, Aug. 14.—The Brooklyn Dodgers had a chance to cut the first-place lead of the Cincinnati Reds to a mere four games today, but they blew it by dividing a double-header with the lowly Phils.

The Brooks took the first one, 6-5, but lost the second, 9-6, due to their own ineffectual pitching plus some heroic hitting by Johnny Rizzo, who blasted out a pair of homers. He also got one in the first game.

Helen Jacobs Loses, 6-1, 6-4, To Miss Betz

Coast Player Wins Easily in Essex Invitation Tourney

By the Associated Press

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 14.—Unseeded Pauline Betz, a 21-year-old blonde from Los Angeles, accomplished one of the major upsets of the tennis season today when she toppled Helen Jacobs, of Los Angeles, U. S. champion from 1932 through 1938 and currently ranked No. 2 nationally, in straight sets, 6—1, 6—4.

By her victory, Miss Betz marched into the semifinals of the Essex County Club's invitation tournament along with Mary Hardwick, of England, who eliminated Hope Knowles, of Philadelphia, 6—3, 3—6, 7—5.

It was a sad day for the ex-champion, who also bowed out of the doubles when Miss Hardwick and Valerie Scott, the top-seeded foreign team, defeated her and Mary Arnold, of Los Angeles, 6—3, 6—3.

Miss Betz, who has won 8 of her last 16 tournaments and is ranked eighth nationally, set the job of keeping Miss Jacobs away from the net as her No. 1 objective. She achieved this by consistently hitting the ball hard and accurately to within inches of the baseline and then deftly catching her opponent flat-footed with drop shots which barely floated over the net, and which frequently forced Miss Jacobs to give up without even making a chase.

Defending Champion Alice Marble, of Beverly Hills, Calif., moved a notch closer to her fourth tournament title by beating Helen Pedersen, of Stamford, Conn., 6—1, 6—0, while Dorothy Bundy, of Santa Monica, overcame Mary Arnold, of Los Angeles, 8—6, 6—4. Both were third round tests.

In doubles, the national championship team of Miss Marble and Sarah Palfrey led the way into the semifinals with a 6—2, 6—3 triumph over Louise Brough, Los Angeles, and Sissy Hadden, Boston.

Playing Rules Set For Giants' Game With College Stars

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 14.—Playing rules for the game between the New York Professional Giants and the Eastern-College All-Stars in the Polo Grounds September 4 were decided today at a meeting of coaches.

At the same time, officials announced that the All-Star squad was completed with acceptance by Tommy Nash, Brown University end, of an invitation to play.

The game will be played under college rules, with three exceptions. They are:

1. The goal posts will be on the goal line, as in the pro game.

2. If a player falls without being hit, he may get up and continue to run; if he is knocked down through impact of a defensive player, he is "downed" on the spot.

3. Players may communicate with teammates as in pro football.

Shot Put Sets Record in Race

Chicago, Aug. 14 (AP).—Shot Put, a 4-year-old gelding owned by Mrs. Marie Evans, set a new North American record for 2 miles and 6 furlongs by winning the $2,500 Lucien Lyne handicap at Washington Park today. Cheick Rama was second, ten lengths back, and Temulac, third.

The winner's time was 4:48:8. The old record of 4:50:6 was established by Just Right, a 6-year-old, at Tiajuana, Mex., on March 1, 1925, carrying 94 pounds. No world record is listed for the distance.

Shot Put, carrying Jockey Willie Garner as part of his top weight of 126 pounds, paid $5.40. He also won last week at 2 miles and a quarter.

Lion Grid Club Starts Drills With 1 Original Player

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Aug. 14.—The Detroit Lions opened their training season today in preparation for the 1940 National Professional Football League campaign.

Among the 42 players reporting to Coach George (Potsy) Clark was Jack Johnson, veteran tackle and the only player who was with the club when it moved ot Detroit from Portsmouth, Ohio, in the fall of 1934.

Six new members of the Lions' squad will not report until after their appearance on the College All-Star team which meets the Green Bay Packers in Chicago August 29

Cameo Nine Opens Playoff With Victory Over Brewers, 9-5

Clubs Meet Again Today For 2d Half

Furnituremen Come From Behind, Rout Hurler Colliflower In Post League

Digging itself out of a two-run deficit in the opening stanza, Cameo Furniture nine opened its second half play-off series in The Washington Post Industrial League yesterday with a 9-to-5 victory over the Heurich Brewers on the Ellipse.

The Furnituremen tied the score in the second on a solitary hit, a sacrifice and two Brewer errors, and in the third inning raced into a lead they never lost. Two tallies came over in the third, two more in the fourth, and in the fifth Cameo chased Starting Pitcher Ed Colliflower from the mound as it counted its last three markers.

The next meeting of the two rivals will be staged today on the East Ellipse at 4:30. A Cameo triumph will settle second-half honors and send the clubs into another two-out-of-three play-off for the league title, Heurich already being credited with the first-half crown. A Brewer victory today will necessitate another second-half game Friday.

Beavers Hurls for Cameo

It was stocky Frank Deavers who whipped the defending champions yesterday, though he was removed in favor of Otis Printz after walking two men to start the seventh. Deavers set the Brewers down with 7 hits, but he also allowed six bases on balls.

"Booty" McQuinn, Cameo second baseman, gave the Beer club its first two runs when he messed up Knight's grounder and let Kaufman and Barry come home. But after tying things up, Cameo went into its lead the most spectacular way possible.

Bill Harris, husky leftfielder, slammed a home run into the far reaches of center field to score McQuinn, who had walked, ahead of him.

Heurich made a vague threat of coming back in its half of the third, but only one run resulted. Huck Stahl tripled and Knight singled him home, but that was all.

Two other triples marked the interesting battle. Losing Pitcher Colliflower had one in the fourth to adore Collier. And Cameo's "Bootay" McQuinn had another in the fifth, scoring Albert and Godfrey.

Washington Loan, Trust Capture Title

Softballers Defeat Hamilton Bank, 9-4, For League Crown

Washington Loan & Trust Co. team won its way into the D. C. Softball Championship Tournament yesterday when it defeated Hamilton National Bank, 9-4, for the Banker Softball League title.

Pitcher Berry turned in his eleventh triumph in 13 starts this year and held the losers to five hits. Most of these came in the third inning as Hamilton counted all its runs.

Meanwhile, the Loaners accounted for seven safeties, featured by the home run of Joe Gibson in the fifth inning with two mates on base. Grant also had a two-base hit in the winners' behalf.

The Loaners' first start in the D. C. tournament will be against International Business Machines Monday night.

With its loss, Hamilton dropped into a second-place tie with Morris Plan, which defeated National Metropolitan, 9-8, yesterday.

Md. State Golf Tops August Card

Three Quiet Weeks Locally Will Precede Heavy September Play

A trio of Maryland State Golf Association events feature the remainder of the August golf schedule locally, three comparatively quiet weeks before September's big card that includes the National and District Amateurs, the city publinx, Washington Post Women's Cup play and a dozen other important events.

Here's this month's activities in order:

Sunday, August 18—Maryland State Mixed Two-ball, Rolling Road Club in Catonsville. Entrance fee, $2. Entries will be received at Maryland State Golf Association offices, 16 McClellan place, Baltimore.

Wednesday, August 21—Pro-amateur tournament at Manor Country Club, Maryland State event. Pro sweepstakes, pro-amateur and amateur handicap. Entrance fee, $2 for each event.

August 21—Washington-Baltimore intercity junior team match at Argyle.

Sunday, August 25—Maryland father-and-son championship, Elkridge. Entries close August 17 at State office. Alternate shots net and gross prizes.

Monday, August 26—National P. G. A. Championship, Hershey, Pa. Two days of qualifying, four days' match play. Lewis Worsham and Gene Larkin are local entries.

Tuesday, August 27—Sectional qualifying rounds, National Amateur championship, Chevy Chase. Washington and Baltimore entries play 36 holes medal play.

Hubbell Wins in 12th, 1-0, as Giants Divide

Boston Takes Second Game, 6-0, Behind Manual Salvo, New York Castoff; Mel Ott Is Pinch Star

By the Associated Press

Boston, Aug. 14.—King Carl Hubbell was the peerless one again today—pitching the Giants to a 12-inning five-hit 1-0 victory in the first game of a double-header. Manuel Salvo, a Giant cast-off, beat his old mates in the second game by 6-0 as he scattered eight hits.

The Hubbell victory was replete with memories, for not only was Hubbell's victory reminiscent of the good old days of 1933 but Master Melvin Ott shared Hub's triumph. Mel, who had been benched for not hitting, stepped in as a pinch hitter in the twelfth, singled, was sacrificed to second and sent home on Frank Demaree's timely blow.

Hubbell's victory was his eighth of the year, his longest job and it was his first success of the year over the Bees, whose sizzling victory streak has given them 11 victories out of their last 15 starts, up to today.

Dick Errickson, the Bee pitcher, gave Hub a stirring battle, allowing only eight hits during the 12 innings. Carvel Rowell, the National League's batting leader got three of the five hits the Bees collected off the veteran screwballer.

In the second game, Salvo rose to haunt Bill Terry, the Giant boss, who traded him to the Bees in the deal that brought Tony Cuccinello to the Polo Grounds. Salvo scattered eight hits, was never in serious trouble and chalked up his fourth shutout and fourth straight win.

Parker Hall, Pro Grid Ace, Ends Holdout

Signs Cleveland Ram Contract and Joins Mates in Workout

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Aug. 14.—Parker Hall, voted the most valuable player in the National Football League last year, signed tonight for another season with the Cleveland Rams. He was the club's only holdout.

Hall took part in the team's first workout today along with 38 other players. Salary terms were not disclosed, but club officials said no bonus was included. Hall was an All-American halfback at Mississippi in 1938 and set a league record of 106 forward passes last year.

Coach Dutch Clark sent the squad through a two-hour drill and announced two sessions a day would be held until the opening game here September 4 against the Midwest College All-Stars. The Rams start their league season with Philadelphia here September 20.

Four of the new backs—Lou Zontini, of Notre Dame; Ollie Cordill, of Rice; Ken Heineman, of Texas Mines, and Jack Nix, of Mississippi State—are on the All-Star College squad drilling in Chicago, and will report later. Cordill suffered a broken toe yesterday, but is expected to be ready in time for Cleveland's opener.

Fullback Johnny Drake, who spent the off-season in Hollywood working in motion pictures, reported in top shape. Clark is expected to build his attack around Hall, the passer, and Drake, the runner.

Colonials Grid Schedule May Be Obtained Now

Copies of the George Washington University football schedule for this season may be obtained upon request at the university cashier's office, 725 Twenty-first street northwest, which is open from 9 to 5 p. m., Monday through Friday.

Written requests, including a self-addressed, stamped envelope, should be addressed to the George Washington University press bureau.

'Skins Squad Divided for Scrimmage

Malone, Carroll on Inactive List Because Of Injuries

By Al Hailey

A Staff Correspondent

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 14.—With Charley Malone and Vic Carroll on the inactive list as a result of the first day of rough work, Coach Ray Flaherty today crossed his fingers, divided his squad of 44 men into East and West groups, and prepared for the initial scrimmage minus blocking pads this week-end.

The East and West squads, which will clash in Seattle, August 22, and in Spokane a week later, will be coached by Flaherty and Turk Edwards, veteran tackle now acting as line coach.

Taking no chances with further injuries after yesterday's session with the padded aprons which saw Malone crack his head on the ground after having the wind knocked out of him by a screen of interferers, and Carroll pull up with a wrenched side that'll bench him for two weeks, Flaherty today sent his men through light signal drills only.

Carr Brothers And Boswell Play 4-4 Tie

Yellow Cab Nine Scores Two in Sixth for Deadlock

Carr Bros. and Boswell, Inc., and Yellow Cab softballers played a 4-4 deadlock which was called at the end of six innings, at Magruder Park in Hyattsville, yesterday. With the grocerymen leading, 4-2, in the last inning the Cabmen tied it up when, with two on and two out, Centerfielder Frank delivered a two-base blow to center.

In the fifth inning Car and Boswell's catcher, Floyd Etter, was injured by a wild pitch which took a bad bounce and hit his ear, splitting the cartilage. It required two stitches to close the wound. Rightfielder Earl McKeown took over the catching post in the next inning.

The Hyattsville team has lost three catchers in as many weeks through accidents.

Bill Ackerman ON FISHING

Black Bass Biting; Louisburg Sees Second Expedition

The slightly cooler days of the past week have started the black bass striking in several widely separated sections. The best fishing actually reported was on the Rapidan and Bull Run—not on limit creels, but an average of about three to the angler and backed up by good strings of large crappie.

ACKERMAN

The Cape Breton town of Louisburg was the scene of the second of the Michael Lerner-American Museum of Natural History expeditions for broadbill swordfish and marlin. No angler had ever caught a broadbill on rod and reel until "Mike" broke the record in 1938, but since the catches have been mounting, for anglers are taking to this northern fishing like ducks to water.

The first fish of the 1940 season, weighing 446 pounds, was brought in last week.

The International Game Fish Association, conceived and fostered by Lerner and with the American Museum as headquarters, announces the appointment of Ernest Hemingway as vice president.

Hemingway, known best as an author and playwright, is one of the world's foremost big-game fishermen. He pioneered the rod and reel marlin fishing off the north Cuban coast in 1934 and 1935 and had considerable to do with the early Bahamas fishing.

For this same section—the eastern Bahamas—Mortimer H. Cobb has just been appointed to the international committee.

Miss Francesca LaMonte, associate curator of ichthyology, a member of all the broadbill and marlin expeditions and secretary of the Game Fish Association, tells us in the same letter the 860-pound broadbill caught by W. E. S. Tukor off Tocopilla, Chile, several weeks ago has been officially recognized as a new world record for the species.

So far this year 43 bluefin tuna have been caught in Bald Tusket Rips off Wedgeport, Nova Scotia. The largest weighed 815 pounds.

Anglers and hunters interested in West Virginia woods and streams might like to know the monthly paper released by the Conservation Commission will be replaced by a quarterly bulletin.

In the past, due to cost, it has been limited to less than a thousand circulation. The new issue will possibly reach a circulation of 10,000 copies for the reason provision has been made for subscription. The first issue will be for October, and out during the last week in September.

The small bunch of white marlin the Ocean City boats got last Thursday for a total of nine fish places Capt. Jack Stevens, of the Hilda II, in the running for the Jack and Paul Townsend award.

It also places the angler in line for a chance at the two swell Tycoon rods that Frank O'Brien, of Miami, is offering to the individual man and woman who tag and release their fish. Our records to date show that Capt. Crawford Savage has released two from his Craw-Bill and Capt. Red Hall two from his Cutty Sark. Red's first fish, through no fault of his own, is minus a tag, but he is nevertheless tied with Savage for first honors and a hundred smackers in good United States money.

Charlotte Decker, Hazel Bishop Win Among D. C. Entrants

By the Associated Press

Oakland, Md., Aug. 14.—Another top-ranking entry was swept out of the western Maryland tournament today when Ed Alcorn, of Pittsburgh, scored an upset victory over D. Hobbs, Baltimorean seeded No. 2.

Alcorn, seeded fifth, defeated Hobbs, 4—6, 8—6, 6—1, to move into the semifinals. Robert Shapiro, of Baltimore, also went into the semifinals with a 6—1, 6—2 victory over a fellow townsman, John Beck.

Ed McCullough, Brackenridge, Pa., youth who ousted Defending Champion Price Colvin in the first round, stayed in the running with a 6—4, 6—2 triumph over Alex Kelles, Baltimorean seventh seeded.

Mrs. L. W. Andraid, a dark horse from Montauk Beach, Long Island, scored two victories in the women's singles, defeating Mrs. John Cushey, of Clarksburg, W. Va., 6—2, 6—2, and then eliminating Miss Sara Moore, Washington, 6—3, 6—2.

In other women's singles matches, Dorothy Ball, Wheeling, W. Va., defeated Virginia Hood, Washington, 6-1, 6-0; Hazel Bishopp, Washington, defeated Mrs. Wright Hugus, Wheeling, 7-5, 6-4; and Charlotte Decker, Washington, defeated Cara Weber, Oakland, 6-0, 6-1.

Nelson Thomasson and James Lee defeated Fred Chesley and Castleman Chesley 3-6, 6-2, 6-3 in men's doubles. The Pitsburgh team of Paul Sullivan and Joe Kristofek advanced by default over Fred West and Hugh Grant, both of Lynchburg, Va.

Thirteen teams are entered in the mixed doubles, and seven in the women's doubles.

Florida State Approves Race Application

Operation of Tampa Body Now Depends on County Voters

By the Associated Press

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 14.—The Florida State Racing Commission approved applications today for the operation of a second Jai Alai frontón in the Miami area and a horse racing track on the State's west coast in Hillsborough County.

The Hollywood Jockey Club, Inc., in receivership and in process of reorganization, was unsuccessful in its request for a 50-day horse racing season at its Broward County plant.

The board fixed greyhound racing dates for the Sarasota Kennel Club from January 14-April 10, but denied a request of the Biscayne Kennel Club at Miami to change its opening date to Sunday, December 1.

Harry Kinsella's plea for a permit to operate a horse racing track in Volusia County also was turned down. The Daytona Beach Jockey Club, Kinsella told the commission, would find it easier to finance the enterprise if a permit were granted.

The board at its July session had deferred action on the petition because of "insufficient finances."

No action was taken by the commission on Paul Ryan's application for reinstatement as a jockey on Florida horse racing tracks. He was suspended by Tropical Park stewards last season for an "unsatisfactory ride" on Sun Apollo.

The new horse racing permit went to the Florida West Coast Jockey Club. Its operation at the old Tampa Downs site is dependent upon approval of Hillsborough County voters at a referendum election.

Seven-Hit Effort Capped by Big Rally In Seventh Inning

Yesterday's Results

THIRD ROUND:
St. Louis, 12; Pittsburgh, 1.
Indianapolis, 9; Cincinnati, 4.
Detroit, 11; New York, 8.
Washington, 6; Boston, 3.

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 14.—Boston suffered its first defeat in the Union Printers International Baseball League tournament today, losing to Washington, 6 to 3, but remains in the running until beaten again.

Mosedale, one of the real veteran pitchers of the league, allowed the Boston Typos only seven hits while his teammates came from behind in the seventh inning to take their third ball game. Three hits, four stolen bases, and a couple of fielders' choices gave Washington three runs in that frame.

Two hits and a base on balls gave the Boston squad two runs in the fifth.

Gartland, of Washington, made a sensational shoestring catch in rightfield for the winners. He turned a complete somersault after grabbing the ball, but held on to it.

Boston's second baseman, Latta, turned in the best fielding for the losers. Grier, Washington catcher, was the day's leading hitter, with three bangles in four tries.

Mosedale struck out six Boston batters and walked only three. He had one wild pitch to his discredit. Gatchell, the Boston pitcher, struck out one, walked four and hit two batsmen.

Boston meets Indianapolis and Washington plays Detroit tomorrow.

Ex-Cub Ball Player Found Dead by Auto

Shotgun Under Arm Of Chas. Hollocher, Former Star Shortstop

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 14.—The body of a man identified as Charles J. Hollocher, former shortstop with the Chicago Cubs, was found lying beside his automobile parked near a busy West Side boulevard early today. A new 16-gauge shotgun was found lying beneath one arm.

Constable Arthur C. Mosley said Hollocher apparently had been dead several hours when he and a deputy noticed the parked machine.

A note on the dashboard of the car said, "Call Mrs. Ruth Hollocher." Mrs. Hollocher was his wife. He had been married twice.

After six years with the Cubs, Hollocher quit baseball in 1923 at the height of his career, presumably because of ill health, but his departure aroused considerable comment at the time. He left the team without even notifying his manager, although he was captain.

He returned to St. Louis, his home, and except for one season, 1931, while he was a scout for the Cubs, remained out of baseball.

He had been working as a theater watchman and investigator for the St. Louis County prosecuting attorney.

'Powder Puff' Rifle Girls Take Slight Edge as N. R. A. Sends Five Teams to Post in D. C. Women's Corps Matches

Early Tabulation Gives 'Rifle Realists' Second Place; 'Minute Maids' Rank Third

Rifles crackled, targets sagged, and the Powder Puffs held a slight lead over the Rifle Realists last night as a miniature war with a feminine touch came to 10 G street northeast.

It was the opening round of the rifle match of five teams of women sharpshooters of the D. C. Women's Rifle Corps, an affiliate of the National Rifle Association of America. The competition was on the N. R. A.'s range.

These were the scores at press time: Powder Puffs, 726; Rifle Realists, 722; Minute Maids, 711, and Wolf Cubs, 694. All scores are out of a possible 800.

The Liberty Belles were still on the firing line and no tabulation had been made of their scores.

Matters Undecided

The shoot will require at least another night to decide the winning team. Each member of the 10-girl teams fires 200 rounds, blasting away at 10 targets, each of which has 10 bull's-eyes. They fire at 50 feet.

The riflewomen did not lack for modern equipment last night. Lying behind a wooden barrier, some squinted through complicated telescopic sights. At intervals they were told the results of their shooting by range officials who sighted their targets through binoculars.

There was little delay in changing targets. A pincer-like gadget propelled on a rope quickly snatched away perforated targets, then replaced them by new ones.

Miss Long in Lead

Winner of the individual competition last week and high-point scorer last night was Miss Nancy Long, of 2127 California street northwest. She amassed a total of 197 out of a possible 200.

An employe of the Public Buildings Administration, Miss Long practices one night a week. But she never shot a gun and didn't know a hind from fore sight until this summer.

Range officials said she's good material for any squad of parachutists the District may get up.

District Junior Golfers Choice Over Baltimore

D. C. Team Unbeaten, to Present Stellar Line-Up Against Monumental Boys; Skinker Heads Local Group in Match August 21

Earle Skinker, captain and selector of Washington's Junior golf team that will meet Baltimore's best teen-age boys next Wednesday, August 21, at Argyle, has corraled a list of players and three alternates that would give any city's junior line-up a battle.

Unbeaten in the short junior inter-city match series, the District team will be a heavy favorite to rout the Monumental City youngsters this year by a double score or better. Otto Greiner, Baltimore's best young amateur, has just passed over the age limit, as has Bobby Brownell, captain of the winning District team last year at Woodholme.

Bogart to Lead Off

Skinker, although he has not definitely decided on his line-up, will lead off with city amateur champion Ralph Bogart and probably himself against the No. 1 duo of the visitors.

The second bracket will more than likely be made up of Maryland State Junior Champion Freddie Bolton and George Vass, runner-up to Skinker for the Washington Post-Schoolboy trophy.

District Junior champ Bill Cassedy, playing over his home course, would be a good third bracket man with Dick Meyer, Georgetown's promising sophomore golfer, as a partner.

Mrstik on Team

For his other four players on the ten-man team Skinker will have Frank Dunham, jr., James Brantley, Buster Mrstik and Arthur Myers. Mrstik was semi-finalist in the D. C. junior and a prize winner in the Maryland Junior Open while Myers, the 15-year-old Manor golfer, reached the semi-finals of the scholastic play.

For alternates Skinker has named Dick Burgess, captain of the Tech High team, Jack Robinson, of the V. M. I. golf squad and Charles Price, young Woodward Prep linksman.

Spencer Scott Is Winner of Hambletonian

Favorite Captures Rich Harness Race In Straight Heats

Though Spencer won in straight heats under the guidance of the one-time Des Moines bell hop, both miles were a race from the time the nine three-year-olds got away.

Queen Victoria and Remus were first to show in front in the initial brush but Egan had Spencer Scott in good position and sent him into command at the three-eighths pole. He stepped past the half-mile post in 1:01¾ with a length and half lead over Remus, and Earl's Moody Guy another length to the rear. They had not changed positions or distances as the favorite hit the three-quarter marker in 1:32, but Kuno had started his challenge.

Egan kept Spencer on the rail in the drive for the judges as Short and Harry Whitney, handling Remus and Kuno, respectively, went to the outside. All three horses were under the whip in the blanket finish.

The second test was much a repetition of the first except that Spencer broke from the barrier in front and never was headed. He was a length and half in front at the quarter, and a half-length at the half as Remus forced him to that marker in 1:02. The Phellis colt increased his margin to a length and half again in the trot to the three-quarter post.

Betting Record For Trotting Falls At Hambletonian

By the Associated Press

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Wagering for the day and on the Hambletonian broke all pari-mutuel betting records for light harness racing in New York State today.

A total of $91,421 passed through the machines on the nine races. Of this amount $42,368 was wagered on the outcome of the Hambletonian, won by Spencer Scott.

The Hambletonian Society also announced it had awarded the stake to Bill Cane's Good Time Park for another five years. It was first raced over this triangular track in 1930.

Shirley Combs Gains Finals In Net Tourney

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Aug. 14.—Shirley Combs, of Washington, continued her steady march in the Middle Atlantic Girls Tennis Tournament today, rallying after a first-set loss to defeat Helen Harrison, of Baltimore, and move into the finals.

She eliminated Miss Harrison, third-seeded, 1-6, 6-1, 6-2, displaying the same sparkling play that carried her to victory over second-seeded Lucia Lhamon, of Annapolis, in the first day's play, and to a triumph over Julia Fiske, from Arlington, Va., yesterday.

The other finalist was undetermined when rain halted a match between Margot Parsons, of Washington, and Betty Simpson, of Ruxton, after each had won a set and the third was tied at 3-3.

Miss Lhamon and Miss Lucy Tyler, of Annapolis, teamed to defeat Mary Brookings, Alexandria, Va., and Miss Combs, 6-2, 7-5, in the doubles. Betty Jacobs, of Washington, and Anne Cullen, Silver Spring, eliminted Misses Fiske and Parsons, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3.

Play in the tournament will be resumed Friday.

Underrated Duo of Reedy, Bartelt Topple Pair From 2d Round

By the Associated Press

Newport, R. I., Aug. 14.—Striving for a seeding in the national doubles championship tournament next week, the underrated Los Angeles team of William Reedy and Kenneth Bartelt toppled the Nation's third ranking combination of Gardnar Mulloy, Coral Gables, Fla., and Henry Prusoff, Seattle, today in the second round of the Newport Casino tennis tournament.

The score was 4—6, 7—5, 16—14, and the 30-game third set was the longest of the tournament. The grueling match went to five match points before the Californians finally put it away.

While the singles field rested today to allow the doubles competition to catch up, the highly fancied tandem of Frankie Parker, of Berkeley, Calif., and Don McNeill, Oklahoma City, swung into action by ousting Armand Bruneau, New York, and Marion Reese, Atlanta, 6—3, 6—3.

The dangerous Pacific Coast team of Jack Kramer and Ted Schroeder had a narrow escape at the hands of David Johnsen, Washington, and Isadore Bellis, Philadelphia, but finally won at 13—11, 11—9, while Frank Kovacs, Oakland, Calif., and Edwin Amark Los Angeles, dropped a set in turning back J. Everet, Chicago, and Earl Bartlett, New Orleans, 6—1, 6—8, 6—3.

The veteran combination of Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, long a Newport favorite, downed George Toley, Los Angeles and William Talbert, Cincinnati, 6—3, 6—4, with flashes of the old-time form that carried them to national championship and Davis Cup heights.

The singles competition will be resumed tomorrow when Don McNeill will meet Frank Shields while Joe Hunt takes on Bryan Grant for the right to enter the semifinal round.

The semifinals are scheduled for Friday morning and the final for Saturday.

Two-Time Great Lakes Net Champ Is Upset

Erie, Pa., Aug. 14 (AP).—Dick Shipp, of Harrisburg, upset the seeded Byron Bauer, Erie attorney and twice tournament champion, today, 6—1, 5—7, 6—3, to enter the semifinal round of the Great Lakes Tennis Championship.

Gordon Robinson, Stamford, Conn., top-seeded entry, eliminated Bobby Kintz, of Erie, 6—3, 9—7; Harry Zink, of Steubenville, Ohio, beat Bob Braithwaite, of Ripley, N. Y., 4—6, 7—5, 6—4, and Bill Maul, of Detroit, put out Ed Kilgus, of Brockway, Pa., 7—5, 6—2.

Maritime Wins Softball Berth

The U. S. Government Softball League's representative in the District tournament starting Saturday will be the Maritime Commission ten, it was decided yesterday when the Mariners defeated the U. S. Aggies, 6-2.

Hall Steffis went the distance for the winners, being touched for five hits and whiffing a total of 10 Aggie batsmen. A home run by Kelly, who had a perfect day at bat, featured the winners' plate punch.

Leo Walper to Again Make Winter Golf Tour After Sarasota Pro Job Falls Through

To Take Short Vacation Before Winter Trek Starts

Driving Range Magnate Plans Fifth Tour Of Big Time Circuit

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Leo "The Walloper" Walper, the East-West Highway driving range magnate and the Mrs. have definitely decided to make winter tour No. 5 with the big-time golf pros when the birdies and the golfers head toward Pinehurst in November.

WALPER

Walper's trips was pending as he was awaiting word from Sarasota, Fla., where his name was up for a pro golf post but the job fell through so the Walper family is already making preparations for the annual trek from the Carolinas through Florida, Texas, the West Coast and back again.

Leo stayed in Florida last year, the first year he passed up the California cash quest since he made his debut on the circuit in 1935, the first and only time he lost money. His biggest year was 1938, when he finished third at Augusta and Thomasville, and cleared more than $1,000.

However the two-time Middle Atlantic P. G. A. champion is not going to wait until November for a vacation. He's been working from 5 a. m. till around midnight ever since the driving range season hit full swing, and with little letup. He wants to get away for a week or more before the local fall tournament campaign that will include the District Open, Mid-Atlantic P. G. A., Grosner-pro-amateur championship and others. He also plans to compete at Scranton in the $5,000 open.

He's been the hard-luck guy thus far this year, in his poorest tournament campaign locally in some time.

It all started when he packed up for the sectional P. G. A. championship in April at Old Point Comfort, Va. Leo closed his lesson book for the week, boarded the Norfolk boat and went down to Old Point for a few days practice. The day before the 72-hole grind was supposed to start, it was called off.

Leo really wanted to play in the National Open Championship while some of the other boys in the sectional qualifying rounds were indifferent. He came to the last hole needing a 6-footer for a tie for last place, and he missed.

In the Maryland Open Championship at Columbia, he started with an eight-over par 43. He played the next nine in 33 and the third in 32, but his start was too much to overcome. Then in the Bedford Open he came to the last hole with an eagle deuce for a tie with Al Houghton. His approach shot hit the pin and bounded 2 inches away.

However, the self-made professional doesn't think this can go on forever so he's going to take another crack at the winter tour. He'll take the trailer as far as Florida, and leave it there when he's California bound.

Any golf pro that works as hard as Walper deserves a break. For the past several years different pros, some youngsters, some lesser-known veterans, have had sensational streaks on the coast-to-coast trek. It may be Walper's year, for I'm sure if he didn't think he could do it he wouldn't waste the time.

10,000 Cumberland Fans See Sealoch Capture Feature

Longshot Pays $23.60; Betting Soars

Molasses Julia, Favorite, Is Second; Kittiwake Runs Third in Race

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 14.—After trying 32 times to reach the winner's circle, H. G. Bedwell's Sealoch finally found a field she could defeat. The daughter of Apprehension came from last position in a group of eight to win in approved "going away" fashion for Jockey Willie Dufford's third winner of the day. The triumph came in the Fort Cumberland Hotel Purse, the main attraction on the Cumberland Day program. With the afternoon a holiday in this city, more than 10,000 persons made it look like Preakness Day. Betting, going on at record pace since the start of the session, soared to new heights for a mid-week crowd.

Those in the crowd who could overlook Sealoch's long absence from the win column, collected at the rate of $23.60 for each $2 investment. The filly was clocked in a creditable 1:49⅘ for the mile and a sixteenth.

Molasses Julia, under the handling of Jockey Sammy Palumbo, was installed the favorite and finished second, beaten a length and a half. Kittiwake was third and two additional lengths behind the winner.

Filly Sets Early Pace

Palumbo hustled Molasses Julia to the front as soon as the filly left the gate. He placed heh on the rail and she set the pace. Crimson Lancer, the longest shot in the race, pressed the pace. Kittiwake, on the outside, also was prominent. In the meanwhile, Sealoch was trailing.

Dufford finally got Sealoch under way and the filly made a wide circle around the leaders. In midstretch she caught the leading Molasses Julia. Palumbo went to the whip, on the favorite but she had nothing left to offer Sealoch. Dufford stung the Bedwell filly and she drew out approaching the wire.

Dufford and Palumbo, the chief rivals of the feature event, won the halves of the daily double. The former stuck on the rail to score with Fall Hazard, in the 2-year-old race. The Chance Play filly paid $34.90. Palumbo then piloted Din to victory in the second race at an individual pay off of $7.50. Those who played the "1 and 7" combination collected $183.20.

ANNE ANDREWS	(Rose)	109	8	8	8	8	8	8	8	52.30

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DIN, $7.50, $4.50, $3.10; WINDSOR'S CHIEF, $4.80, $2.80; LULA KHAYYAM, $2.70.

DIN, keen forward factor from start, came to outside of leaders to better position, was steadied to stretch and came nicely under strong handling in final stages. WINDSOR'S CHIEF, closest to LULA KHAYYAM'S pace in early stages, was blocked by latter while attempting to come through on inside and closed gamely when clear. LULA KHAYYAM had keen early speed while setting pace and weakened gradually in final 3 furlongs. BLENETHEL was vigorously handled and was not a serious factor.

Daily Double, FALL HAZARD and DIN, Paid $163.20

THIRD RACE—About 2 miles. Purse, $500; steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:15. Off 3:16½. Winner, R. L. Pearson's ch. g. (10), by Chatterton—Persian Blue. Trained by J. E. Allison, jr. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 3:33⅘. (New track record.) (18 jumps.)

Two-dollar mutuels paid—EDGEMONT, $4.60, $3.20, $2.70; RHYTHMICAL, $6.10, $4.90; GNOMNIE, $5.80.

EDGEMONT, rated while closest to RHYTHMICAL'S pace for mile, took command when asked, but had to be kept to pressure to hold latter safe. RHYTHMICAL set good pace while losing much ground at turns and held on stoboornly in closing mile. GNOMNIE weakened gradually, but held others safe. THORNY ROSE lacked early speed and came willingly in closing stages.

FOURTH RACE—About 6½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:46. Off 3:48. Winner, Bernard Bond's b. g. (10), by Aromatic—Petty Cash. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $300; second, $65; third (dead heat), $17.50; fourth (dead heat), $17.50. Time, 1:22⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SMALL CHANGE, $4.40, $2.70, $2.10; MAN AT ARMS, $2.90, $2.20; COL. HATFIELD (dead heat), $2.20; DONA MONTEZ (dead heat, entry), $2.20.

SMALL CHANGE, first away, drew clear of DONA MONTEZ on backstretch, but had to be put to punishment to barely last. MAN AT ARMS, hard handled, came to outside for racing room approaching stretch and responded to pressure to just miss. COL. HATFIELD saved ground from start and closed with good energy. DONA MONTEZ pressed early pace and held on gamely in final test.

FIFTH RACE—About 6½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:21. Off 4:23½. Winner, T. W. Willingham's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SAIL BY, $6.10, $3.80, $3.00; JUSTA CANTER, $3.30, $3.30; DON GOMEZ, $4.20.

SAIL BY went to front at once, saved ground, stayed off challenges of JUSTA CANTER and drew clear to win easily. JUSTA CANTER was vigorously handled while racing on outside of pacemaker and held on gamely. DON GOMEZ saved ground throughout and hung in final drive. DIESEL AGE went evenly.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:54. Off 4:56½. Winner, H. G. Bedwell's dk. b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SEALOCH, $23.60, $8.70, $4.90; MOLASSES JULIA, $3.00, $2.60; KITTIWAKE, $5.30.

SEALOCH, allowed to settle into stride, came wide for racing room, improved position gradually and closed with rush in center of track to win going away. MOLASSES JULIA saved ground while setting pace, shook off CRIMSON LANCER, would not resist winner while under punishment. KITTIWAKE was hard handled while racing on outside of leaders and weakened in closing test. FLYBALK had speed in spots.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:28. Off 5:28½. Winner, J. E. Colvin's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LYDE, $4.20, $2.60, $2.60; AMERICA FIRST, $3.00, $3.30; LAKE SHORE, $4.70.

LYDE, excellently handled, was hustled to front in opening quarter, saved ground and held sway through stretch under hard drive. AMERICA FIRST was put to hard drive after a half and hung in final drive. LAKE SHORE came from far back, improved position and closed gamely. HUPPY had speed in spots and weakened.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 6:01. Off 6:02. Winner, J. R. Palmer's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—KESWICK HILL, $5.00, $3.20, $3.60; PENCADER, $4.40, $2.70; NEVER IDOL, $2.60.

KESWICK HILL, steadied while within striking distance for half, came wide to improve position and withstood long drive to win going away. PENCADER was hard handled while close up, took command when shaken up, but could not resist winner. NEVER IDOL lacked speed for half and closed full of run. REGAL FROLIC, off poorly and sent to front under hustling tactics, held on gamely when displaced.

Selections at Cumberland.

Dear Al—Walter Johnson, candidate for Congress, visited the fair and the racing. Harold Nixon is the ace Postal telegraph boy in Cumberland. Too smart to play horses. It begins to look as if it is against the rules here to have anything but a fast track. Trainers who shipped here hoping for off going are still hoping. To D. K. McL.—R. Sisto rode his first winner on a recognized track at Hagerstown. In fact, he had been around race horses only two months before getting his maiden winner home. One of the most quiet boys on the grounds. Charlie Jackson, ancient, colored jockey, swung into action yesterday. Speaking of old jockeys, Willie Obert has a letter from somebody on the West Coast trying to hook him up with Lucky Baldwin, who owned horses in 1849. "That's carrying it a little too far," scowls Obert. He still denies he held the horse for Paul Revere. Steeplechase Jockey Norman Brooks is king of the jumping pilots hereabouts. I don't know why Zyloxxie was scratched out of yesterday's second race, but it was a break for the track announcer. Yesterday's crowd was 80 per cent women. In case of an air attack, I'm putting in first call on that cave on the side of the mountain by the clubhouse turn. The champion arrived from Hagerstown. Did Jockey Mike Sarno take a bride? Jockey A. Vesselli shakes a mean hoof at night and tries to make the horses shake them in the afternoon. Marlboro is creeping up on us. The Prince Georges County meeting opens on Wednesday and runs ten consecutive days. Looks like the racing writers might get in a day of fishing to the Chesapeake. See you on the rail. BILL.

First race—Morolee has had enough education to be ready to down a maiden field of this kind. May not stop today. Gradatim has shown enough to warrant a high pleacing here. Satin Marie for the minor award.

Second race—Autumn Echo appears best of the lot if the track remains fast. However, if there is a change of condition, I'm going to Golden Key. Cautious Bo and Timetta like the track and should be in the thick of contention.

Third race—Judges Bid has shown keen jumping ability and has the speed to handle these. At 138 pounds, he seems better placed than either Quakerstreet or Champfleury, two that promise to be prominent.

Fourth race—Riotous had some excuses in that last and with better racing luck should account for a purse in this company. Mariyah's last was disappointing. This one wants a fast track and will be dangerous if she gets it. Brain Child may be third.

Fifth race—Thoa has jumped up several notches in recent starts. Was herded along the rail in that last and should have won. May get to the top early in this and surprise a star field. Sky Hostess downed the top one last out and is the one to beat. Water Light and Seneschal are possibilities.

Sixth race—Pamunkey gets in this with a light assignment and a good running mate in First Fling. Looks like the right spot. Frank H. is in excellent form and will be close. Maetake for the minor award.

Seventh race—Blox may be suited in this field. There is plenty of speed and Blox may be along to catch the leaders tiring at the end. Moon Harvest and James Pal to fill out the money bracket.

Eighth race—Kissin Kid could be the right one in a rather open affair that concludes the program. Povel and Home Hunter are in light and promise to be in the pay circle.

Best bet—Riotous.

Trophy Is Donated For Auto Diamond Play

The Sports Center will donate a trophy to the winner of the automotive baseball series which will get under way Sunday, September 1, with Ourisman Chevrolet meeting Packard-Washington, and the Studebaker Champions playing Arcade-Pontiac.

Small's Motors draws a bye. The teams will play each other once.

D. C. Utilities Report Sales Gains in July

Pepco and Gas Light Both Show Substantial Increases Over 1939

July sales of the Potomac Electric Power Co. totaled 71,476,476 kilowatt-hours, an increase of 5.01 per cent over the corresponding month last year, the company reported yesterday.

Sales to railroads and railways increased 10.75 per cent during the month over 1939, sales for street and highway lighting gained 0.41 per cent and other sales climbed 4.85 per cent.

Gas Sales Also Gain

July sales of the Washington Gas Light Co. totaled 72,175,000 cubic feet over the 626,781,000 cubic feet in the like 1939 month. For the first seven months sales totaled 8,305,908,000 cubic feet, against 7,379,-154,000 cubic feet in the corresponding 1939 period.

Will Attend Sales Parley

O. A. Thorup, Washington branch manager of Remington Rand, Inc., will leave Sunday to attend the annual five-day sales conference of the company in Buffalo, N. Y. New products will be presented to the 60 branch executives attending.

Credit Man's View

Despite the artificial stimulus in the recent business upturn, which is caused by armament activity, business can look forward at least to a continuation of the expansion through the latter part of the year, Henry H. Heimann, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men, declares in his monthly business review received here yesterday by Washington members.

"The late fall months will be unusually active as judged by standards of recent years," the credit executive states. "Retail trade should continue showing the improvement it has registered in the first half of the year. The holiday trade this year will be larger than that of last year.

"An early termination of the war (about which many of us have our doubts) would temporarily check some of the armament business, upon which much of our other activity is based, although the needs in this line for our own defense are such that it is inconceivable there can be much falling off of this business in the next six months irrespective of the European situation."

Air Travel Handbook

World-wide effects of the European war are likely to prove helpful in development of the air transport industry despite the problems created as a result of the growing emphasis on military preparedness, according to a statement by J. S. Bache & Co., released through their Washington office.

The company has just published a comprehensive booklet called "Handbook of the Air Transport Industry," in which are discussed principal characteristics of that industry. Air passenger travel by the end of August, the company predicts, will have approximated that of the entire year of 1939.

Bank, Insurance Stocks Off in Week

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, Aug. 14.—New York City bank stocks eased during the past week. According to Hoit, Rose & Troster, the aggregate market value of 16 leading issues at the close on August 9 was $1,366,351,000 compared with $1,379,820,000 at the close of the previous week, a decrease of $13,469,000 or 0.98%. The current average yield of 16 issues of 4.73% compares with a yield of 4.69% on August 2.

Insurance stocks in the New York City market declined slightly during the past week. The aggregate market value of 20 leading fire and casualty insurance issues at the close on Friday, August 9, was $372,835,000 compared with $375,-839,000 at the close of the previous week, a decrease of $3,004,000, or 0.82%. The current average yield of the 20 issues of 4.17% compares with a yield of 4.15% on August 2.

Refined Copper Stocks Continue Rise in July

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—Domestic stocks of refined copper continued their uninterrupted increase since the start of the year and climbed to 215,823 tons at the end of July, a gain of 16,237 tons from the preceding month, the Copper Institute said today.

Refined output expanded to 90,995 tons from 86,077.

Cotton Futures

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—War developments stripped the cotton futures market today to the exclusion of such news as floods in cotton-growing States and a more favorable weekly weather report than expected. Prices dawdled over a narrow range and ended 1 to 2 points lower.

While traders viewed recent Government orders for textiles, and the probability of more to come, as capable of making a big dent in the present supply of cotton, prophecies that export business might develop on a larger scale than expected were seen through darker glasses.

The market now, brokers reported, is holding tight and waiting for a break in favor of the fortunes of war.

A bar to serious pressure was seen in the Government loan rate for the 1941 crop, with indications of poor early demand for new cotton (apparently a backwash of the war) curbed future demand.

Government orders dominated textile business, according to Worth Street reports. Inquiry picked up for some items, however, and prices were steadily maintained.

Firm London Market Calms N. Y. Stocks; List Closes Uneven as 'Fright' Sales Wane

New York, Aug. 14.—When the London stock market persisted in holding steady today despite the launching of another terrific onslaught by German planes, Wall Street traders asked themselves why we should become more nervous in our security trading, consequently there was no further sign of the weakness which characterized stock trading Tuesday.

The list opened firm to higher and while it gave ground in later hours, there was very little change at the close. The composite average showed a negligible loss of 0.17 point and trading fell down to only 271,870 shares. Aviations gained ground, the rails, metals, steels and oils were steady, and declines in other sections were modest.

War news claimed the attention of investors and traders almost to the exclusion of everything else. It was the fourth day of the big German drive and the street waited for more definite indications of the trend of battle before taking any action marketwise.

The London market also did its bit to support the claims of the British war office, for it is impossible to conceive of a strong stock market there, such as developed yesterday, if German claims of victory are correct.

Reflecting the importance of the air arm in the forces of each country, the only group of stocks to average with a plus sign in the New York market was the aviation division. There was no great activity in these issues however, the most active being Aviation Corporation, which closed unchanged. Douglas added 1½, following announcement of a $20,000,000 expansion program.

International Paper was the day's most active stock and gained a small fraction while the preferred advanced 1½. A favorable earning statement helped these favorites come back after their sell-off of Tuesday. Leading paper companies have reaffirmed their newsprint prices through the first quarter of 1941.

Steels were relatively active and small fractions were added by United States Steel and Republic. News from this industry is favorable, the Iron Age review today nothing the impetus of orders connected with the defense program and also the entry into the steel market this week and last week of the automobile industry. Purchases made for the manufacture of the new 1941 models are growing.

Electric power production for the week was off slightly from the year's record made the previous week but is still 11 per cent ahead of a year ago, all major geographical regions showing improvement. There has been comparatively little interest in the public utility section in the stock market and the two most active members of the group today, Commonwealth Edison and Commonwealth & Southern, closed unchanged.

The street was gratified with the progress of the investment trust bill, carrying a rider granting the SEC discretion to reduce the present 20-day waiting period in the issuance of new securities. This rider will become effective as soon as the President signs the bill and will not have to wait until November 1, the effective date for the investment trust bill itself. Investment bankers would have preferred a rider making a definite reduction in the 20-day period, but is thankful for small favors. It is assumed the SEC will make good use of the discretion to be granted it.

Bond prices were easy today in another dull session on the listed market. European war developments are inclining a few holders to liquidate, but the pressure is slight and readily absorbed.

United States Treasury issues sold down by smallest fractions, and New York City Transit 3s also lost, a little ground. Best grade corporate bonds held close to previous levels. Turnover in all issues was only $2,970,000.

Argentine bonds were firm in the foreign section, gains in such issues ranging between 1 and 2 points, but other Latin-Americans were dull despite the House committee approval of the $500,000,000 Export-Import Bank lending authority. Australians were firm, while Canadian bonds generally receded. The German and Italian groups moved in opposite directions, with most changes minute. Issues of the German occupied countries also were irregular.

Court Sanctions Wabash Rwy. Plan

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—Receivers of Wabash Railway Co have been authorized by the court to modify the terms of the reorganization plan, filed early in July, following negotiations with groups of security holders.

The changes included a higher interest rate and longer term for bonds of the carrier allotted to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Modifications, said A. K. Atkinson, treasurer for the receivers, have resulted in assurances of active support for the plan by the R. F. C., the institutional group of holders of underlying and divisional mortgage bonds and the institutional group of holders of refunding and general mortgage bonds.

Such support is assured, it was added, provided pending litigation is put aside and the plan consummated with dispatch.

Tin Shortage Fear Discounted

New York, Aug. 14 (AP). — The American Iron and Steel Institute asserted today that "any fears of a shortage of tin do not appear to be well founded."

The institute called attention to suggestions "recently voiced in some circles" that there is a possibility of a tin shortage and said:

"While no definite figures are available on aggregate stocks of tin held by members of the tin plate industry or in transit to them, leading producers are confident that the situation is comfortable. They foresee no important disturbances in the outlook.

"The opinion is common that even if those colonial possessions (producers of tin) were to pass out of the control of the empires to which they now belong, the new rulers would be no less eager to sell tin."

Visit in Canada, Shareholders Urged by International Nickel

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—An appeal to U. S. shareholders to visit Canada and help provide dollar exchange the Dominion needs for its war efforts accompanied the half-year report today of the International Nickel Co., Limited, of Canada.

The company produces about 85 per cent of the world's nickel and large amounts of copper and other metals from its Canadian mines. An analysis in 1938 showed nearly half of its 91,000 stockholders were residents of the United States.

"Canada is currently buying more U. S. products than any other country and the volume of these purchases will increase as the war progresses," said a message signed by Robert C. Stanley, chairman and president.

For the six months ended June 30, the company reported a net profit of $18,606,293, equal to $1.17 a share on the common stock, compared with $17,773,438, or $1.15 a share, in the like period of 1939.

Provision for income and franchise taxes in the half-year amounted to $9,246,823, or 63 cents a share on the common, against $4,437,245, or 30 cents a share, in the first six months of 1939.

For three months ended June 30, net profit was $8,240,179, equal to 53 cents a share, compared with $5,226,137, or 33 cents a share, in the June quarter of 1939.

Douglas Maps $20,000,000 Expansion

War Plane Maker Plans World's Biggest Aircraft Factory

By the Associated Press

Santa Monica, Calif., Aug. 14.—A $20,000,000 expansion plan for Douglas Aircraft Co., which supplies large numbers of United States and foreign war planes, was outlined today by President Donald Douglas.

The program includes construction of a large plant adjacent to the Long Beach Municipal Airport and additions to the main factory here and to the El Segundo division nearby.

Douglas said the expansion was designed to provide the U. S. Army and Navy "with accelerated production needed to complete its present requirements by April 1, 1942." It was approved in Washington, he said, by the War Department and the National Defense Advisory Commission after recent conferences there and in Santa Monica.

The completed expansion, said the announcement, "will place at the disposal of the United States Government the most extensive unit of its type in the industry, and at the same time give America an aerial defense that probably will be the largest privately owned and managed" aircraft enterprise in the world.

The Douglas company now employes more than 18,000 persons and an annual pay roll exceeding $28,-000,000. Under the expansion, these figures will be more than doubled, Douglas said.

Electric-Melt Steel Capacity Expands in U. S.

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—The country's capacity for producing electric-melted steel, vital to rearmament, will have been increased 25 per cent, to 2,000,000 tons annually by the end of 1940.

Additions completed or scheduled to be finished by the year-end by steel concerns throughout the country have added a rated annual production capacity of about 342,000 tons this year. However, trade authorities point out that under pressure for deliveries this theoretical capacity probably could be stepped up to about 400,000 tons annually.

Electric melt steel is the finest of the alloy processes, producing steels with a minimum of impurities, and, consequently, with a high record of performance under exacting conditions.

All stainless and tool steels are electrically melted, as well as some of the best grades of carbon steel. At the end of 1934 the country had less than 1,000,000 tons capacity of electric furnace steel.

Southern Pacific Places $3,500,000 Contract

San Francisco, Aug. 14 (AP).—Southern Pacific Co. announced yesterday it had placed a $3,500,000 order for 51 units of lightweight streamlined passenger cars with the Pullman Standard Car & Manufacturing Co.

The order included 26 new lightweight pullman sleeping cars for two new streamlined trains on the overnight run between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Grains, Cotton Move Lower; Metals Gain

Wheat and Corn Dip; Rubber and Copper Show Buoyant Tone

By the Associated Press

Many important industrial raw materials made a better showing yesterday in futures markets although several of the Nation's big farm products—wheat, corn, and cotton—continued to slip.

War news, a depressant Tuesday, waned as a market influence.

Wheat at Chicago dipped ¼ to ⅝ of a cent a bushel. Buying credit to mills and short covering helped sustain prices. Corn lost ¼ to ½ cent.

Cotton dipped 5 to 15 cents a bale. Crop news was displaced by war reports as market influences.

Industrial staples marked up included zinc, rubber, hides and copper. Mecoa also improved but sugar, cottonseed oil, Santos coffee and Straits tin retreated. Silk was mixed.

Columbia Gas Net Rises to $141,163,832

By the Associated Press

Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation reported yesterday for the 12 months ended June 30 consolidated net income of $14,163,832, or 63 cents a common share, compared with $12,409,990, or 49 cents a share in the preceding 12 months.

Alleghany Corp.

Alleghany Corp., top holding company of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway System, reported second quarter net loss of $36,613 on $1,-120,403 total income, against $507,-665 loss on $543,036 income the same period of 1939. For the half-year Alleghany had $31,700 net income against $1,118,331 loss that part of 1939, and income was $2,265,126 against $1,022,508.

United Engineering

United Engineering & Foundry Co., reported net income for the first six months of 1940 of $1,805,221, after all charges and estimated taxes, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $2.16 a common shar. This compared with 951,-813, or $1.12 a share, in the comparable 1939 period.

Anaconda Copper Mining Co.

The Anaconda Copper Mining Co. reported for the six months ended June 30 net income of $17,549,546, equal to $2.02 a share on the capital stock. In addition there was a sum of $486,460 representing equity in the undistributed earnings of subsidiaries not consolidated. For the first half year net income, excluding equity for undistributed earnings of subsidiaries not consolidated, amounted to $7,170,336, or 83 cents a share.

July Shipments Of U. S. Steel Set Three-Year Peak

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—United States Steel Corporation reported yesterday shipments of finished steel products by its subsidiaries in July totaled 1,296,887 net tons, best for the month since 1937, and an increase of 87,203 tons over the 1,209,684 shipped in June.

The figure is 551,523 tons higher than the 745,364 tons shipped in July, 1939.

Shipments in the first seven months of 1940 totaled 7,585,285 tons, an increase of 2,001,517 tons over the 5,583,768 shipped in the like 1939 period.

Butter Storage Reported Smaller

Chicago, Aug. 14 (AP).—Cold storage stocks of butter in warehouses throughout the United States were smaller on August 1 than a year ago, according to Department of Agriculture figures. Stocks of eggs and cheese were larger.

On August 1 butter stocks totaled 124,244,000 pounds, compared with 165,183,000 a year ago and a five-year average of 143,038,000. Stocks on July 1 totaled 80,842,000 pounds.

Shell egg holdings totaled 7,773,-000 compared with 7,024,000 a year ago and a five-year average of 7,487,000. The July 1 total was 7,509,000 cases. Frozen eggs totaled 154,929,000 pounds, compared with 133,359,000 a year ago and a five-year average of 135,665,000. Stocks totaled 150,207,000 pounds on July 1.

Prudent Business Leaders Set Up Unusual Reserves

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
Economic Commentator.

War-like thinking and planning in this country has injected something of the boom psychology into the domestic business scene. The change is manifest in the peak activity in the barometric steel industry.

It is difficult for manufacturers in looking over their current orders to segregate the full economic consequences of the quickened defense program.

Mr. Rukeyser

Actual work on armaments at present is small in relation to the totality. But some of the construction, some of the tooling, some of the orders for new real equipment are themselves part and parcel of the new program of enlarged Federal spending for the defense of the realm.

In addition, there are the psychological concomitants of these developments. For the first time in 11 years, business thinking has turned from thoughts of surpluses and excess capacity to concern over the day when shortages might conceivably develop.

Many executives have accordingly decided to "buy now" in the belief that waiting would not be profitable.

The urge to act immediately was supported by the fear that if the "emergency" became more acute, priority orders might interfere with the normal flow of business, and that Government competition for men and materials might tend to raise the price of things. It is too early yet to appraise the full results of the changing attitude.

Yet sober business managers are already aware that abnormal and noneconomic factors are beginning to distort the business fabric.

Thus, though the time element is still uncertain, it is recognized that new risks are being injected into the business situation.

In the circumstances, it is the task of prudent management to distinguish between normal and abnormal factors, and to set up unusual reserves against possible ultimate depreciation of inventories, possible sudden reversal of the program for unusual government spending, and for probable quick obsolescence of special purpose plants built to take care of war orders.

There should be no shrinking from such obligations by responsible management because of the current business baiting agitation carried on by ignorant journalists and incompetent bureaucrats.

In his fireside chat after the new defense program got under way, President Roosevelt recognized the principle that the Government itself should assume the risk as to the capital cost of special war plants of uncertain useful life.

Moreover, in the July 10 White House statement on the subject of goods produced for emergency formula of new legislation for clarifying depreciation on war plants.

Yet journalistic and other kibitzers are seeking to confuse the subject by impugning the patriotism of the chief executives of companies who want to see the July 10 formula enacted into law.

Raising such a red herring is a disservice.

No question of patriotism is involved. Managers are trustees for property owned by stockholders, and are not in position to give away other people's money on their own initiative.

If patriotism were the sole criterion, then patriotism would require a policy of sound financial reserves which would assure the continued efficiency of the productive facilities of the Nation over which industrialists preside.

The question at issue is a proper determination of the capital cost the Administration created a purposes.

There has recently been an attempt by superficial observers to stage moral lynchings of business executives for following the precepts which this writer urged upon them in a series of speeches last autumn and again in his book, "Financial Security in a Changing World," which appeared weeks before the current tempest in the teapot started to brew.

Retail Food Sales Reported Heavier

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—Wholesale grocers, chains and large retailers report larger increases in dollar sales than earlier in the summer, the American Institute of Food Distribution said today in a weekly report.

"Food buying from retail stores is increasing, especially in rural regions, and is running 5 or 6 per cent above a year ago," the report added.

Zinc Price Boosted To New Top for Year

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—A seller today advanced the price of zinc ¼-cent a pound to 6½ cents, East St. Louis, for prime Western metal, the highest price witnessed this year.

Surplus stocks of slab zinc are reported to be the smallest since 1936.

Extra Dividend Voted

Chicago, Aug. 14 (AP).—The directors of the United States Gypsum Co. today declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share on common stock in addition to the regular 50 cents a share on common and $1.75 a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock, all payable October 1 to stock of record September 15.

Woolen Prices Lifted Sharply

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—American Woolen Co. has advanced prices of tropical worsteds and gabardines for next summer between 12½ and 18½ cents a yard, it was announced today.

While most of next spring and summer's line has not been announced, trade quarters believed today's increases reflected probable prices on other items.

Apple Trade Expects 5,000,000-Bushel Dip

Pittsburgh, Aug. 14 (AP).—Growers and shippers will have 83,000,000 bushels of apples to distribute this year, or 5,000,000 bushels less than last year's crop, it was announced today at the forty-fifth annual convention of the International Apple Association.

Shippers said the 1939 crop was "cleaned up" despite loss of European markets, although the Government had to do considerble purchasing of surplus apples.

Air Express Up 22%

New York, Aug. 14.—Air shipments of Railway Express Agency for the first six months totaled 482,169, an increase of 22.63 per cent over the corresponding period of 1939, the agency reported today. Gross revenue for the six-month period was up 24.73 per cent.

Two-Year Trial Of Aluminum Company Ends

U. S. and Defense Rest In Antitrust Action; Briefs Now Waited

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 14.—Two years and six weeks after they started, the Government and defense rested today in the antitrust action against the Aluminum Co. of America, its subsidiaries and others.

Federal court attaches said the trial was the longest in United States court history. The record contains more than 50,000 pages of testimony and more than 1,800 exhibits.

The close of testimony, however, did not end the case. Judge Francis G. Caffey set December 2 for filing briefs and January 10 for filing of reply briefs. After that he will set another date for final argument.

The Government contended that The Aluminum Co., and its codefendants—besides its subsidiaries, the complaint named 24 other corporations and 37 individuals—maintained a "100 per cent monopoly in the virgin aluminum and bauxite industry throughout the Western Hemisphere."

The defense termed this charge "utterly ridiculous."

Since the case opened, three original defendants have died. Among them was Andrew Mellon.

19.5% Increase Reported in July Insurance Sales

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—New life insurance written in July aggregated $805,328,000, an increase of 19.5 per cent over the $806,380,000 in July, 1939, the Association of Life Insurance Presidents reported today.

The association's figures cover 40 companies with 82 per cent of the outstanding legal reserve life insurance in the United States.

For the first seven months of this year new business was $4,284,782,-000, a decrease of 1.2 per cent from the total of $4,336,687,000 in the like period last year.

Time Index Rises

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—Time Magazine's index of business conditions advanced last week to 91.5 from 89.7 the previous week.

Three Duseks, Two-Man Team Match at Arena

Ernie Wrestles Cox, Emil Meets Bockwinkle, Rudy Mixes With Piers

A trio of Duseks and the latest hit—two-man team competition—will be served up to the wrestling fans tonight at Turner's Arena.

The Duseks to perform are Ernie, toughest of the "Riot Squad;" Emil and Rudy. Ernie meets Joe Cox, his ancient rival from Kansas City, in the headline bout. Emil scraps with Warren Bockwinkle, of St. Louis, and Rudy, the old master, takes on Henri Piers, the Flying Dutchman.

But what promises to make the fans sit up and roar will be the match in which Ed Newman and Lou Plummer, the so-called "champs," will battle Frank Sexton, former Ohio State athlete, and Maurice LeChappelle, the Frenchman.

The two-man scrap was inaugurated last week and went over big. Newman and Plummer, with their rough, wild-man tactics, laid low the team of Tommy Mahoney and Tommy O'Toole, but whether they can do the same to Sexton and LaChappelle remains to be seen. Sexton is unbeaten in nine matches here, and LeChappelle wrestles with reckless abandon.

The two-man thing will be two out of three falls, and fisticuffing is the popular pastime with the boys.

When Ernie Dusek and Joe Cox square off it will be a renewal of an old feud between the Nebraskan and Kansan. Little love exists between these behemoths, and Promoter Turner is anticipating a slugging bee.

First bout will start at 8:30. Promoter Turner announced—as a warning to the wrestlers—that Billy Metro, 290-pound former wrestler, would be on hand to assist Casey (Cornie) Berger in the refereeing duties.

FBI Takes 3d in U. S. League Play

Third place in the torrid U. S. Government Baseball League race went to FBI yesterday when it turned back Washington Gas Light, 4-2, behind the 4-hit hurling of Johnny DeBettencourt.

The championship game betwen Pepco and Naval Air Station, scheduled yesterday, was postponed because managers were unable to agree on a site. Originally set for the Air Station diamond, a decision against working games there by the D. C. Baseball Umpire's Association forced its postponement.

It took a rally by the G-Men to win the battle for third place. Washington Gas pushed over a run in the second inning, and it wasn't until the fourth that FBI hit the scoring column. One run then, two in the seventh and another in the eighth settled the issue.

DeBettencourt fanned only two men in his performance, but he allowed only one walk. Woodrow Putnam led the hitting of the winners with a home run in the second, and a triple in the seventh with one man on base.

County to Make Final Plans for Softball Tourney

Final arrangements for the annual Prince Georges County softball championship tournament, to start September 8, will be made at a meeting of managers of the competing teams August 28, it was announced last night.

League president Ben Goldfadden will be in charge of the meeting, at which pairings will be made. The get together will also be the deadline for entry into the annual event.

Teams already entered in the tournament, which will be played at Greenbelt and Magruder Park diamonds, are Greenbelt, defending champion; Carr & Boswell; Community Businessmen; Kanes Transfer, Hyattsville Businessmen, and Beltsville Farms.

Other teams interested in getting into action should contact Earl McKeown, secretary at 3128 Elm street, Mount Rainer or by calling Warfield 2970.

Man of the Month

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandist order by The Post.

By Arch McDonald
Station WJSV Baseball Broadcaster

Buddy Lewis and Ken Chase equally share yesterday's Man of the Month awards, for they were directly responsible for the Nats' 5-3 victory over the Athletics.

To Chase, 10 points and the lead in the August contest for a seven-hit, seven strikeout job against the Mackmen.

To Lewis, 10 points for a ninth inning triple that scored the winning runs when two were out. He also singled in the fifth to score Jake Early, batting in three of the five runs.

To Sammy West, 5 points for his single and two doubles off Nelson Potter, and a run batted in.

To Jimmy Pofahl, 4 points for his ninth inning single that led to the winning run.

To George Case, 4 points for two hits, a stolen base and for coaxing a valuable walk in the ninth.

To Gee Walker, 3 points for two hits and a run batted in.

As Tuesday's game was a night affair, the few Man of the Month points earned in the 6-3 to the A's loss are awarded now:

To Buddy Lewis, 4 points for three hits, a run batted in and a run scored.

To Sammy West, 2 points for a ninth inning pinch hit in an attempt to start a rally. Walker, Travis and Bloodworth each made two hits but at the wrong time, as ten men were stranded.

Lew Jenkins, at Ill Mother's Bedside, Threatens Manager

Lew Jenkins With His Wife, Katie

"I'll Punch Him in the Nose," Sweetwater, Texas, Lightweight Says After Telegram

By the Associated Press

Sweetwater, Tex., Aug. 14.—Cowhand Lew Jenkins, tired of all "that goofy New York talk," turned from the bedside of his gravely ill mother today and promised to punch Manager Hymie Caplin in the nose "the next time I see him."

The lightweight champion hurried here by motor to be with his mother after cancelling the August 19 bout with Bob Montgomery at Philadelphia.

The threat of suspension in Pennsylvania rings, telegraphed him by Leon Rains, chairman of the Pennsylvania Boxing Commission, unless he went through with the Montgomery bout, caused Jenkins to explode.

He blamed Caplin, his manager.

"Sure, I'll punch him in the nose. I believe I have a right to say that. Caplin didn't want me to come home—he didn't believe my mother was critically ill. My mother means more to me than all the fights and money in the world."

Jenkins complained that Caplin took him to "a country club" to train for his recent fight in which he went down before Henry Armstrong.

"But it was a resort and no place to train. Caplin didn't want any of my friends around the place. But his stooges from New York were simply overrunning the place. They nearly ran me nuts.

"They hung around watching me work out and kept asking me questions in that goofy New York talk."

He denied that his wife, Katie, had caused him to break training and said "Caplin just doesn't like her." To Chairman Rains' threat to have him suspended in Pennsylvania and "other States," Jenkins telegraphed this reply:

"I'm not trying to dodge Montgomery. I explained to the promoter before I left. I will be glad to go through with the fight at a later date, when I have had time to get in condition. Not now, my mother is very sick. She is expected to die."

(Signed) "LEW JENKINS.
Sweetwater, Tex."

Market Nine Scores, 6-0, Over D. G. S.

Continuing on the heels of the league leading G. A. C. nine, Center Market yesterday issued District Grocerymen a 6-0 shutout as Watt pitched a 5-hit game.

Seven strikeouts and only two bases on balls were credited to Watt. He also contributed a double to the winning cause. Taylor had the only home run of the game and Stadler rounded out the performance with a triple. Taylor turned in the most hits for the winners, hitting safely four times in as many trips to the plate.

Traffic Club Golfers Issue Challenge

The Traffic Club of Washington last night challenged the traffic clubs of Richmond and Baltimore to a three-team golf match next October for the possession of the Russell Conn Golf Trophy. Each club has one leg on the cup.

The unit also voted to hold its annual banquet the first week in February at the Mayflower Hotel.

Seal to Speak At Police-Fire Fete Tonight

Dinner Launches Drive For Field Day Sept. 14; $75,000 Fund Needed

Washington newspapermen, radio men and a number of leaders from the Police and Fire departments will rub shoulders tonight at the Harrington Hotel at the banquet and entertainment to be given by the police and firemen in connection with the field day scheduled Saturday, September 14, at the ball park.

They will hear Elwood Seal, corporation counsel of the District, deliver the principal speech. The banquet will start at 6:15.

Capt. John Werheim, of the Fire Department, is chairman of the banquet committee and also will act as master of ceremonies.

The police and firemen are tossing the banquet in appreciation of the untiring efforts of the newspapermen and others who are aiding in the drive to raise $75,000 for the police and firemen's relief funds.

Among those who will attend are Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police; Inspectors Edward Kelly, L. I. H. Edwards and William Scott, who is president of the Police Retiring Association; A. C. Buscher, who is acting chief engineer during the absence of Chief Stephen Porter; Capt. John Sheehan, president of the Firemen's Retiring Fund; Arnold Woodhouse and Sergt. Walter B. Vogelsang, cochairman of the field day; Sergt. Henry Jett, Capt. Peterson, Lieut. Bob Pearce, Sergt. Mike Dowd, Lieut. John Agnew, George Hickey and William T. Kruglak, general secretary for the field day.

Swim Carnival On Tap Today At Washington

One of Washington's premier swimming shows will be staged at Washington Golf and Country Club today, when the Shoreham Aquatic Club, of Nassau, Bahamas, engages the host club in a dual meet. The event will get under way at 4 p. m.

The Nassau club arrived here yesterday and went through a stiff workout, headed by its star, John Drudge. Immediately after today's action, the team will leave for Canada and the Dominion championships.

Swimming against the invaders will be such stars as Bill Wright, holder of many D. C. titles; Gordon Mustin, Tom Harrell, Dub Walker, Al Hamm, Sonny Young, Bill Roney and Bill Darnell.

Twilight League Title to Kavakos

Kavakos Grillmen assured themselves of a place in the District Softball Tournament yesterday when they won the Twilight League title by beating Kane's Transfer, 5 to 3, at Sherwood Playground.

The Grillmen go after another league championship today when they face Dixie Tavern in the Sherwood League. It will be the first of a three-game series, with first action at 5:30 p. m.

Annapolis A. Z. A. Host at Field Day

The A. Z. A. Chapter, of Annapolis, will be host in a field day Sunday, beginning at 12 o'clock, to the Simon Atlas, Potomac and Capital City chapters, and Baltimore's A. Z. A., on the high school field.

Chief interest will center around the baseball elimination and track meet between the five chapters. Two officials of the Naval Academy will help in the officiating of the meet.

"I bid five clubs rather than four spades for the sake of the honors, though it turned out that four spades would also be set."

"When dummy went down, it looked hopeless. West led the heart queen and followed with the ten. East overtook, and thinking my heart jack discard might be a falsecard, continued with a high heart. There certainly did not seem to be any harm in it. I trumped with the ten in case West might be short and ran my trumps with no definite aim. On the last trump I threw my last spade from dummy, keeping the four diamonds. After a moment's hesitation, East dropped the ace of spades like a bombshell. The poor fellow had been squeezed in diamonds and hoped his partner could stop the spades; a diamond discard would have given me four diamond tricks."

Declarer made five clubs, doubled, losing two heart tricks.

Today's Radio Highlights

11:30 a. m., WMAL—Elizabeth Pitt, of the U. S. Forest Service takes a radio visit to the Superior National Forest of Minnesota during the National Farm and Home Hour.

6:30 p. m., WJSV—Their party for refugee children postponed because of technical difficulties, Parks Johnson and Wally Butterworth take their Vox Pop mike to the Aquabelles, Aquadonises and Aquastars. In other words, Eleanor Holm, Buster Crabbe and Billy Rose's Aquacade.

7:15, WRC—Gen. Hugh Johnson brings his colorful verbiage to the national hookups.

7:30, WJSV—'Ka-choo. Ed Gusweiler, president of the Hay Fever Association of America, claims he has some effective challengers to the dominance of clover, golden rod and alfalfa over some poor citizens. So he says on Strange As It Seems. 'Ka-choo.

7:30, WOL—My, my, what a merry mix-up of folkery! Sabu, of the bronze Indian skin; Ted Lewis of top-hatted fame; Nan Wynn, band songstress, and June Duprez, English film player making a Hollywood start, are in Chicago Tonight. Sabu and Miss Duprez offer scenes from their forthcoming "The Thief of Bagdad."

8, WRC—So Bing Crosby takes time out and listeners to the K. M. H. have to have either a taste for the mountain humor of Bob Burns, subbing m. c., or else. On hand tonight are Fay Bainter, Ray Milland, Dorothy Lamour and Trumpeter Wingy Manone.

8:30, WMAL—Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, asks as he has in the Senate these recent days: "Is Peacetime Conscription Consistent With the Democratic Form of Government?"

9:15, WJSV—Colby M. Chester, chairman of the board of General Foods and director of the National Association of Manufacturers, is interviewed by Edwin C. Hill on "Industry's Part in National Defense." This is the first of a regular Thursday evening series on the defense discussion.

9:30, WMAL—Jean Dickenson, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Association, sings with the Toronto Promenade Symphony.

10, WOL—Maj. Louis Hershey speaks on Conscription.

10:15, WOL—Maj. Lemuel B. Schofield, assistant to the Attorney General in charge of immigration and naturalization service of the Justice Department, explains the Alien Registration Act of 1940, which goes into effect on the 27th.

Grin and Bear It — By Lichty

"Now's the time to find out how much money he really has!—While he's under oath!"

Listen! with Glynn

We think you should know that the job of blowing up balloons on "Uncle Jim's Question Bee," which you hear over WJSV every Wednesday at 7 p. m., is now handled by P. Raymond Warny, believed to be the world's best professional balloon blower.

Until the balloon bursts, the losing contender on the program gets a chance to increase his winnings by answering easy questions at a $1 apiece. So you can see how important it is for Uncle Jim that the blower know how to control the pressure and not break the bank.

The role of balloon blower formerly was filled by Archibald Braunfield, accountant, and strictly an amateur when it came to breaking windbags. Not very willingly he was drafted to handle the assignment until Uncle Jim could search around and find someone really versed in the science.

Braunfield, who's also the scorekeeper, used to have a tortured look in his eye as he blew, as if in fear the rubber might burst in his eyes. Finally he took to wearing a mask.

But there's none of that sissy stuff for Warny. Barefaced aplomb is what characterizes him. "You can't be afraid of them," he observes sagely, "or they won't break when you want them to."

Mr. Braunfield's technique comes from a long line of balloons. He used to sell and demonstrate them for a wholesale house.

Apex Carries Strike Suit To State Court

Makes New Attempt To Collect 'Sit-Down' Damages From Union

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 14.—After five months' litigation in Federal courts, the Apex Hosiery Co. carried to a local court today its attempt to collect damages from a C. I. O. union for a sit-down strike three years ago.

The company brought suit for $1,171,957 in Common Pleas Court against the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, Branch 1, of the union here, and four officers of Branch 1. They were responsible, the company charged, for strike violence which "wrecked and demolished" the Apex mill in May and June, 1937.

Three months ago, the United States Supreme Court set aside a District Court verdict against the union awarding $711,932.55 triple damages to the company on the grounds that its interstate business had been injured by the strike in violation of the Sherman Anti-trust Act.

The Supreme Court decided, 6 to 3, that Federal antitrust laws were not applicable to the case. Union attorneys interpreted the decision as a victory for labor, but Justice Harlan F. Stone advised the hosiery company to seek damages in Pennsylvania courts. The strike produced "force and violence of the most brutal and wanton character," he asserted.

Contentions similar to those advanced before Federal tribunals are made in today's suit, which seeks punitive damages as well as compensation for acual losses in equipment.

Pending in Chester County courts is another company suit for $1,171,937 damages, with the City and County of Philadelphia named defendants. In this action, the company charges that damage to its plant resulted from failure of Philadelphia authorities to provide adequate police protection.

Farm Bureaus Urge Rigid Control of Defense Profits

Excess Profits Tax Hearings Concluded By Congressional Committee; Three Suggestions by Witnesses Find Favor

By the Associated Press

Congressional hearings on an excess profits tax were concluded yesterday with some committee members expressing approval of at least three modifications which witnesses had recommended:

That corporations be permitted to select any three years from 1936 through 1939 as a "base period" for computing their normal earnings, instead of all four years.

That the five-year amortization plan apply to any plant expansion undertaken in connection with the defense program after January 1 of this year, instead of only after June 10, the day the White House announced that the plan would be recommended.

That financially related corporations be permitted to file consolidated returns.

Chairman Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, of the House Ways and Means Committee, said he did not forsee many changes in the subcommittee proposal. He predicted that the measure would be ready for the House next week.

Farm Bureau Hits Industry

The final witness, W. R. Ogg, of Washington, presented a statement from the president of the American Farm Bureau Federation which said that "every reasonable person" recognized the need for making tax allowances for plants expanded for defense and for a decision on the excess profits levy, so business would know its tax liabilities.

"But," the statement added, "the American people will not tolerate, at a time of such grave emergency, any group, in effect, pointing a pistol at the Government and saying they will not produce guns or airplanes or other supplies needed for national defense in this hour of grave emergency unless they are given this guarantee or that guarantee and unless restrictions are kept off their profits."

The statement said the farm organization was "concerned" over "frequently recurring reports" that the defense program was being delayed by the "unwillingness or industrial management to enter into contracts unless this or that assurance is given to industry."

No Preference Asked

It added that there had been "a few strikes and threats of strikes on the part of minority groups in labor engaged in essential defense industries."

"American agriculture," the statement continued, "does not ask for any special preferred position or extra profits out of the war.

"We have confined our requests to repairing the damage done by these trade dislocations and to maintaining a parity relationship between agriculture, industry and labor."

The federation suggested that "there should be some ceiling, above which all profits should be considered excess profits," and proposed an "overall limitation on earnings" in figuring corporation tax credits.

The federation also said that the 25 to 40 per cent tax rates now proposed were "too low."

Gross Assails Schulte in 5-Cent Milk Scrap

A member of Congress yesterday held one of his colleagues guilty of "slanderous" and malicious" statements in connection with an attack delivered on the House floor Monday against the District's 5-cent milk distribution program for the needy.

Stanchly defending the program, which was launched Monday, Representative Chester Gross (Republican), of Pennsylvania, denied charges that it "picks on innocent mothers and children" made last Monday by Representative William T. Schulte (Democrat) of Indiana.

Heckled at several points by Representative John C. Schafer (Republican), of Wisconsin, Gross nevertheless pursued to the end a speech deprecating Schulte's objections and ending:

"I am wondering if the milk given away in Washington at 5 cents a quart came from Indiana wouldn't he be perfectly at ease?"

Schulte was not on the House floor when Gross' speech was delivered. The Pensylvanian, who is a farmer and milk producer in York County, had obtined unanimous consent to speak 20 minutes in reply to the Indiana representative.

"He made the malicious remark," said Gross, "that the members of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association should be ashamed of themselves picking on innocent mothers and children who cannot protect themselves, as he says.

"The facts are that the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association is one of the best organized and soundest farm cooperatives in America, under leadership that commands the respect of all those who believe in farm organizations and who have been recognized from coast to coast for the services that they have rendered to their organization as well as to the consuming public."

"This milk is made possible because the farmers who produce it are willing to take 5 cents per quart instead of 7½, as they get for their basic quantity," Gross said. "The Surplus Commodities Corporation is paying the 2.7 cents per quart to the dealer for handling the milk."

"I am wondering why the gentleman from Indiana is so much interested in selling the cream of the Sunshine Creamery Co., of Indiana, in the District of Columbia when it is a farm-separated product. I can assure him if the District of Columbia is getting milk from Pennsylvania it is made under sanitary regulations."
